Richardson, Surface Lines Head, Quits

MOVES OUT DAY AFTER DRASTIC COURT SHAKEUP

Cummings Takes Key Position.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines since 1932 and operating head of the lines for the last 18 years, quit the company last night.

The announcement was contained in a letter to Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe, who has jurisdiction over the lines because they are in receivership. This action followed by only one day an order by Judge Igoe effecting a drastic shakeup in the supervision of the surface lines. The court appointed a new five man board to supervise the company.

Richardson's Letter.

Richardson's letter of resignation to Judge Igoe read:

"Your statement in court Feb. 5, 1941, releasing me as a negotiator and receiver of the Chicago Railways company, effective March 1, 1941, permits me to withdraw as of that date from all of my connections with the Chicago Surface Lines in accordance with my letter of resignation submitted to your predecessor, Judge James H. Wilkerson, on June 7, 1939."

Richardson has had long experience as an operator of street railways. His salary was $60,000 a year. He came to the surface lines in 1923 as vice president in charge of operations. Previously, he held the same position in the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company. He was the oldest surface lines' receiver in point of service, having been appointed by Judge Wilkerson Jan. 28, 1933.

Planned to Speed Action.

When he appointed the new five man board, Judge Igoe said his purpose was to speed settlement with the city of the transit franchise dispute. The seven man board had reported the city's franchise offer unacceptable.

Evidence that the shakeup may have additional repercussions was contained in a statement by Edward E. Brown, president of the First National bank, and one of the members appointed to the new board. Brown, who has been a receiver for the surface lines since 1934 and was a member of the seven man board, indicated he may not serve on the new board.

"I have told Judge Igoe I am willing to continue negotiations with the city until an early date," Brown said.

Control Shifts Quickly.

These latest transit developments, added to other changes in the last year, have brought a swift shift in the forces controling Chicago's traction lines.

A year ago court jurisdiction over the lines passed from Judge Wilkerson to Judge Igoe. Under Judge Wilkerson, leading rôles in operations and franchise negotiations were held by the First National bank, thru Brown, and the Harris Trust and Savings bank, of which Albert W. Harris is chairman, thru M. H. MacLean. Trusteeship of the first mortgage bonds of the surface lines is vested in these two banks.

Judge Igoe's new setup, eliminating MacLean from the board removes the Harris group from any participation in the supervision of the lines, and Brown's impending withdrawal will leave the First National without representation.

Cummings in Ascendancy.

Principal result of this series of moves will be the elevation of Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, and his associates to a key position in the traction situation. Cummings, who was named a receiver of Chicago Railways April 28, 1934, was retained as a receiver and member of the new board in the court's latest action.

Members named to the new board, besides Brown, Cummings, and Shaw, are Daniel C. Green and Edward J. Fleming. William J. Froelich was named attorney for the board.

Froelich has served as Cummings' attorney for several years. He and former Judge Wilkerson, who is now practicing law, share the same law office.

Fleming, president of the Fleming Coal company, was named receiver for the Congress hotel by Judge Wilkerson in 1938, when the hotel was under the financial control of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Plane Crashes Bring Death to 21 Persons

Twenty-one persons were killed in airplane crashes yesterday, 12 in an air liner near Armstrong, Ont., eight in the crash of an army bomber against a mountain in Nevada, and one in a collision of army planes over Long Island.

8 DIE ABOARD BOMBER

Lovelock, Nev., Feb. 6 (AP).—A huge, four motored army bombing plane, equipped with experimental apparatus to reduce hazards of arctic flying, smashed into Ragged Top mountain today, killing its crew of eight.

Officials at McClelland field, Sacramento, Cal., where the plane took off this morning bound for Denver, Colo., identified the men aboard as Capt. R. S. Freeman, pilot, commandant of Ladd field, Alaska; First Lieutenant E. W. Ketchum, co-pilot; Staff Sergeant Everett Crabb; Technical Sergeant K. H. Gilbreath; Sergeants J. F. Davies, E. S. Trainer, and F. S. Whidden; Private C. E. Applegate.

All from Alaska.

All the men came from Ladd field last month. Capt. Freeman, whose home was in Winamac, Ind., is survived by his widow, who lives in San Francisco, Cal.; his father, A. B. Freeman of Winamac; a brother, James, of Richmond, Ind., and two sisters.

Cause of the tragedy, second this winter to befall that type of plane, was not known. The weather was not particularly bad, but there had been a few showers and the sky was overcast.

Story of Eyewitness.

Floyd Carpenter, a Civilian Conservation corps crew foreman, one of several persons who saw today's crash, said the plane was flying quite low when it suddenly went into a dive. For a moment it appeared that the pilot might pull out in time, but instead the craft roared into the ground.

Flames burst from the ship as it struck and spread in all directions. All the victims were burned beyond recognition.

12 KILLED IN CANADA

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 6 (AP).—A Trans-Canada Airlines plane crashed to earth one mile from safety early today, killing 12 persons. Nine of the dead were passengers; the others the crew. Two of the victims were women: It was the worst disaster in Canadian aviation history.

The crash happened some time after 3:47 a. m. [Chicago time] when the pilot, Capt. W. E. Twiss, directing the craft from Montreal to Winnipeg, advised the Armstrong airport, 391 miles east of Winnipeg, that he was going to make a routine landing.

A light snow was falling at the time, but flying conditions were not unfavorable.

No Report for Hours.

Hours passed and no word was heard from the plane. It was listed as missing and a search began from the air. Finally the wreckage was seen one mile south of the Armstrong airport.

A rescue party and a crew of snow shovelers set out by truck. All in the plane were dead when the party reached them.

PLANES TANGLE IN AIR

Farmingdale, N. Y., Feb. 6 (AP).—Lieut. John H. Eakin, 25 years old, of McLean, Va., was killed today and Lieut. Joseph Laycock, 23, of Baton Rouge, La., was injured when their army pursuit planes locked wings 9,000 feet over this village. The planes were part of a V-formation.

Both men took to their parachutes, but Eakin's became entangled with his plane. Laycock suffered a broken ankle.

GENERAL MOTORS TAX BILL FOR 1940 SET AT $125,100,000

Taxes levied against the General Motors corporation reached $125,100,000 last year, compared with $44,852,190 in 1939, the world's largest automotive company disclosed in a report yesterday.

Stork Arrives but Forgets to Bring Baby!

Winter, Wis., Feb. 6 [Special].—Dr. H. A. Smith, who has delivered about 1,000 babies in his 25 years of practice, put a patient, Mrs. Grace Armstrong, in his car last Saturday and started for the hospital at nearby Park Falls in a race against time.

On the way, the machine skidded on the ice and jolted into a ditch from which the doctor was unable to move it.

Mrs. Armstrong, semiconscious from opiates, remained alone in the car while Dr. Smith hailed a passing motorist. She was transferred to the other automobile and rushed the rest of the way to the hospital.

Baby Born—but Missing.

There attendants carried her inside and made hasty preparations for the birth. Suddenly a nurse exclaimed: "The baby has been born! Where is it?" Startled doctors confirmed her discovery that the baby wasn't there.

Meantime, a farmer, Joseph Siefert, driving to town to shop, saw something lying in the snow near the doctor's ditched car. He investigated and found it was a newborn baby. He wrapped the blue, still form in a blanket, placed it in the abandoned car, and hurried away to inform Sheriff August Zierer.

Baby Hasn't Even a Sniffle.

Dr. Smith and a nurse arrived at the scene soon afterward, found the baby, and sped back to the hospital with it. The infant, an 8 pound boy, appeared none the worse for the strange experience.

"The baby hasn't even developed a sniffle," said Dr. Smith. "We must have dropped him in the snow in transferring the half conscious mother to the other car."

Both he and his mother, who is 35 years old, are doing nicely at the Park Falls hospital.

Jap Ships Carry Cement to Fortify Panama Canal

San Pedro, Cal., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Pacific Coast Cement institute said today that Japanese ships are hauling 83 per cent of the cement from this area used in fortifying the Panama canal. The institute, in a statement, said that "at the present time there are not enough ships flying the American flag to carry defense materials to the Canal Zone."

HOUSE INSERTS REPEAL CLAUSE FOR WAR POWER

Joint Resolution Can Kill Measure.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—The house today adopted an amendment to the President's dictator bill providing that the broad powers given the executive can be terminated at any time by a majority vote of both houses of congress in concurrent resolution. It would not require the signature of the President.

Everett M. Dirksen, author of amendment to curb President.

This action was taken while the house was sitting as a committee of the whole. It was not the only restriction voted. An amendment also was passed limiting the contracts under the bill to July 1, 1946. Heretofore there had been no limitation on contracts, giving grounds to opponents to attack the measure as permitting the President to enter into contracts binding on the government for many years to come before expiration of the bill on June 30, 1943.

A final vote on both amendments will not be taken until the roll call on final passage of the entire measure which follows consideration of all amendments.

Dirksen Starts Drive.

The amendment empowering congress to abrogate the President's powers was held to be far more crippling to the bill than anything the administration forces had anticipated accepting by way of a concession to minority opponents.

It was introduced by Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] and hurried thru to passage by shrewd G. O. P. leadership while an overconfident Democratic majority slumbered.

Dirksen chose as the time to present it to the house an interlude when many Democratic members were eating lunch or wandering about in the corridors, smoking and gossiping. Majority whips scurried outside in a vain quest of enough proadministration votes to defeat the proposal.

Wins by 148-141 Vote.

Dirksen explained briefly that the amendment was designed to safeguard the prerogatives of congress and place a check on the powers over American war materials, money, and future output of American factories which the bill would convey to the President. Then a vote was quickly called for.

The Democratic leaders either miscalculated in their hurried counting of noses or waited for a miracle which never occurred. The amendment was adopted by a teller vote, 148 to 141.

By this vote the Dirksen amendment was inserted in an administration amendment limiting the life of the bill to June 30, 1943. Therefore when the administration amendment came up for passage a few moments later the Democratic side was forced to vote for the termination clause again.

Democrats in Tangle.

Thus, it was noted, the Republicans succeeded in tying up the majority members in an unusual parliamentary tangle which seems to insure final adoption of the G. O. P. amendment.

Parliamentary experts explained that the two amendments cannot be separated again. When the bill comes up for final passage before the house, they said, the Democratic majority will face the choice of knocking out their own clause on the life of the bill which will be necessary to kill the Republican amendment or accepting the Republican amendment to get their own amendment included also.

G. O. P. Hammers Away.

Thruout the day the Republicans continued to hammer at the bill. They offered an amendment to strike the entire bill and substitute a measure providing for 2 billion dollars in loans and gifts. This was defeated, 206 to 145.

The house refused a substitute empowering the President to negotiate for British possessions in this hemisphere, the price to be placed to the credit of the British for war purchases, and also rejected a proposal that the chiefs of the army and navy certify that transferred war materials are not necessary in defense of this country.

Aid to Britain Prolongs War —Lindbergh

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—The aviation defenses of the United States are now weaker than they were at the outbreak of the European war, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today told the senate foreign relations committee.

This nation has built up its airplane production substantially during the last year, Lindbergh declared, but a great proportion of the fighting craft is being shipped off to Great Britain while our own air force deteriorates.

It was the second time in two weeks that the noted aviator had appeared before a congressional committee in opposition to President Roosevelt's dictator bill. He again stirred committee and audience with the simple sincerity of his plea against involvement of this country in the European war—an inevitable result of the passage of the measure, in his opinion.

Charges War Prolonged.

His theme—repeated again and again—was that the United States by keeping a steady flow of war materials to Great Britain was prolonging the war and increasing bloodshed. He urged consideration of a negotiated peace and declared there were no benefits to be obtained by a complete victory for either side.

Prostration for Europe would result, he asserted, and if the United States got into the conflict this country also might be reduced to disastrous straits.

He was given rougher treatment by the senators than by the representatives on the house foreign affairs committee before whom he appeared Jan. 23. Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], outspoken interventionist, brought up the matter of Lindbergh's acceptance of a Nazi decoration, the "German eagle," in 1938. The witness said he was tendered the medal at a dinner in the American embassy given to promote closer relations between Germany and the United States.

Many Other Decorations.

Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] later brought out that Lindbergh had received decorations from almost every country in the world. Clark commented that the decorations Lindbergh gave to the Missouri Historical society would "fill a room in the Jefferson Memorial at St. Louis almost as large as this room we are now in." Lindbergh, smiling slightly, said the room was not quite so large as the huge hearing room.

Adolf Hitler, he said, has no designs on this hemisphere because he has more respect for the difficulty of such an attack than the United States apparently has.

Lindbergh insisted that the United States should build up its defenses, not weaken them by sending all the modern war materials it produces to Great Britain. He expressed himself in favor of discharging present commitments to Great Britain but not "increasing" the flow of supplies as

BRITISH DECLARE U. S. AID BILL WILL LIGHTEN THEIR FINANCIAL LOAD

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The fear of inflation was voiced afresh in the house of commons today when it granted Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, vast additional sums of money to carry on the war.

The discussion which followed Wood's appeal for funds disclosed the importance which members attached to passage of President Roosevelt's lease-lend bill. If the lease-lend provisions supplant the existing policy of "cash and carry," it was asserted by several members, one of the most severe strains on British financial reserves will be relaxed.

Pethwick Lawrence, former financial secretary of the treasury, said there could be little expectation of an increase in Britain's real national income, but he mentioned the bill now being debated by the American congress as an "offset" against the financial problems besetting this country.

"If this measure they are debating in the United States is carried into law, as we have every reason to hope, I believe it will for the time being relieve us of our immediate concern of paying for these supplies," he said.

Hely Hutchinson, Conservative, said Britain already is in a condition of inflation.

Credits of more than 5 billion dollars were granted to Wood, who disclosed that the British war effort now is costing about $42,000,000 each day.

COL. M'CORMICK LISTS BARRIERS TO U.S. INVASION

Fears of Attack Are Called Fantastic.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, told the senate foreign relations committee today that the United States possesses overwhelming geographical and strategical advantages which render fantastic any suggestion that we are in danger of attack from abroad.

Col. McCormick did not discuss the President's dictator bill which the committee is considering. He confined his statement to a discussion of the possibility of an invasion of the United States by Germany. The likelihood of such an attack in the near future has been stressed by supporters of the bill as a leading argument in behalf of its enactment.

A large map, pinned on the wall of the hearing room, showed the two possible routes by which Germany might attempt to send an invading army into the western hemisphere.

Nazis Must Go 7,900 Miles.

One suggested line of invasion was from Germany, thru France, Spain, and Africa to Dakar, thence across the South Atlantic to Natal in South America, and from there to Georgetown, British Guiana, our farthest southern flying base. The German air force would have to travel over 7,900 miles to meet our own air force, Col. McCormick noted. He said he could not conceive of any one having the slightest fear of an attack along this line.

If the attack were to come across the North Atlantic, Col. McCormick told the committee, the route via Iceland, Newfoundland, and Canada would total 3,300 miles. He noted that Iceland was now held by Canadian troops, that Newfoundland is the site of a great British-Canadian air base, and that American soldiers have already landed there.

"Hysterical Imagination."

"It is an hysterical imagination which can,conceive of our being driven from Newfoundland," he said. Even if we were, he added, the enemy would find no supplies in that barren land and he would have to cross Cabot strait, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick's forests.

"Can any one dream," he asked the committee, "of an enemy forcing his way thru this country in face of 1 or 2 million trained American and Canadian troops?"

Col. McCormick said he was not in favor of seizing British island possessions in this hemisphere to foreclose on British war debts to this country. If England were conquered by Hitler, and Hitler were about to attack the United States using British islands in the attack, Col. McCormick told Senator Bennett C. Clark, [D., Mo.], in answer to questions, the United States would be justified in taking over the islands. But only in that contingency, he insisted, should force be exercised by this nation.

Pays Churchill Tribute.

He agreed with Senator Clark that it might be a good gesture on the part of the British to turn the islands over to the United States in payment for the billions of war debts which they owe us.

Col. McCormick tendered a tribute to Winston Churchill, British prime minister, when asked if Germany would not be a menace to the United States if it took over the British navy. He said he had never known a more thoroly honorable man than Churchill, and voiced confidence that Churchill's recent promise to parliament that the navy would never be surrendered to an enemy would be kept. He based his confidence in Churchill, he said, upon a friendship of 25 years.

Questioning of Col. McCormick was begun by Senator Hiram W. Johnson [R., Cal.], who brought out that the witness served first on the general staff and afterwards in the field artillery during the last war and was in France for 16 months.

Sees No Danger of Attack.

"Based on your first hand knowledge of warfare as well as this knowledge derived from the geographical conditions, you do not think there is any danger of immediate attack on this country?" asked Johnson.

"No danger of immediate attack," was the answer.

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.] took up the questioning:

Q.—On your map, you show how

EARLY CHAMPION OF WILLKIE RAPS HIM FOR SWITCH

'Shabby, Tragic Hoax,' Ex-Backer Asserts.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—In an indictment brought by one of his earliest and most ardent supports for President. Wendell L. Willkie today was charged with playing a "shabby and tragic hoax" on the American people by switching over to the pro-war side after the election.

John Burke, well known Republican leader and president of the New York County chapter of the National Republican Builders, Inc., delivered the broadside against the former G. O. P. nominee. He recalled Willkie's assurances that he was against intervention, but branded him now as a "supersalesman for President Roosevelt's war at any price policy."

Significance was attached to the protest because Burke's group was the first organization to indorse Willkie's candidacy, even preceding the support of Oren Root Jr., and the Willkie clubs. Burke, who is a member of the executive committee of the National Republican club, founded the Republican Builders along with the late Ogden Mills eight years ago.

Letter Contains Charges.

Burke's repudiation of Willkie was contained in a letter to Senator Gerald P. Nye of the foreign relations mittee. The letter reads in part as follows:

"As an American I am deeply ashamed of the shabby and tragic hoax that Wendell Willkie, erstwhile Republican leader, has played upon the American people. Like so many others, I have been chagrined by his sudden shift, since his campaign, in his position on foreign policy, and especially on America's involvement in the European conflict.

"I happen to be chairman of the first Republican organization to indorse Mr. Willkie's candidacy. And, from August, 1939, up to the Philadelphia convention in June, 1940, I either saw or had long telephone conversations with Mr. Willkie every week.

Recalls Willkie Pledge.

"Shortly before the Republican convention I saw him at his office, 20 Pine street, and asked his opinion on European affairs and foreign policy. And in particular I asked if he would mind stating his position as to America's possible involvement in the war.

"In conversation which lasted between half an hour and an hour Mr. Willkie, with clarity and emphasis, expressed his unqualified opposition to any possible involvement or entanglement in the European conflict. To illustrate his position he said—and I think I can repeat his words almost verbatim, for they made a deep impression on me:

"'It seems to me as foolish for us to think of involving ourselves in the present conflict as for a traveler in Africa, armed only with an empty pistol, to kick and sleeping and presumably hungry lion. That isn't hunting. It's suicide.'

Warned Against War.

"During the campaign and right up to election day Mr. Willkie constantly warned the American public that, if Roosevelt were elected, he would lead us into war and that war would wreck our economic system, impoverish our people, and destroy our republic.

"Yet now we find Wendell Willkie returning from England as advance agent and supersalesman for President Roosevelt's 'war at any price' policy despite the opposition of 88 per cent of our people who stand opposed to war.

"I think that both of these candidates who, before election day so often and so solemnly promised to keep America out of war, owe an explanation to the many American draftees, who are now sleeping in tents so cold that water freezes beside them, and who believe, with the great majority, that this administration intends them for cannon fodder in foreign lands."

Longest Clipper Hop Will Take Him to Trinidad.

BOLAMA, Portuguese Guinea, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Dixie Clipper, bearing Wendell L. Willkie, landed here this afternoon, completing the first leg of a pioneer flight over a new course between Lisbon, Portugal, and New York. The plane covered the 2,220 miles in 14½ hours.

The flying boat will take off on the second and longest hop of the course —3,120 miles—to British Trinidad tomorrow. From Trinidad the route goes to Puerto Rico and thence to New York, where Willkie is due Sunday.

Nazis Indignant.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—Wendell L. Willkie's appeal to the German people to free themselves from tyranny stirred circles close to the government to some indignant remarks today. The appeal has not appeared in the daily press.

The mildest comment, perhaps, was that Willkie was talking like an Englishman and not an American. The severest was that all loyal Germans would regard Willkie's appeal only with contempt.

[Willkie, in a statement broadcast after his departure from London yesterday, said: "Tell the German people that we German-Americans reject and hate the aggression and lust for power of the present German government."]

No Date for Hopkins' Return.

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—The United States embasy said today no definite date had been set for the return to Washington, D. C., of Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal representative in England. Reports from Lisbon, Portugal, said Hopkins was expected to arrive there by plane sometime Thursday.

FORMER PREMIER QUITS EXILE; GOES BACK TO HOLLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

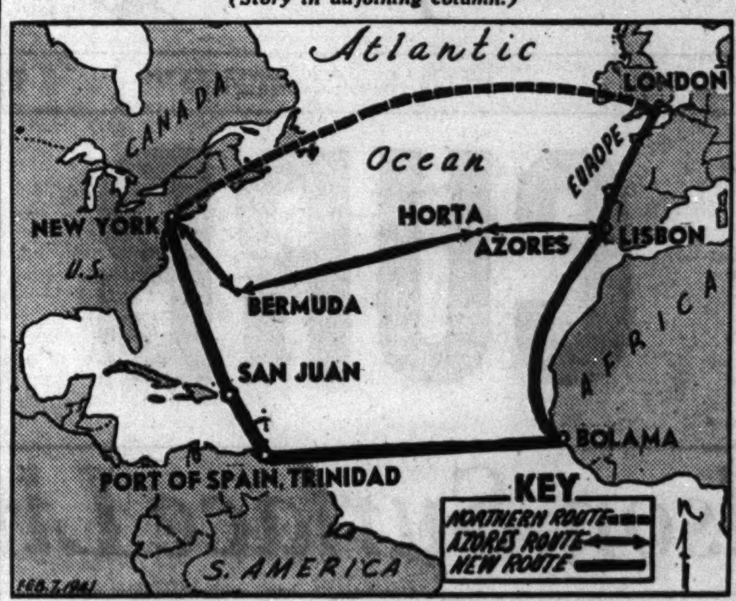
LONDON, Feb. 6. — Derek Jan de Geer, prime minister of the exiled Dutch government until last September, has returned to German occupied Holland from Lisbon in violation of his "solemn assurances to the contrary," it was officially announced tonight.

The disclosure was made by the Netherlands government in a statement expressing "profound indignation" over his conduct and accusing the 78 year old former premier of a "breach of loyalty and an act detrimental to the national interest."

De Geer left England in November on a mission to the Netherlands East Indies, which would have enabled him to join his children there. On his arrival in Lisbon, De Geer is reported to have pleaded for permission to return to Holland to see his wife, who was seriously ill. The Dutch government refused. He ignored the ban, but wrote a letter in which he said he had no intention of mixing in politics and intended to "live in Holland merely as a private citizen."

Willkie Travels Southern Air Route

(Story in adjoining column.)



The broken line traces northern route taken by trans-Atlantic Clippers just before the start of the war. The middle route has been used for regular runs since the war, and the southern route by way of Bolama, Africa, and Trinidad, is now being opened. Wendell Willkie, returning from England, is coming on plane taking southern course.

LONDON HAS 14TH NIGHT FREE OF RAIDS IN LAST 18

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP).—London relaxed in its 14th raid free night out of the last 18 tonight, and German air activity elsewhere over Britain was minor. A few planes were reported near Liverpool and other localities in west England and Wales. No bombing of any consequence was reported.

The air ministry announced that British plane losses in raids against German and German occupied territories yesterday had been raised to seven. The admiralty announced that the trawler Tourmaline was sunk in a German raid attack on a British convoy off the southeast coast yesterday. None of the convoyed ships was lost or damaged, the admiralty said, and the trawler Lady Philomena shot down one dive bomber.

Claim Merchant Ship Sunk.

BERLIN, Feb. 6 (AP).—German warplanes sank one 3,000 ton merchant vessel and damaged two others in attacks on British sea lanes yesterday, the Nazi high command reported today.

British plane losses in the last two days were estimated by the high command at 21—including 17 reported shot down in a daylight attack yesterday on German occupied territory along the channel.

Slovaks Order Liquidation of 3,000 Jewish Concerns

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, Feb. 6.— The liquidation of 3,000 Jewish companies was ordered today. The concerns are of minor importance, an official statement said. Two hundred commissioners were appointed to supervise those Jewish concerns which are to be allowed to continue in existence.

BRITISH CLOSE IN ON ITALIAN RAIL BASE IN ERITREA

Other Troops Advance Closer to Bengazi.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 6 (AP).—The British offensive against the Italians in North and East Africa was reported moving with accelerated speed today behind smashing R. A. F. assaults on retreating Fascist forces.

In East Africa, the middle east command announced its troops were closing in on Keren, Eritrea, rail center 42 miles northwest of Asmara, the colony's capital. Farther south in Eritrea Fascist forces withdrawing eastward from Barentu were said to be under vigorous pressure in the Tole area.

On a second East African front, the official announcement said British forces advancing into northwestern Ethiopia, along the Gondar road near Lake Tana, were making "good progress," despite land mines planted by the Fascists.

Dive Bomber Attacks.

British dive bombers were said to be softening Italian resistance with repeated assaults on Fascist gun positions around Keren and on the road east of the town. This road and the rail line leading to Asmara are the Italians' chief avenues of escape.

Today's British communique said some 1,500 prisoners, mostly Italians, had been taken, along with "military materials of all descriptions," since the beginning of the East African campaign.

British mechanized forces speeding across Libya, in North Africa were reported to have advanced within 60 miles of Bengazi, with the gates of that stronghold expected to be reached within 48 hours.

R. A. F. headquarters announced its bombers raided Berka, Bengazi's airdrome, and Benina the night of Feb. 4-5.

Barracks and the airdrome at Berka were bombed and the railway station at Barce was attacked for the third time in 36 hours. Other R. A. F. bombers raided the Maritza airdrome on the island of Rhodes.

A Stiff Test, Italians Admit.

ROME, Feb. 6 (AP).—The British drive into Eritrea is putting Italian resistance to the test, Fascist military dispatches indicated today. The daily war ministry bulletin said "fierce fighting" was going on in the vicinity of Keren. Il Tribuna described the contested region as of extreme "relative political, economic, and strategic importance."

The Italian air force, the Italian communique said, shot down three British planes in flames yesterday.

The sinking of the 5,200 ton British steamer Urla by an Italian submarine was reported by the high command.

British Near Italian Base

(Story in adjoining column.)

British forces yesterday were closing in on Keren, Eritrea, important railroad base for Italian troops who are retreating toward the Red sea. Farther south Italians were reported withdrawing from Barentu. The dark square on the small map shows area covered by large map.

REPORT TEPELENI AFIRE AND GREEK TROOPS AT GATES

Key Point in Valona Drive Shelled 48 Hours.

BITOLJ, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 6 (AP).—Greek warriors are pounding at the very gates of Tepeleni, border dispatches said tonight, after their guns in a 48 hour bombardment had set aflame that Albanian town which commands the road to the Adriatic port of Valona, 28 miles away.

The harassed Italians, trying desperately to stem the Greek advance, were reported to have made attack after attack, only to be thrown back with heavy losses. Even crack Fascist motorized units were used to no avail.

Decisive Engagement.

Gen. Ugo Cavallero of Italy has thrown everything he has into the battle of Tepeleni because he realizes the fate of the entire Fascist venture in Albania hinges on success or failure there, Greek sources say.

In the Devol valley sector, in central Albania, the Greeks and Italians fought toe to toe with bayonets thruout the day, advices reaching here said, with considerable losses on both sides and without change in original positions. Greeks here reported their forces in the last 10 days had dislodged the Italians from more than 40 square miles of territory.

Smash Italian Tanks.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 6 (AP).—Six tanks and armored cars of an Italian formation were destroyed and the commanding officer of the unit was killed, a Greek government spokesman reported today, when Greeks hurled back a counterattack on their lines in the Klisura sector of the Albanian front.

The spokesman said a subsequent attack on a smaller scale a few hours later likewise was repulsed by heavy machine gun fire.

Prisoners, including the drivers and crews of the tanks and armored cars, were captured, the report continued.

"Our army is engaged in cleaning up the terrain despite rains," the spokesman said, adding that this was in contrast to Italian reports that operations were hampered by bad weather.

Rome Reports Patrol Activity.

ROME, Feb. 6 (AP).—Bad weather was reported by the Italian high command today to have limited operations on the Albania battle front yesterday to artillery and patrol activity.

CHARGES BRITISH PRESS PUT UNDER 'SECRET TERROR'

Papers Warned but Not Told the Reasons.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Geoffrey Mander, a Liberal, charged in the house of commons today that a government spokesman has used official pressure to persuade the Daily Mirror and the Sunday Pictorial to change their "political attitude."

The papers, which have large circulations, recently have been bitterly critical of the so-called "old gang of Munichers" and have advocated an immediate statement by the government on its war aims.

Should Have Explanation.

Mander declared that unofficial representations had been made to the two papers and then when their publishers saw Lord Privy Seal Clement R. Attlee, he told them "their activities were subversive" but refused any specific designation of what was objectionable.

Mander asserted it was reasonable "that a newspaper be told in what way its activities were considered prejudicial to the public interest."

Aneurin Bevan, a Laborite, said the government should prosecute any newspapers for improper behavior rather than use "this weapon of secret terror."

Makes Position Uncertain?

Prime Minister Churchill protested that the argument seemed to be that the government was not entitled "even unofficially to have confidential conversations with the owners and controllers of newspapers," which he said was a "foolish idea."

Ernest Shinwell, a Laborite, asked whether such confidential conversations did not make the "position of the press somewhat uncertain."

Churchill replied that this was "absurd," and insisted that cabinet ministers have a perfect right to "talk to the newspaper people." He suggested that "very considerable latitude should be allowed [the ministers] on such occasions."

FLEET UNCHALLENGED IN BRITISH SWEEP OF MEDITERRANEAN AREA

BY LARRY ALLEN.

ABOARD A BATTLESHIP WITH THE BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, Feb. 6 (AP).—Britain's war fleet has just swept a broad area of the Mediterranean without sighting a single hostile dive bomber or warship. Destroyers have sent depth charges after submarines but the results were not learned. This was the only action.

British authorities said repeated aerial attacks on the German dive bomber bases in southern Sicily, and the destruction of dozens of Axis planes over Malta, have seriously interfered with any aspirations the German airmen may have had of duplicating their mass attack of Jan. 10, when they damaged the aircraft carrier Illustrious and bombed the cruiser Southampton so severely it later had to be sunk by the British themselves.

There are reports that the Italians are arming the merchantman Rex and other liners for use as troop transports. This, the British believe, means that an attempt to dispatch both German and Italian troops to Tripoli, in Libya, is being considered.

In Blackout Anything Can Happen, Including—

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ARRAS, France, Feb. 6.—Hearing cries for help, Mrs. Maurice Lesecq plunged into the river Lys last night and saved the life of a man. When she struggled back to shore and began administering first aid she discovered that the man was her husband. He had walked into the river during the blackout.

ROMAN STUDENTS SHOUT, DOWN WITH DEMOCRACY

ROME, Feb. 6 (AP).—Several hundred students, shouting "down with democracy!" and crying "vivas" for Mussolini, Hitler, and Italy's king, marched today from the tomb of the Italian Unknown Soldier, thru Rome's principal streets toward the American embassy, but turned into a side street without passing the embassy itself.

Some persons reported that anti-American shouts were heard, but no actual hearers of such cries could be found, while the demonstrators themselves said they were protesting against Britain and not America. The official Italian news agency Stefani said the demonstration was one of "disdain" for the "nonsense" of the London radio—which has alleged that riots have taken place in Rome—and intended also to show "the most lively solidarity for the Italian and German comrades."

DONOVAN KEPT OUT OF SYRIA BY FRENCH, REPORT

British Plane Takes Him to Jerusalem.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 6 (AP).—Col. William J. Donovan, the American observer who is traveling extensively in southeastern Europe and the Near East, has been prevented from traveling thru Syria by orders of the French government at Vichy, a reliable informant said today.

Donovan, who is now in Jerusalem, left Ankara Monday night. He had a visa which would have enabled him to go thru Syria to the Holy Land.

Just before he boarded the train, however, a French embassy official arrived at the station, it was reported, and announced that he had received a cable from Vichy which said that under no circumstances should Donovan be permitted to traverse Syria.

Flies in British Plane.

As a result, the colonel and his party hastily rearranged their schedule, went by train to Adana, in southern Turkey, and from there were flown to Palestine, via the British island of Cyprus, by Lord Forbes, assistant British air attachè in Athens. The plane avoided Syrian territory.

Cancellation of Donovan's visa appeared to reflect a new French policy, for, in recent months, the French have granted numerous visas to Americans in Turkey, including officials of the United States embassy.

[The eventual position of the untested French army in Syria, like that in north and west Africa, is nebulous, but both Gen. Maxime Weygand in Africa and Gen. Henri Dentz in Syria have called upon soldiers and civilians to obey Chief of State Petain at Vichy rather than be swayed by "Free French" appeals from London. Syria might become a battleground if Germany should try to strike at the Suez canal thru southeastern Europe and the Levant.]

Planned One Day in Syria.

Donovan had planned to spend only a day in Syria. He is accompanied on his trip by Commander Richard Tuggle, United States naval attaché in Turkey, and a British army colonel who came with him from Athens.

Turkish newspapers have viewed Donovan's southeastern Europe tour as a means of bolstering Bulgarian and Jugo-Slav resistance to axis pressure. They believed he expressed assurance in those countries that President Roosevelt would give the British all aid possible.

Donovan, who has no apparent official status, arrived in Europe in December and has been in Egypt, British occupied Libya, Bulgaria, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, and Turkey. In Sofia he lost his diplomatic passport.

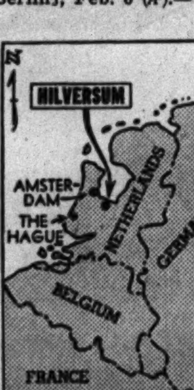
Diplomatic Detour

(Story in adjoining column.)

Intended route and route actually taken from Turkey to Palestine by Col. William J. Donovan, American observer. Reliable sources said he had been prevented from passing thru Syria by French government.

NAZIS ARREST 35 AS 'HOSTAGES' IN A HOLLAND CITY

THE HAGUE, the Netherlands [via Berlin], Feb. 6 (AP).—The arrest of 35 residents of Hilversum as "hostages" for the wounding of a German soldier was announced tonight by the German authorities.



Arrow locates city where citizens are held hostages.

There were indications that there would be more arrests. The Germans said the soldier was shot from ambush. Hilversum is a city of 72,000 population.

The Germans are operating on the principle that whole communities can be held responsible for the acts of sabotage of a few persons, the theory being that local authorities and all citizens must coöperate to impose discipline to suppress any hostile attitude which may exist toward the German occupation troops. In similar situations recently fines have been imposed on whole communities.

A more stringent attitude also was taken by the Germans toward trespassing on military zones. A sentry was reported to have killed a civilian on a military reservation near The Hague.

REDS TO EXECUTE WHITE RUSSIAN SEIZED IN POLAND

MOSCOW, Feb. 6 (AP).—More than 20 years after the Russian civil war, Col. Anany Volynetz has been sentenced to death before a firing squad on charges of leading a White Russian band which killed 340 persons, it was disclosed today.

Volynetz, who fled into Poland after the war, was captured at Rovno when the soviets incorporated the western Ukraine in September, 1939, and was tried at Kiev.

Witnesses testified that he was the leader of White Russians who killed 300 persons in an attack on the town of Gaisin on June 5, 1919. In another raid on the village of Kublich, they testified, he tortured 26 persons to obtain contributions, and hanged 40.

RUMANIA STRIKES AT REBELS WITH DEATH DECREES

Fears Fresh Outbreaks; Hunts Leader.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 6 (AP).—Premier Ion Antonescu struck at the rebellious Iron Guard with startling death decrees today as rumors spread that Horia Sima, leader of the bloody revolt of Jan. 21-23, was plotting a new insurrection as a fugitive.

Horia Sima.

Antonescu apparently was convinced that any fresh outbreak would include another attempt at his assassination, for he was reported to have designated one of Rumania's outstanding army leaders to succeed him in event of his death. The name of the general was kept secret.

Thousands of soldiers, armed with submachine guns and escorted by tanks, hunted Sima.

Search All Homes.

Every dwelling of the capital was searched from cellar to attic as authorities sought to run down the leader who at various times has been reported captured, executed, escaped to Russia and still in hiding.

Antonescu took cognizance of the rumors that Sima still is at large by his series of decrees, which provided the most drastic criminal code in Rumanian history.

The death penalty was provided for persons hiding the revolt leader, helping him escape from the country or failing to inform authorities of a plot and for any civilian found with weapons or explosives.

The same penalty also was decreed for anyone engaging in demonstrations, firing on soldiers or public buildings, attempting to kill the king, fomenting army rebellion, wearing a uniform illegally, or permitting a sniper to fire from his windows.

Political Songs Banned.

Altogether 20 crimes were made punishable by death, including even writing antigovernment articles, drawing antigovernment cartoons, or singing political songs.

From one to five years imprisonment was provided for parents whose children are convicted of crimes. [In the Iron Guard revolt, one machine gun was manned by a 12 year old boy.]

The decrees were directed with especial rigor at communists, Jews, and persons of non-Rumanian origin. Prison terms were ordered doubled for them. The death penalty was threatened for persons promising redistribution of property or ending of taxation.

CHINESE CLAIM 4,000 JAPANESE SLAIN IN BATTLE

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 6 (AP).—Central [Chinese] news agency dispatches today reported at least 4,000 Japanese soldiers were killed in a battle between advance Japanese units and Chinese troops near Nanyang, important city in southwestern Honan province. The agency said the Japanese, who had advanced northward along the Peiping-Hankow railway, are retreating rapidly southward.

Claim Supply Line Cut.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONGKONG, Feb. 6.—Japanese sources today claimed that as a result of operations in southeast Kwangtung province and the occupation of Shuyuchung, near Hongkong, they have cut off a Chinese supply route to Chungking which has been more important than the Burma road.

They said 1,200 tins of gasoline, about 2 tons of gunpowder, and other war materials en route to Shuyuchung were captured.

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 6 (AP).—Mrs. John C. Wilson, former Princess Paley of Russia and described as one of the world's best dressed women, today was an American citizen. The granddaughter of the late Emperor Alexander II. was naturalized here yesterday. Earlier, when she applied for her second papers, Mrs. Wilson appeared in court dressed in a red, white, and blue outfit.

HOOVER TO PLEAD FOR FOOD TO HELP STARVING EUROPE

Speaks Here at Rally on Feb. 16.

A plea for America to feed the starving millions in the conquered countries of Europe will be made by former President Herbert Hoover in the Auditorium theater Sunday evening, Feb. 16.

The National Committee on Food for the Five Small Democracies, of which Chauncey McCormick is midwestern chairman, is sponsoring the meeting. The public is invited.

Hoover, with the permission of the German government, has sent trained investigators into Finland, Norway, Belgium, Holland, and central Poland to report on the people's needs. They have sent back word that shortage of food and medical supplies are more severe than during the world war and that unless help is forthcoming immeditely 37,000,000 face actual starvation.

Seeks to Lift Blockade.

In a statement made public yesterday the former President said that the problem of the national committee is to set up a program under which the British will lift their continental blockade and the Germans in occupied territory will permit distribution of foodstuffs.

"Unless some sort of method can be arranged with the belligerent governments the world will witness the death or stunting of millions of children," Hoover declared. "As famine and disease rise, the cries of these people will ascend above any war hysteria, press censorship or government official.

Push Concerted Drive.

"In America we have 10 or 12 million citizens who are of these racial stocks. They have already organized many relief committees seeking to aid. They will not be silenced in the demand for relief for their people."

McCormick said the committee does not ask for funds or supplies but seeks only to educate the people to the need for an effective program for saving babies and children.

Others expected to speak at the meeting are the Most Rev. Thomas P. Bona, Rabbi Charles E. Shulman, and Dr. Preston Bradley.

BURGLAR SHOT, CAPTURED.

Thomas Griffin, 19 years old, 212 East 54th street, was shot and captured, and his companion escaped when Fred Seaberry surprised them while looting his grocery at 4644 Langley avenue early yesterday. All are colored.

DARLAN CARRIES PETAIN PROPOSAL TO LAVAL IN PARIS

Believe Government Crisis Nearer Solution.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Feb. 6.—Vichy's government crisis appeared to have advanced another stage toward settlement today. Admiral Jean Darlan, minister of marine and Marshal Petain's principal consultant, left Vichy for Paris this morning and was expected to resume his negotiations with Pierre Laval, former vice premier, on Laval's terms for his return to the government.

Darlan is carrying counterproposals, drafted after last night's cabinet meeting here, to demands which Laval has made for resuming his place Laval's conditions for return were conveyed to Darlan in Paris on Tuesday and the admiral brought them back to Vichy Wednesday.

Petain May Address Nation.

It was expected in Vichy that if Darlan and Laval iron out the differences between Laval's demands and the marshal's counterproposals, Petain would talk over the radio on Friday or Saturday to the nation, and that Laval would return to Vichy in a few days.

The impression in Vichy was that a settlement will be reached, and that a way will be quickly paved for working out a definite peace between France and Germany before the end of hostilities with England.

The settlement now being negotiated, it was believed, will involve Marshal Petain's assumption of a position more as chief of state, and less as a head of the government, altho the exact nature of the counterproposals is still secret.

In this case, the question is whether Laval or Darlan would become premier. Indications are that the marshal's counterproposals suggest Darlan become chief minister or premier, while Laval should become minister of interior, and also special negotiator with the Germans.

Petain Still Supreme.

The question is whether Laval will accede to this. It was learned that Laval on Tuesday proposed to Darlan that he should himself be premier, and also that the other ministers should be responsible to him rather than to the marshal, who would, however, remain over all and, in accordance with the new constitutional act No. 7, be able to oust the whole works if he chooses.

Most informed observers predicted a four man group as likely to emerge from the crisis, consisting of Darlan, Laval, Gen. Charles Huntziger, war minister, and a fourth person as yet unknown. It did not seem probable that either Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin or Interior Minister Marcel Peyrouton would remain in the new combination.

Grain Ship Runs Blockade from Brazil to Germany

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Feb. 6 (AP).—Agents of the 6,062 ton German freighter Rio Grande said today they had received information that it had run the British blockade and arrived in Hamburg with a load of grain and other supplies. The ship sailed on Nov. 30 from Rio Grande do Sul after several previous efforts to get away. This left 7 German and 19 Italian ships still in Brazilian ports.

COL. M'CORMICK SHOWS BARRIERS TO U. S. INVASION

Tells Senators Fear of Attack Is Fantastic.

difficult it would be for an air attack to come over these routes. That would not necessarily be true if the attacking power had naval power so as to be able to establish bases in South America, would it? You are presupposing a purely land and air attack, are you not? A.—We should have a base in the Azores which would cut Dakar off.

British Control Azores.

Q.—We have not, have we? A.—I cannot answer that. We certainly have commercial aviation flying to the Azores and the British have control of the Azores. Undoubtedly we could make an arrangement with them like the one made for the other bases.

Q.—We probably could, but we haven't done so yet. What I am getting at is that your hypothesis is based upon the assumption that that would be a land and air attack without naval power. Is that true? A.—No. We could stop the naval occupation of Dakar.

Q.—They would not have to be bothered with Dakar, would they? They could go over to South America if they had a sufficient navy? A.—They would have to meet our air force and our navy. We have these bases, thank heaven.

Q.—They could give us a great deal of trouble if they had the British fleet, could they not? A.—Senator, I have known Winston Churchill for 25 years. A more thoroly honorable man never lived. He would not have made that promise if he had not intended to keep it.

[Prime Minister Churchill in June, 1940, told the house of commons that the British navy would never be surrendered to a foreign foe.]

Invader Needs Largest Force.

Q.—Mr. Churchill might be bombed or killed or captured if England should fall. Are you hinging the whole safety of the United States on the good faith of Mr. Churchill? A.—No, indeed; certainly not. We could stop the fleet anyway.

Q.—So that to meet any power with a fleet and air power we would also have to have a fleet that would support our navy, would we not? A.—No. An invader needs a distinctly larger force.

Q.—You are in favor of a big navy, are you not? A.—My first ambition was to be a naval officer.

Q.—I am sure you would have made a good one, Colonel. You are in favor of a two ocean navy? A.—I do not think it is a military necessity.

Effective as Two Navies.

Q.—You said that with the Panama canal a one ocean navy was in fact a two ocean navy, did you not? A.—Not exactly. I said it was as effective. A one ocean navy using the Panama canal is as effective as two navies which have not the use of it—what they call the principle of economy of forces.

Q.—We could not have the navy on both sides at the same time. We would have to divide it, would we not? A.—O, no; stand on the defensive with our outposts in one ocean and fight with the navy in the other ocean.

Q.—You do not express any opinion on the bill as such, I understand? A.—No, I do not care to.

Difficulties for Germany.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] had but one question to ask:

"In assessing the possibility of attack upon us by a victorious Germany is there not a further factor? Would not Germany find at her back a mass of sullen millions of resentful, subjugated peoples who would make it exceedingly difficult for her to proceed in our direction?

"I think that is very true. Yes," Col. McCormick replied.

Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] began his questioning of Col. McCormick with this query:

"What would be your attitude as to the policy of this country if Hitler should conquer England and proceed to take over and occupy the British bases in what is regarded as this hemisphere?"

"I would not let him do it," was the answer.

Would Attack Hitler.

Q.—What would you do to prevent it? A.—Attack him.

Q.—Suppose that Hitler were to get Laval into the position of premier of France and were to order the French fleet to occupy French bases in this hemisphere? A.—I would not let him.

Q.—You would recommend that your country's navy attack those bases? A.—My policy would be to acquire them in advance—all the foreign owned islands in this hemisphere.

Q.—By what method? A.—By purchase.

Q.—Suppose Laval said he did not care to sell the French bases and French colonies in the western hemisphere, what would you do? A.—I would follow out Gen. Grant's policy in which he said that on account of the Alabama claims, if necessary he would take possession of British territory on this continent in payment for them.

[The Alabama claims grew out of Britain's outfitting of the commerce destroyer Alabama during the civil war and a subsequent award of damages in favor of the United States by an international court.]

Q.—You would just go and occupy them by force, then? A.—I certainly would.

Q.—What would be the effect of such an action upon Hitler? A.—I could not tell you.

Q.—Let us assume then that the same answer applies to the Bermudas—if Hitler were to conquer England and occupied, thru the guise of a puppet British government, the Bermudas. A.—We already have occupied Bermuda, thank heaven.

Q.—To whom do the Azores belong? A.—To Portugal.

Q.—Suppose Hitler should capture and occupy Portugal and set up a puppet government in Portugal. What would you recommend this country to do about the Azores? A.—I would get there first.

Q.—You think that would be a policy calculated to keep the peace of the United States? A.—Yes, I think so.

Q.—Wouldn't Hitler do anything to resist? A.—I think England will make an arrangement with us to occupy the Azores. You understand that England has the right.

Q.—If Hitler conquered both England and Portugal and decided there should be a Hitler base at the Azores, what would you do? A.—Get there first. Just as Gen. Jackson did in Florida. I would go right in and take them. That is how we got Florida.

Q.—Suppose Hitler declared war on us for occupying the Azores? A.—Then we should have a fight. These Germans are not so tough. I have been up against them and there is no use being scared of them.

Q.—I am somewhat encouraged by your testimony. You would, then, protect American interests whether Hitler liked it or not? A.—I would.

Q.—What if the axis powers were heading for Dakar to occupy it? A.—That is a hard question to answer, senator, because on getting farther away from home it is harder to hold those positions. Dakar might be too far away for us to hold.

Naval Strength Doubted.

Senator Pepper put a question based upon the assumption that Hitler had taken over the fleets of Italy, France, and Britain and added them to his own.

"I do not believe your naval advisers will say that the fleets of Britain, and Italy, and France are stronger than ours," said Col. McCormick. "We do not know how many of them are still floating. There have been a good many sunk."

"We might add the Japanese fleet," said Pepper.

"I could hardly assume that the Japanese would send their fleet to the Atlantic. As for the Italian fleet, it is mostly on the bottom."

"Did you understand that Mussolini promised Hitler all aid short of war?"

There was laughter in the audience as the witness remarked:

"I heard the Italians have a new secret weapon—it is the German army."

Col. McCormick said that if it could be assumed that the British, French, Italian, and German navies were combined and in control of the Cape Verde Islands the United States probably would have to act on the defensive. If our fleet were able to get to the Azores first and occupy them, he added, it could defend them against the combined naval strength of the navies mentioned.

Won't Conquer Britain.

"I would like to get to the Azores right away," he told Pepper. "The British would be glad to have us."

Q.—But suppose Hitler had conquered Britain? A.—They are not going to conquer Britain.

Q.—The British do not own the Azores, do they? A.—They have a right to occupy them. They did 23 years ago. We based our navy on the Azores in the war of 1917-'18.

Q.—You said England was not going to be conquered. Do you think she has the means of producing enough materials of war to continue to defend herself against Hitler without aid from this country? A.—I am certain of it.

Q.—You do not think Britain, then, needs to buy or acquire any more war materials from the United States in order to defend herself? A.—If Britain were in any serious danger of invasion, can you imagine her sending a huge motorized army corps to Libya? Would she not keep those machines in England? That is the evidence to me.

Needs U. S. Troops for Invasion.

Q.—So you think it would be all right for us to cut now the arteries of supply to England? A.—If there is to be an invasion of the continent she will need many munitions from this country and several million men—and I am against that. I am willing to furnish material to Britain for her own defense but not to carry a great and terrible war to the continent of Europe. She should have whatever she needs for defense—and I do not think she needs anything.

Q.—Would you put your judgment as a criterion on that matter or would you take the British idea of their own need as the criterion? A.—I would use my own judgment.

Sure U. S. Can Defend Self.

Senator Clark concluded the questioning of Col. McCormick.

"When you were being questioned by Senator Pepper," he said, "there was some discussion about the occupation of the Azores. You did not mean, or did you mean to leave the impression that the defense of the United States was dependent or contingent upon our occupation of the Azores?"

"No," was the answer. "It would be improved; that is all."

Q.—It might be improved, but you have no doubt of the ability of the United States to defend itself, its own shores, whether we occupy the Azores or not, do you? A.—No, I do not doubt it.

Q.—Now, Colonel, something was said by Senator Pepper and others about the matter of bases in these islands off the coast of the Americas. In view of the fact that the British owed us over 5 billion dollars when this war started, do you not think it would be only a matter of fairness for the British to turn those islands over to us without asking for a half or other part of our navy as compensation for it? A.—I think it would be very nice if they would.

Q.—In the event of any danger coming to the United States thru failure of Great Britain, and in view of the complete victory over France, would you say we were in much better position to attack those islands than anybody else that could come over here to them? A.—We should take them very quickly.

If Hitler Overruns England.

Q.—Do you not think we ought to do that in the event contingencies develop in any such fashion as that? A.—I would not want to take them from England by force; no.

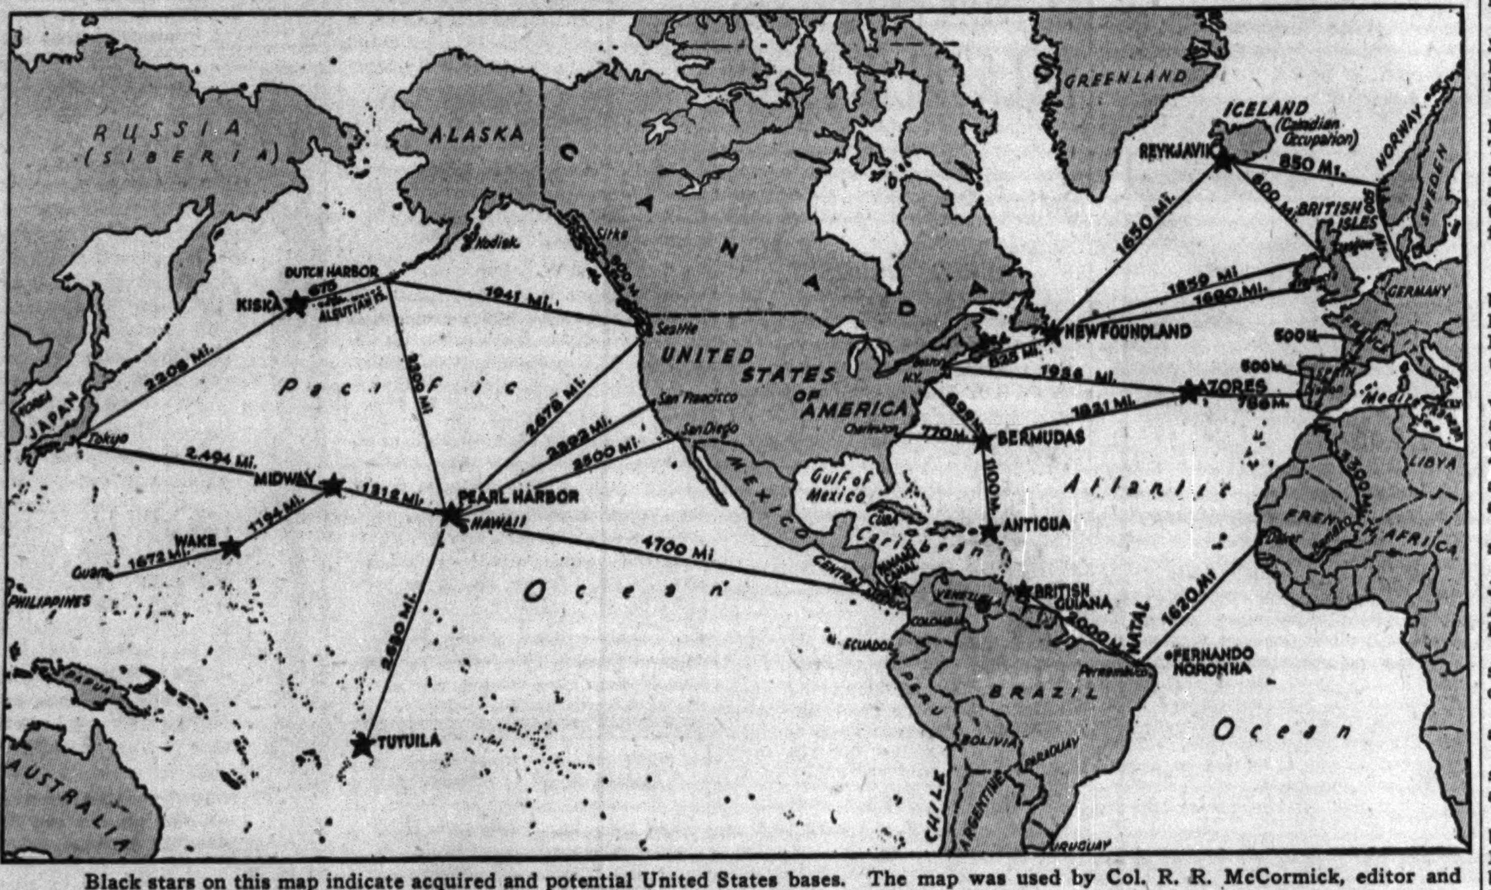
Q.—Suppose England were to be overrun by Hitler, a picture that is being painted here every day—suppose England were overrun by Germany, would we not be justified in going down to take those islands? A.—Then, we would have to do it.

Q.—Of course—to take Martinique and any other French possessions? A.—Absolutely. We would have to do it.

Senator Carter Glass [D., Va.], who has advocated an immediate declaration of war against Germany, was asked if he had any questions.

"I think," said Glass, "that if things are as serene as Col. McCormick imagines, the congress ought to pass the normal appropriations and go home."

Map Used by Col. McCormick to Illustrate Statement



Black stars on this map indicate acquired and potential United States bases. The map was used by Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Chicago Tribune, to illustrate his statement yesterday before the senate foreign relations committee, which is considering the lease-lend bill.

Text of Col. McCormick's Statement

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6.—Following is the prepared statement by Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Chicago Tribune, given to the senate foreign relations committee today:

"At the time I received Senator Johnson's invitation to appear before your honorable body, there had been some mention of the danger of attack on us thru South America. I decided to accept the invitation because I happen to have personal knowledge of a considerable part of the ground over which such attack would come, and second hand information of the most reliable kind about the rest of it. I have also traveled extensively in eastern Canada, in Newfoundland, and Labrador.

"It is 500 miles by map from the German frontier to the boundary between France and Spain. This country is well served with railroads and highroads but, as we know, is pretty well exhausted of foodstuffs.

Roads in Poor Condition.

"From the French-Spanish boundary to Cadiz is 500 miles on the map, but because of the mountainous region, much farther by road. The roads and railroads were of poor quality when I was there, and are much worse since the civil war. They would need much work to make them capable of carrying large numbers of troops, their equipment, and their supplies.

"Spain is now on the verge of starvation. Whatever the disposition of the government might be toward a German expedition across Spain, we know that the Spanish people is antagonistic toward foreign armies, and is stubborn and remorseless in guerrilla warfare. Spain broke Napoleon. Hitler might not wish to add her to his problems.

"Northern Morocco and Algiers are very mountainous. During the Moroccan war, there were some primitive railroads, and the French were building macadamized highways for the use of the small armies employed against the Moors. There is a road 2,500 miles across the desert as far as Bamako and a jungle railroad 800 miles long to Dakar. No supplies of any kind can be found in the desert, of course.

3,300 Mile Trek to Dakar.

"To reach Dakar, therefore, an army would have to pass 500 miles thru France, 500 miles thru Spain, cross the straits, and then travel 3,300 miles thru the mountains, desert, and jungle of equatorial Africa.

"It is plain, therefore, that it will be utterly impracticable for Germany to concentrate a force of any size at Dakar. If we proceed on the assumption that only an air base is to be maintained at Dakar, still we have the great problem of supplying it either overland or by air transport.

"If we pretend that this has been done, the Cape Verde Islands are only a few miles away. They belong to Portugal, and Great Britain has the right, by treaty, to use all Portuguese territory. It will be much easier to supply an air fleet at the Cape Verde Islands by sea than to supply one at Dakar by air or overland transportation from Germany. An air fleet based on Cape Verde Islands should easily destroy one at Dakar.

Still 1,620 Miles to Natal.

"If this form of defense should be neglected it is still 1,620 miles from Dakar to Natal in South America. If an air force had advanced that far it would now have a line of supplies 500 miles thru hostile France, on good roads, and 500 miles thru dangerous Spain, on poor roads; 3,300 miles across the mountains, desert, and jungle of Africa, and then 1,620 miles by air across the Atlantic ocean.

"From Natal to Georgetown, our farthest southern flying base, is 2,000 miles over the Brazilian equatorial jungle. To reach Georgetown the German air force would have traveled over 7,900 miles to meet our own air force, amply supplied with its line of communication thru the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea, protected by our West Indies possessions. Our pilots would be rested and our engines unworn.

"I cannot conceive of any one having the slightest fear of an attack along this line, if he has any respect at all for our own air force.

Iceland Route Blocked.

"If it is imagined that this continent is to be invaded by water or by air we must conclude the attack will come across the northern Atlantic. The route would be Iceland, 850 miles; Newfoundland, 1,650 miles more, and Canada, another 800 miles; total distance 3,300 miles. Iceland is now held by Canadian troops, so the route is blocked at first base. If Iceland were lost, south Greenland and Labrador would be of no use to an invader because of their rough character. On Newfoundland is a great Canadian-British air base, and our own soldiers have already landed on the island where Lord Baltimore settled before he went to Maryland.

"Supplies would easily reach Newfoundland by the St. Lawrence, immune from interruption, while any assailant crossing the ocean would be subject to attack from the air, on the water, and from submarines.

"It is an hysterical imagination which can conceive of our being driven from Newfoundland. Even if we were, the enemy would find no supplies in that barren land. There would be Cabot Strait to cross, and the Gut of Canso. Nova Scotia is a peninsula with a narrow neck, and New Brunswick largely forest and muskeg.

"Can any one dream of an enemy forcing his way thru this country in face of one or two million trained American and Canadian troops?

Fears Called Fantastic.

"In the Pacific we have our bases in the Aleutian Islands, 2,200 miles from Tokio; at Pearl Harbor, 3,800 miles from Tokio; and Samoa, 4,000 miles from Tokio. If we need any other island bases, to protect our coast, we have the means of taking them and the knowledge that we will be welcomed by their inhabitants. Behind these outposts we have the Panama canal, so that we can move our own fleet from ocean to ocean, which makes a one-ocean navy strategically equal to two navies denied the Panama canal. It is fantastic to suggest that we are in any danger of attack.

"Even if we did not have these overwhelming strategical advantages, this panic over possible German attack would not be justified.

"We went overseas twenty-three years ago to attack the German army and were not overwhelmed.

"Our victory, however, was won at bitter cost. The two divisions which were the most heavily engaged lost three men in killed, wounded, and broken by hardships for every man they contained on their mustering days. Many of these ruined men are still in the hospitals, or are suffering on their modest government compensation. Nobody ever gives a ball or a cocktail party for them.

Distant Wars Dangerous.

"There are young men of the same stripe today who, if forced to war abroad, will fight as the old army fought, and suffer as the old army is suffering. The experience of the Athenians at Syracuse, the Romans in Germany, Napoleon in Egypt, and the Russians in Manchuria shows that the greatest catastrophies come to navies, armies, and nations that embark on distant military adventures.

"I pray to God that hysteria, propaganda, and ambition will not become strong enough to immolate our present generation of young men."

AID BRITAIN PLAN IS A 'WAR BILL,' MACNIDER SAYS

Opposes Measure Before Senate Committee.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Hanford MacNider, former minister to Canada, told the senate foreign relations committee today that the British aid bill was a "war bill—permissive perhaps, but a war bill."

MacNider, who also is a former assistant secretary of war and a former commander of the American Legion, asserted that the measure "commits America definitely to the very governmental procedure which it deplores in other and less fortunate lands" and "undermines our heritage as free men in an attempt to save it for others."

People Entitled to Know.

"What could we do if this bill were passed," he said, "beyond what we are doing now to help Britain before this supposedly impending crisis? Nothing, unless we send them our navy and air force. That, then, must be the intent behind this bill. The American people have the right to know whether the answer to that is yes or no. Such action means war, and before we are thru, make no mistake, total war."

MacNider contended that congress was being asked to "surrender its constitutional mandates of making alliances and declaring war."

"Is there anything sought by this legislation," he inquired, "which the congress could not provide in the American way without abandoning their sworn obligations?"

Talks About Treason.

MacNider argued that Britain would not get a "single additional airplane, gun, tank, or shell" because of the bill "unless there is an intention of giving up arms, planes, and ships now in possession of or building for our own defense forces."

"If the emergency is half as grave as the President's spokesmen say it is," he continued, "stripping our army and navy of their weapons at such a time would be nothing short of treason. If the 60 to 90 day crisis about of which we have heard so much proves to be a fact, might we not find them later all returning with their business ends pointed our way?"

Flirt with War Dangers.

O. K. Armstrong of Springfield, Mo., formerly field director for the No Foreign War committee who also testified, asserted that the United States should determine what it intended to defend, and asked:

"Does any patriotic American doubt we could do it?"

HELPING BRITAIN PROLONGS WAR, SAYS LINDBERGH

It Also Weakens Our Own Defense, Senate Told.

Reveals Dictator Fears.

He was told that some people were puzzled over his apparent lack of indignation about wrongs committed by Germany. He answered that nothing was to be gained by publicly expressing views on one side of a war in which this country was not involved. Aggression, he added, was to be condemned, but it had happened before and would probably happen again.

Lindbergh was applauded, and the chairman threatened to clear the room, when he asserted that the trend of the dictatorship bill was more menacing to this country than any danger of invasion.

The flying colonel summed up his attitude in one sentence:

"I oppose anything that will take us into war or that reduces our own forces in America in any appreciable degree."

CROWD CHEERS LINDBERGH

Senator Pepper Reddens at Mention of 1927 Ocean Flight.

The cross-examination of Lindbergh by Senator Pepper, who has assumed a rôle as leading defender of the dictator bill, found the Florida senator attempting to reveal the witness as a pro-Nazi in his sympathies.

"When did you first go to Europe?" asked Pepper.

"Nineteen twenty-seven, sir," said Lindbergh, simply.

At this mention of the date when the "lone eagle" flew the Atlantic alone, the crowd broke into loud cheers while Pepper reddened. Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.] was finally forced to threaten to clear the hearing room if the demonstration did not cease.

"When did you go to Europe the second time and what countries did you visit?" continued Pepper.

In Europe Three Years.

Lindbergh listed all the countries of Europe. He added that he again was in Europe for almost three years, from 1935 to 1938.

"I made seven or eight trips to Germany. I was there about two or three months altogether."

"Why did you go there?"

"I was invited to inspect the air force."

"By whom?"

"Gen. Goering."

Q. Did you receive a German decoration? A. I did. I was requested by the American ambassador to attend a dinner at the American embassy which was intended to promote closer relations between Germany and the United States. When Gen. Goering arrived, he handed me this decoration in a box.

Describes German Decoration.

Q.—What was the nature and significance of this decoration? A.—I believe it was called the "German eagle." That was what Gen. Goering said to me thru a translator.

Q.—Was it a special order? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Where is it now. A.—I still have it—in storage.

Q.—When was the last time you saw Goering. A.—In October, 1938.

Q.—In your conversations with Goering, did he indicate to you that the policy of the German government was aggression? A.—Our conferences were primarily technical. I don't recall him discussing policies but it was perfectly obvious what their plans were.

TOLD OF NAZI AIR MIGHT

Warned Britain Germany Could Beat Any Combination.

Questioned about his visits to England, Lindbergh said he had been invited in 1938 by the American ambassador, Joseph P. Kennedy, to discuss the aviation of the European powers with high British officials.

Q.—It is rumored you carried to the British government a report on the strength of the German air force. A.—I gave them my own estimate on the air strength of the various nations. There was no attempt to discourage France or England. I first gave Mr. Kennedy my estimate of the military air strength of the nations. I put it in writing and I understand it was cabled to the state department in the United States. I then gave British officials the same statement.

Q.—Did you say the German air force was superior? A.—O, yes sir. I said the German air force was stronger than any combination of air forces that could be brought against them.

Q.—That was prior to Munich? A.—Just about that time or before.

Q.—Was Germany warlike or peaceful at that time? A.—They undoubtedly had expansion in mind.

Q.—You mean conquest. A.—Right.

Opposed to Appeasement.

Q.—When will Hitler stop? A.—He'll stop when the strength of the other side is such as to make it unprofitable to go farther.

Pepper intimated that he regarded Lindbergh as an "appeaser."

"I'm against appeasement," was the reply, "but I'm more strongly against an unsuccessful war. I repeat that a much better peace can be negotiated now than later."

The witness added the opinion that the terms of the Munich agreement were dictated more by a knowledge of the German air strength and the strength of the Siegfried line than by appeasement sentiments.

"You'd let Hitler take anything he wanted?" inquired Pepper.

"No, sir," said Lindbergh. "My criticism is that when war was declared, Britain and France couldn't have helped Poland a bit. It would have been disastrous. They should have waited until they were in a position to go to war successfully. They were so weak at the time! France did not then have one pursuit plane that could catch a German bomber. A year later they would have been in better shape."

AGAINST 'BUYING TIME'

Besides, We're Not Using the Time, Says Lindbergh.

Pepper voiced the familiar administration theme that proponents of the bill were "buying time" for the United States to prepare its defenses.

"As an American I'm against buying time by spending British blood," retorted Lindbergh. "Moreover, we're not using this time. We're sending our weapons abroad.

"Even if Britain and France win it's a mistake to think conditions will be the same as before the war. There will be prostration in Europe. And if we get into the war we might have prostration here."

Lindbergh repeated his testimony before the house foreign affairs committee than an air force of 10,000 combat planes plus 10,000 planes in reserve and some 5,000 training planes would be adequate to defend the United States from any invading attempt.

Recalls Other Aggression.

Pepper said he was perplexed by the "absence of any moral indignation" on Lindbergh's part with respect to "the outrages being perpetrated by Hitler."

"I feel," the witness replied, "that nothing is gained by publicly commenting on one side or the other in a war in which your country is not taking part." He expressed his opposition to aggression, but said we must recognize that it has happened thruout the centuries of the past and will happen again in the future.

Lindbergh Testifies

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as he appeared before senate foreign relations committee in Washington yesterday. He denounced the lease-lend bill.

Pepper asked Lindbergh whether he was proud of "the democracy in this country" and wished to see it live.

"I want to see it live as it used to be," Lindbergh said, quietly. Apparently astonished by the answer, Pepper asked the witness to elaborate.

STRIPPING OUR DEFENSE

Says America Is Weaker Today Than One Year Ago.

"I believe that the trend in this country in recent years, particularly as represented in this bill, has been away from democracy and is far more dangerous to the preservation of democracy than any threat of invasion," Lindbergh said.

The spectators applauded vigorously at this juncture and Chairman George again threatened to order the police to clear the room.

Pepper wanted to know whether Lindbergh's opposition to the bill went beyond the discretionary powers it would vest in President Roosevelt. "What I particularly oppose is the stripping of our own defense forces for the benefit of foreign countries," Lindbergh said. "I opposed aid to England that will carry us into the war or that will weaken our own defense forces to any appreciable extent."

Contends U. S. Weakened.

In response to further questions by Pepper, the witness said the United States is weaker today, particularly in air power, than it was a year ago. When Pepper insisted that the country has made progress in aircraft production facilities, Lindbergh replied:

"Production facilities have increased, but in relation to the German air force, our own air force today is weaker than it was a year ago because of the release of planes to foreign countries."

Later, in response to questions by Senator Clark, Lindbergh declared that "the state of our air force is deplorable" and that "we have incredibly few modern aircraft."

"It is well known," he said, "that most of our plane production has been sent abroad and that most of the planes on hand are obsolete."

Sees Dictator Trend.

Senator Pepper quoted from a radio speech in which Lindbergh accused the Roosevelt administration of hypocrisy in haranguing the people about "democracy" while proceeding in the direction of totalitarianism. "Do you really mean that?" Pepper asked.

"Yes, sir; I was speaking about the administration," Lindbergh said. Questioned further, he said he included President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, and "every one in the government."

Pepper wanted to know whether the United States would be weaker or stronger if England should collapse and be placed in the hands of a Nazi controled puppet government.

"We'd be stronger than we would be if we attempted to interfere," Lindbergh said.

PROLONGING THE WAR

Flyer Says United States Cannot Alter the Course.

Lindbergh repeatedly expressed the opinion that the United States could not change the trend of the war by giving material support to England. By furnishing materials we are merely prolonging the war and the bloodshed without altering its course, he said.

Senator Carter Glass [D., Va.], the only interventionist in congress who asserts frankly that he favors a declaration of war against Germany, challenged Lindbergh's contention that the Roosevelt administration encouraged the war in Europe. "What did this government do?" he asked.

Lindbergh said the administration's attitude was well known to the European governments before the outbreak of the war and that these governments led their own people to believe that help would be forthcoming from the United States.

Expresses His Alarm.

"The attitude of this government," Lindbergh said, "was much like the attitude here today that opposes a negotiated peace."

"Has the President ever made a single utterance in which he did not say he was opposed to wars?" Senator Glass asked.

"No, sir," Lindbergh replied, "but in the light of events since the President made his 'quarantine' speech in 1937 I have become greatly alarmed."

"You think the President has changed his mind or might change his mind?" Glass persisted.

"Yes, sir," Lindbergh replied.

"Yes, so do I," Glass commented. The audience laughed uproariously. Glass, however, insisted that he alone is "the only person I know who's in favor of war."

Col. Lindbergh said he opposed the bill for two reasons: it was a step away from the American system of government and it represented a policy which would weaken rather than strengthen the nation. He announced he would center his discussion on the latter point.

"I shall have to speak with the utmost frankness in order to make my position clear," he told the committee. "'If my discussion seems materialistic, it is because war is materialistic and must be met, at least for the moment, with material measures. No one deplores this fact more than I. Possibly if our outlook had been more spiritual during the years of peace, it would not have to be so material today."

SEES PROSTRATION, FAMINE

England Cannot Win Without War on Continent.

Referring presumably to interpretations of his testimony two weeks ago before the house committee on foreign affairs, Lindbergh declared with emphasis:

"I would like to say that I have never taken the stand that it makes no difference to us who wins this war in Europe. It does make a difference to us—a great difference. But I do not believe that it is either possible or desirable for us in America to control the outcome of European wars."

It would be easy for him to say that he hoped the English would win the war, Lindbergh remarked.

"But, gentlemen," he continued, "an English victory, if it were possible at all, would necessitate years of war and an invasion of the continent of Europe. I believe this would create prostration, famine, and disease in Europe—and probably in America—such as the whole world has never experienced before. That is why I say that I prefer a negotiated peace to a complete victory by either side."

Doubts England Can Win.

The bill, he said, was obviously the most recent step in a policy which attempts to obtain security for America by controlling internal conditions in Europe.

"The policy of depleting our forces to aid England is based upon the assumption that England will win this war," he said. "Personally, I do not believe that England is in a position to win the war. If she does not win, we will be responsible for futilely prolonging the war and adding to the bloodshed and devastation in Europe, particularly among the democracies."

His studies of European aviation in 1936, 1937, and 1938, forced him to the conclusion, Lindbergh said, that Germany was the natural air power of Europe just as England was the natural sea power.

"I concluded that the United States was the only nation in the world capable of equaling or excelling Germany in aviation," he declared, "but since we, in America, had specialized in commercial aviation, it was obvious to me that Germany had a lead in military aviation that could not be overcome in less than several years."

'NECK ACROSS SEA'

"I Do Not See How We Can Maintain Such a Bridgehead."

The witness noted the great advantages possessed by the German air force over England in the European war because of numerous air bases on the continent extending almost in a semicircle around the British Isles. He cited the ease with which London can be bombed in comparison with the difficulty involved in bombing Berlin.

Regardless of how much assistance this nation sends, it will not be possible for American and British aviation, concentrated in the small area of the British Isles, to equal the strength of German aviation with unlimited bases thruout the continent of Europe, he asserted.

"If we follow the policy represented by this bill," he said, "we will find ourselves with the American neck stretched clear across the Atlantic ocean. If we establish such a bridgehead, we must make every effort to maintain it. In that I do not see how we can be successful."

Raises Supply Question.

Even if England holds out for several years, Lindbergh said, and the United States builds an air force exceeding Germany's the problem of transporting that air strength to the British Isles remains. Many planes might be flown to England but the fuel and supplies to maintain them would have to be sent in surface ships which would be subject to bombing by enemy aircraft.

The United States has another bridgehead in the Philippines, he added, and would be in the position of protecting supply lines stretching two-thirds of the way around the earth.

"What we are doing in following our present policy," he insisted, "is giving up an ideal defensive position in America for a very precarious offensive position in Europe.

Sees No Invasion Threat.

"If we deplete our forces still further, as this bill indicates we may, and if England should lose this war, then, gentlemen, I think we may be in danger of invasion, altho I do not believe we are today. If we ever are invaded in America, the responsibility will lie upon those who send our arms abroad.

"I am opposed to this bill because I believe it indorses a policy that will lead to failure in war and to conditions in our own country as bad or worse than those we now desire to overthrow in Nazi Germany.

"I do not believe that the danger to America lies in an invasion from abroad. I believe it lies here at home in our own midst and that it is exemplified by the terms of this bill—the placing of our security in the success of foreign armies and the removal of power from the representatives of the people in our own land."

Questioned by Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.], Lindbergh cited as proof of the difficulty of invasion, the failure of the British to land troops in Norway against a small defensive force.

"So far as invading South America is concerned, we could harass the enemy's communications lines so as to make it next to impossible to land," he said.

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], ardent interventionist, remarked on the "daring" of Lindbergh's opinions.

"You are against giving aid to Britain?" he asked Lindbergh.

"I personally think it was a mistake for us to commit ourselves to aid Britain," was the answer. "But now that we have made the promise, I am for keeping that promise and continuing aid but not increasing it. We should clear up the commitments made and then throw our strength behind a negotiated peace."

Thinks U. S. Encouraged War.

"How would we get a negotiated peace?"

"I do not think this country

1938.. tough old '38. Remember how we had to prune personal budgets? Swell time for Bond values to make new friends. They did! In the face of rapidly falling business, Bond's big volume held firm.

1939.. You guessed it. Now, men are really talking. Bond clothes sure do things for a fellow's appearance—without knocking the bankroll for a loop. Result—you smart men gave us a business increase of 25.8%.

1940.. Shucks, you've probably read about it already. Yes, a new Bond record! So far as we know, the largest 1940 increase rolled up by any nationally important clothier in these broad United States—31.9% up!

Must be a good reason, eh? All this time, more men wearing Bond Clothes than any other clothes in America. Still more joining the big parade each year! It will pay you to find out why—pay you handsomely!

All suits with 2 trousers $25 $30 $35 —and 2 convenient ways to "charge it" at no extra cost.

HELPING BRITAIN PROLONGS WAR, SAYS LINDBERGH

It Also Weakens Our Own Defense, Senate Told.

should go to Europe to get it but we should be receptive to a negotiated peace. We can stop encouraging war."

Q.—You think we are encouraging it? A.—From the beginning.

Q.—We encouraged the start of the war? A.—Yes.

Q.—Tell us what acts encouraged the start of the war. A.—In 1937 and 1938 when I was in Europe, most of the people I spoke to thought we would get into war if they declared war. I believe our own agents indirectly encouraged that attitude and the attitude of the newspapers of this country encouraged it.

Q.—Have you any proof that our diplomats stimulated war? A.—No. If we had kept the arms embargo, it would have saved France. If England and France had not expected arms and troops from us, war would not have been declared.

Q.—But the embargo was not lifted until after the war began. A.—They expected it to be lifted.

BETTER PEACE TERMS TODAY
No Plan Advanced for Invasion of Continent.

Lindbergh declared that Germany, in his opinion, would not have invaded France if war had not been declared.

"If we had held to the arms embargo," he told Connally, "I believe a peace would now be under negotiation."

The Texas senator asked him what terms of peace he would advocate.

"I would not attempt to dictate the terms of peace," was the answer. "They depend upon the negotiating countries."

"You are indifferent to what kind of settlement is made?"

"No. It is not up to me. It is very easy to sit here and say what would be right in Europe. I do believe a better peace can be obtained today for England and France than next month or next year."

Holds Aid Prolongs War.

Q.—Because England can't win the war? A.—I have seen no plan advanced for a British victory by invasion of the continent.

Q.—Do you favor aid to Britain on the hypothesis that defense should be confined to the British Isles? A.—Our aid will prove to have prolonged the war and not to have affected the trend of the war. Our commitments were made on the understanding by the people that it would be 'short of war.' We have not been effective in the aid given thus far and our continuance will undoubtedly lead to war.

Q.—By sending any aid at all, we have encouraged the war? A.—Yes, I think that may be said—we have encouraged and prolonged the war and increased bloodshed.

Questioning about the length of time required for the obsolescence of a plane, Lindbergh said it was now longer than previously but that a plane became obsolete in two or three years at present. On existing standards, he repeated, our air force was in a deplorable condition.

Senator Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.], co-sponsor of the dictator bill, took up the questioning:

"We are in no immediate danger of invasion?"

"Right."

"The danger might be determined by the identity of the victor?" A.—"It will primarily be determined by our own strength."

"If Great Britain wins, will she invade us?"

"No, sir, but over a period of years, we have been in danger of attack from practically every nation of Europe. The capital was burned by the British in the last century. There was the Maximilian invasion of Mexico."

Scouts Danger of Attack.

Lindbergh opined that it was extremely improbable that the United States would ever be attacked by a "united world," noting that the world has never been united in history.

Q.—We should be indifferent to the rest of the world? A.—No; it is very important what happens in the rest of the world, but I don't believe we can control what happens in the rest of the world.

Q.—Did we encourage Hitler to enter the Sudetenland? A.—Yes, if you go back to President Wilson and the Versailles treaty.

Q.—Did we encourage the taking of the remainder of Czecho-Slovakia? A.—To some extent, our general attitude encouraged it.

Q.—Well, what is it our duty to do? A.—It is very difficult to place a finger on what is our duty. Our attitude of encouraging the war was responsible for bringing it on.

Cites Reports on Promises.

Q.—Were we responsible for the taking of Poland? A.—That was after we had been fairly active over there thru our representatives. There are conflicting reports on what they promised England and France.

Q.—Would you help Greece repel invasion? A.—Militarily? No, sir. So far as I know, every nation that ever depended upon another nation for its defense has been defeated.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah] asked Lindbergh sarcastically if "the German army had anything to do with the fall of France."

"Of course," was the reply, "but the army was headed the other way when war was declared. It was declared at a very disadvantageous time. It would have been better to let time pass. Conditions couldn't be worse in Europe than now so far as France and England are concerned."

Charges 1917 Interference.

The witness said that the victors in the last war could have followed two successful policies.

"We could have placed Germany back on its feet as an important nation or have kept her down by force," he said. "We did neither. When we permitted her to build the Siegfried line, we lost all chance to enforce the second policy."

"By interfering in the last war, we have been responsible for everything that happened since, in your opinion," commented Thomas. "We interfered with Europe in 1776. Have we been responsible for all war since?"

"No," replied Lindbergh, quickly. "I'm very much in favor of 1776." The crowd laughed.

"Nothing can stop Hitler at the present time except the downfall of his forces, is that right?"

"I see no way of stopping him now except by invasion of the continent. I don't know what may happen in the next generation. By throwing our weight into the present war, we have succeeded in binding together Germany, Italy, Russia, and Japan. We were responsible for bringing Japan into the axis."

"Our encouragement was a very small factor in bringing on the war, wasn't it?"

"O, no! I should say it was a very large factor."

BOARD OF HEALTH BEGINS WORRYING ABOUT MINUTES

The board of health asked Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes yesterday to determine whether it is keeping minutes of its meetings in accordance with an opinion rendered by Hodes' office last December. The opinion recommended the minutes be kept in abbreviated form. Previously the board had passed a resolution recommending that the minutes be kept in detail. Yesterday members of the board were divided on whether the minutes, which are now being kept in detail, are proper.

2 VETS DISOWN INDORSEMENT OF DICTATOR BILL

Challenge Statement by National Adjutant.

Two past state commanders of the Disabled American Veterans yesterday challenged the statement of National Adjutant Vivian Corby that the D. A. V. "fully" backed the war dictatorship bill. They are Carter M. Smith and Howard R. Roberts, both members of the Veterans' division of the Chicago chapter of the America First committee.

Carter Smith [top] and Howard Roberts.

"The only body that can officially speak for the national organization of the Disabled American Veterans between conventions is the national executive committee," said Smith and Roberts in a joint statement. "The meeting held in Washington, from which National Adjutant Corby issued his statement, was only a small group of men giving their opinions and was not the action of the majority of the executive committee.

Calls Group Unauthorized.

"The sentiment of the disabled veterans in this community tends to disagree with this or any other action taken by an unauthorized group in the name of the organization."

Officials at the national headquarters of the America First committee announced yesterday that George N. Peek, first administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, had joined the fight to keep America out of war. Peek, who served as President Roosevelt's adviser on foreign trade until 1935, has been made a member of the national committee of America First.

Mrs. Janet Ayer Fairbank, vice commander of the Chicago chapter of the America First committee, said yesterday that Illinois members had responded enthusiastically to plans for a motor caravan to Springfield Tuesday. More than 1,000 committee members are expected to join the automobile march to urge passage of the resolution before the house to memorialize congress for defeat of the war dictatorship bill.

Plans for Two Rallies.

It also was announced yesterday at America First headquarters that Philip La Follette, former governor of Wisconsin, is to speak at a rally in South Bend, Ind., on Monday. John T. Flynn, author and commentator, is to urge defeat of the lend-lease bill in a talk on Lincoln's birthday in Milwaukee.

Maj. Alford J. Williams, formerly of the army and marine air corps, and opponent of the war dictatorship bill and any step that might take the United States into the European war, will be heard in Chicago Sunday. He will appear on the Round Table radio broadcast sponsored by the University of Chicago. With Williams on the program will be Hugh Cole of the department of history at the University of Chicago.

BARRETT WORKS ON CAMPAIGN TO HARASS BOOKIES

Attorney General George Barrett said yesterday that work was under way toward starting his drive to put the state's bookmakers out of business by injunction. He has been granted permission by Judge Maurice V. Joyce of Belleville to intrust the service of summonses to the bookies to a secret officer with a staff of secret assistants.

Barrett was reluctant to discuss details of his plan, but said: "We're working on it." Most of the process servers, it was reported, will be private citizens, who will be sworn specifically to serve the summonses. The number of these servers also is secret.

PRESIDENT GIVES NAMES TO 10 NEW NAVY CRUISERS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt today selected the names for 10 cruisers now under construction for the navy.

Four of the cruisers were named for American cities while the other six carry the names of outlying territories and possessions.

The American cities honored by the President were Albany, N. Y.; Rochester, N. Y.; Columbus, O., and Des Moines, Iowa.

The other six were named the Alaska, Guam, Hawaii, Philippines, Puerto Rico, and Samoa.

The Albany is the fourth vessel of that name, the Columbus the third, and the Rochester and Des Moines the second to be so called.

SEEK PETTICOAT BRIGADE TO FIGHT DICTATOR BILL

Defeat of the lease-lend bill, now before congress, is a woman's job, Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, Chicago director of the Mothers' Crusade to Defeat Bill 1776 [the dictator bill], said in an interview over W-G-N yesterday.

"We want to start a cavalcade to Washington that will flood the capital with petticoats and cause all congressmen who are supporting this bill to reconsider," she explained. "The mothers of this country do not want their sons killed and we feel that danger exists if this bill is passed. We wish to defeat the bill in its entirety. The bill would mean the end of our republic and the beginning of a dictatorship.

"If necessary we will lie on our faces on the senate steps. Praying women exert a strong influence."

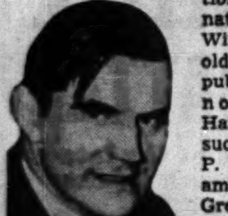
PRESIDENT PICKS WINANT FOR NEW ENVOY TO BRITAIN

Choice Is Ex-Governor of New Hampshire.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—President Roosevelt today fulfilled predictions by nominating John G. Winant, 51 years old, former Republican governor of New Hampshire, to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy as ambassador to Great Britain.



John G. Winant. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Speculation had been current for weeks on Mr. Roosevelt's choice for the top American diplomatic post, but the odds were heavily in favor of Winant, who, altho classified as a Republican, has served the New Deal administration in many capacities. The British government let it be known that they would be pleased to have Winant represent the United States at the Court of St. James's.

Resignation of Kennedy.

Kennedy resigned after his return to the United States for a vacation, and since has actively campaigned to keep the United States out of the war. He has also furnished some of the most weighty opposition to adoption of the pending dictator bill in congress.

Since 1939 Winant has been serving as director of the International Labor Office, whose headquarters originally were in Geneva, Switzerland, but recently have been transferred to Canada.

His first service of the New Deal was as chairman of a textile inquiry board in connection with labor troubles in that industry in 1934. In 1935 he became chairman of the social security board and served in that capacity for two years.

Winant resigned from the social security board to take an active part in the 1936 Presidential campaign, defending the social security act against widespread Republican criticism. It was one of the main issues of the campaign.

Joins Labor Office.

In 1937 he became an assistant director of the International Labor Office and assumed the directorship in 1939.

A native of New York City, Winant became a resident of Concord, N. H., when he was 14 years old. A graduate of Princeton university, he entered politics when he was elected to the New Hampshire legislature in 1919. After service in the world war, during which he attained the rank of captain, he returned to politics in 1921 as a state senator. He became governor in 1925 at the age of 36, being the youngest chief executive of any state at that time. After serving three terms he declined a fourth.

Along with Winant's nomination, the President also sent a number of other diplomatic nominations to the senate, mostly shifts of posts. These were:

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr. of Pennsylvania, now ambassador to Poland, to serve concurrently as ambassador to Belgium and as minister to Norway and the Netherlands. All four of these governments are now located in London.

Clarence E. Gauss of Connecticut, now minister to Australia, to be ambassador to China.

Nelson T. Johnson of Oklahoma, now ambassador to China, to be minister to Australia.

Panama-Uruguay Shifts.

William Dawson of Minnesota, now ambassador to Panama, to be ambassador to Uruguay.

Edwin C. Wilson of Florida, now minister to Uruguay, to be ambassador to Panama.

Bert Fish of Florida, now minister to Egypt, to be minister to Portugal.

Alexander Kirk of Illinois, now counselor of the American embassy at Rome, to be minister to Egypt.

Herbert C. Pell of Rhode Island, now minister to Portugal, to be minister to Hungary.

The shift in envoys to Panama and Uruguay marks the raising of the Uruguayan post from the diplomatic rank of a ministry to that of an ambassadorship.

More than Billion Dollars Approved for War by Japs

TOKIO, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Japanese house of representatives today approved a budget of extraordinary war expenditures totaling 4 billion 800 million yen [about 1 billion, 125 million dollars] for the period beginning April 1 and ending Jan. 31, 1942. INSTRUCT GUARD OFFICERS ABOUT NEW ARMY GUNS

Prepare Teachers for Unit's Federal Duty.

Modern infantry and artillery weapons of the United States army were on display yesterday at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 5256 Cottage Grove avenue, as 99 officers of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, started an intensive course in armaments.

The course is part of a four weeks' school under the direction of Lieut. Col. Carl J. Meacham, senior instructor of the Illinois National Guard, and other regular army men. Officers selected to attend the school will become instructors after the division is inducted into federal service on March 5.

Show Garand Rifle.

Grouped on the arena floor of the armory were a score of weapons, including the army's modernized 155 mm. howitzer, the new 37 mm. antitank gun, 81 mm. and 60 mm. mortars, and .50 caliber and .30 caliber machine guns. Several Garand rifles, known officially as the M-1 rifle, also were on exhibit.

Before the course ends instructors hope to obtain one of the new 105 mm. howitzers for use in the class. This is the weapon which proved so effective in the European war that the war department has decided to make it the standard artillery weapon instead of the 75 mm. gun.

Yesterday's class was taught by Lieut. Karl Ockershauser of the 11th infantry, stationed at Fort Custer, Mich. As enlisted men of his regiment demonstrated each type of weapon, Lieut. Ockershauser explained its use in combat or defense. The 37 mm. antitank gun, a rubber tired, high speed model developed in 1939 by the army, was first on the list.

Crumples on Impact.

"This gun is intended for point blank firing at an ideal range of about 1,000 yards," he said. "At that distance its projectile, which weighs 1.92 pounds, will penetrate 1½ inches of armor plate. In order to give the greatest armor penetration, the solid steel projectile is capped with an aluminum alloy nose, which crumples upon impact and prevents the shell from ricocheting from the armor plate."

Lieut. Ockershauser then demonstrated that if one of the rubber tires should be hit and deflated, the tires can be ripped off both wheels allowing the gun to ride on the tire rims.

The .50 caliber machine gun, which he described as a weapon against tanks and mechanized units, was demonstrated next. This gun, which fires armor piercing shells weighing 3-10 of a pound at the rate of 400 to 500 a minute, will penetrate ¾ inch of steel at 1,000 yards, he said.

Intended to Delay Tanks.

"The .50 caliber gun isn't intended to put a tank out of commission," Lieut. Ockershauser said. "It is a front line weapon, to be used in delaying or rerouting an enemy tank attack until the 37 mm. guns can be hurried up."

The mortars, designed to support assault units in combat, attracted much attention from the Guard officers. The 81 mm. mortar has a range of from 100 to 3,290 yards, fires four types of shells, including one gas shell, and weighs only 136 pounds. It is light enough to set up almost anywhere during action. The 60 mm. is smaller, but similar.

The shells used in the mortars are of a new type fitted with fins like aerial bombs. Mortars have no breech mechanism; the shells are dropped down the barrel after the gun is aimed, and the propelling charge is ignited by a firing pin in the base of the shell.

Drop Like Aerial Bombs.

Mortars hurl their shells high into the air. The fins on the shells hold them straight in flight, and they drop on to gun emplacements, troop concentrations, etc., like aerial bombs.

In future class sessions the Guard officers will be instructed in use of the 155 mm. and 105 mm. howitzers, Lieut. Ockershauser said. The school, planned by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the 33d division, and his staff, will end on March 1, five days before the division is taken into federal service.

Open Old Age Aid List to Speed Draft Decisions

Records of the Illinois division of old age assistance will be made available to selective service officials to speed procedure in determining eligibility of individual draftees for deferments based upon dependency, it was announced yesterday. Fletcher C. Kettle, superintendent of the division, said the records will make it easy for draft officials to ascertain whether the parents of draftees requesting dependency deferments have applied for or are receiving state benefits.

Wins Continuance on U. S. Draft Registration Charge

Jack Clifford Duncan, 28 years old, a steamfitter, was arrested in Los Angeles, Cal., last Christmas eve and sentenced to 90 days in jail for drunkenness. He escaped from a work gang four days later and Chicago police arrested him Monday for loitering. They found he had no draft registration card. United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, before whom he was taken yesterday, continued charges against him of failure to register until Saturday pending an investigation.

CHICAGO SCOUT COUNCIL BEGINS $90,000 DRIVE

Join Today in Nation-Wide Week of Observance.

As a forerunner to National Boy Scout week, which begins today, the Chicago council of the Boy Scouts of America opened its annual financial drive at a luncheon yesterday in the Chicago club, 404 South Michigan avenue.

According to Hyde Gillette, finance chairman, the council is seeking to raise $90,000 to provide for more troops in underprivileged communities and extend Scouting techniques, and for maintenance of records, week-end and summer camps, and the executive staff.

In recognition that Chicago was one of the first cities to organize a Scout council and that its council is the largest in America, Mayor Kelly has proclaimed the week beginning today as Chicago Boy Scout week to coincide with the national observance.

Chicago Membership 24,946.

Twelve thousand new boys were taken into the Chicago council last year, bringing the membership to 24,946, the largest in the council's 31 years of operation. Nine hundred and eighty-one troops, Sea Scout ships, and Cub packs were aided by 64,021 volunteer leaders.

In accordance with the plan of action of the Boy Scouts of America for "strengthening and invigorating democracy, the paramount need in national defense," the Chicago council has undertaken a roll call of troop pledges of coöperation. The roll call requires the signing of a citizenship education service pledge which promises "aid in strengthening democracy thru respective programs of activity and education."

It also calls for special effort in preparing Senior Scouts for leadership positions in case of vacancies due to men being called in government service.

Trained for Emergency Service.

The Boy Scouts are the largest group of boys in America, organized in small groups under trained adult leadership. They are prepared for immediate service in time of emergency.

A program built around the Scout movement was presented yesterday in observation of National Boy Scout Week by the Chicago Kiwanis club in the Hotel Sherman. Six uniformed Scouts gave a demonstration in self-reliance, and Dr. A. J. Lendino, Scout worker, was the principal speaker.

Patriotic films, dedicated to National Boy Scout Week, will be presented by the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond Foundation on Wednesday, Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday, in the James Simpson theater of the Field Museum. Performances will be held at 10 and 11 a. m.

EXPECT ILLINOIS DRAFT ARMY TO REACH 10,000 BY END OF FEBRUARY

Paul G. Armstrong, state director of selective service, estimated yesterday that approximately 10,000 Illinois draftees will be in the army by the end of this month. This will be about one-sixth of the quota of 62,223 which the state has been called upon to furnish by June 30.

Armstrong announced quotas for local draft boards calling for the induction of 2,803 men this month, and said that further board quotas, calling for an additional 2,039 men, will be announced within the next few days. These two sets of quotas, together with an earlier list calling for the induction of 281 men next Monday, bring the total quota for February to 5,123.

In addition, 1,701 draftees left over from the January induction period are expected to be called up this month, bringing February inductions to almost 7,000 men.

CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE

WARN NATION IT FACES SHORTAGE OF MEDICAL MEN

Educators Say It Is Effect of the Draft.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6. — Disastrous shortages of physicians, dentists, pharamacists, and engineers, together with drastic decline in college and university enrollments, were envisioned here by college and university presidents unless "the selective military service act really becomes selective."

More than 500 higher education administrators from 41 states met in afternoon and night sessions as the National Committee on Education and Defense after hearing a speaker describe the last 22 years as being the armistice in the world war. Francis J. Brown, executive secretary of the subcommittee on military affairs, making this reference, was preceded on the program by Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, who warned the college presidents against being hopeful for federal funds for educational developments.

Warns of "Disaster."

Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., chairman of the morning session, set the pattern for the college presidents' open discussion when he declared that disaster is imminent "if we keep our eyes exclusively on the soldier side of national defense."

Bowman declared that industrial needs are not being met annually by the output of 12,000 engineers from 160 engineering schools, and that the 5,000 new doctors graduating each year hardly meet civilian needs. There are only 1,700 new pharmacists each year to replace 3,000 who die or retire annually, Bowman said.

This outlook was made more pessimistic in discussion sessions when it was disclosed that military defense needs not only further deplete the supply of engineers, doctors, and other professionally trained men but also the the "campus jitters" caused by the draft will take many men out of college. In addition, it was asserted, the draft will prevent the return of many to college who ought to be preparing for medical, dental, or engineering studies.

A Chicagoan Agrees.

The Rev. Samuel Knox Wilson of Chicago, president of Loyola university, and Dr. Umphrey Lee of Dallas, Tex., president of Southern Methodist university, both confirmed Dr. Bowman's plea for distinguishing between "the national defense" and "military defense."

"If we are to retain institutional sanity," said the Rev. Wilson, "we must emphasize the national defense and not military defense. If we are doing a good job in leadership and in building the national morale, one of the ways of retaining sanity is by staying on the job as educators. We must emphasize the need of leadership by preserving our schools."

COUNCIL GROUP VOTES TO LOWER BUILDING LIMITS

A recommendation that the new city building code, now under preparation, reduce the maximum limits on building heights, was approved yesterday by a subcommittee of the council building and zoning committee. The subcommittee, assigned to the task of preparing the new code, is headed by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell.

The new schedule would limit the height of buildings in Volume I. areas, or areas composed largely of homes and two flat buildings, to 25 feet instead of the present 33 to 66 feet. In Volume II. areas, composed of larger buildings, the new regulation would change the height from the present 66 to 99 foot limitation to a maximum of 45 feet.

Volume III. now has a maximum limitation of from 132 to 98 feet and it would be limited to 99 feet. Volume IV., which comprises the tallest buildings in the city and the loop, now permits buildings to be 264 feet high before having a setback. The new ruling would reduce that height to 165 feet.

Ald. Lindell, who made the recommendations to the committee, said, "If we had had regulations such as these years ago Chicago would not have the blight areas it has today." The committee also voted to decrease the percentage of lot area upon which an owner is permitted to build.

Woman Hit by Bullet Fired at Robber Dies

Mrs. Pauline Grochocki, 58 years old, 1722 Julian street, a widow, died yesterday in St. Anne's hospital of bullet wounds suffered last Saturday night when she was accidentally shot by Earl Stafford, owner of a gasoline station at 956 North Cicero avenue. Mrs. Grochocki was standing at the corner waiting for a street car when Stafford fired at a fleeing bandit. She was shot in the chest and right hand.

Fun Without Fans

Sally Rand, without her fans, was interviewed by Jess Kirkpatrick last night on W-G-N-Mutual's In Chicago Tonight program, and her appearance provided diverting entertainment for this weekly variety show.

Sally had just begun to talk on "The Curve of the Infinite" when heckling started. It all came from one man, Candy Candido, the comedian of the many voices. Candido came over from the Blackhawk restaurant, where he performs with Ted Fio-Rito's orchestra. In her interview Miss Rand told about her farming interests and also admitted to a fancy for dogs. Responding to this news, Candido gave his well known version of "The Three Trees."

Bret Morrison was starred in a play by Ashmead Scott, titled "Rain on the Roof." Morrison took the part of an aged convict who flees prison so that he may again hear the rain on the roof in his boyhood home, long since abandoned. Original music for the play was written by David Broekman. William A. Bacher produced the show.

D. A. R. CHAPTERS AIM ATTACK ON DICTATOR BILL

30 in Chicago Area Plan United Effort.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Regents and national defense chairmen of the 30 chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution in and near Chicago prepared at a closed meeting yesterday to translate into local action the national board's resolution opposing H. R. 1776, the war dictatorship bill.

The resolution, adopted last week in Washington, D. C., urged members of congress "to reserve to themselves the powers and responsibilities entrusted to them." It asserted that H. R. 1776 "proposed to delegate to the executive branch unlimited powers 'notwithstanding the provisions of any other law.'" The resolution also asked congress "to make such provisions for aid to Great Britain as will be least likely to involve this country in active participation" and "to increase with all possible speed the defense of the United States."

Recommend Local Action.

The 65 delegates at yesterday's meeting here carried away recommendations to the 2,607 local members of the patriotic society that each chapter pass resolutions similar to the national resolutions and forward them to congress.

It also was suggested that individual members work against the bill. Letters to congress, spreading of information about the bill, and participation in work of one of the committees engaged in the fight on the bill were methods proposed.

Asks Who's Behind Bill.

Mrs. William F. Conlon, national defense chairman of the 4th division, in which the 30 chapters are included, called the meeting. Afterward she and Mrs. Thomas E. Maury of Aurora, division director, and Mrs. Ray E. Thomas of Waukegan, national defense chairman of the Illinois society, Daughters of the American Revolution, announced that they had joined the America First committee.

Commenting on the war dictatorship bill, Mrs. Thomas said:

"Congress should retain the powers rested in it by the constitution. This bill would take those powers from congress and give them to one man. By the way, I should like to know who originated that bill. It is a man who wants such powers or is it a group of Wall street lawyers—or who is it? We ought to know."

"Such concentration of power in the hands of one man as H. R. 1776 proposes," said Mrs. Conlon, "is not possible to achieve constitutionally. It is proposed that we abandon our constitution and assume the governmen of a dictator, ostensibly to help another which now has a dictator to remove another dictator in still another nation. Why not advance the cause of human freedom by first remaining free ourselves?"

HUNT WOODEN LEGGED EX-CONVICT JANITOR IN DEATH MYSTERY QUIZ

John T. Ballard.

Police of the Chicago avenue station have started a search for John T. Ballard, former convict with a wooden leg, who is wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Miss Elizabeth Connor, 76 years old, landlady of a rooming house at 32 East Bellevue place. Miss Connor was found strangled to death Wednesday evening in the basement of the house.

Ballard, who is 34 years old, was Miss Connor's janitor. He and his wife have been missing since Tuesday. Lodgers in the building said he had quarreled with the landlady over money and his slack work and that she had told him he was to be fired.

Police records show that Ballard was sentenced to Pontiac reformatory in 1922 and served two years on a larceny conviction. In 1926 he was sent to prison again and served six years of a one to ten year sentence for robbery.

President Approves Bill to Construct 200 Ships

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt gave quick approval today to a bill appropriating $313,500,000 for construction of 200 new cargo ships. Congressional action was completed only yesterday. The new ships will cost an aggregate of $350,000,000, but $36,500,000 already has been allocated from a special fund by the President to start work.

DETROIT STUDIES SUPERROADS TO COST 300 MILLION

First Unit Plan Calls for Crosstown Route.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—A superhighway system of 650 miles, estimated to cost 300 million dollars, is being considered by the city council for construction in this industrial center half the size of Chicago. The plan is sponsored by G. Donald Kennedy, Michigan highway commission. If the council approves, construction of the first unit is to start promptly and other units will follow as funds become available.

The first unit would be a $50,000,000 crosstown route linking factory districts on the fringe of the city. Unlike Chicago, where the loop is the hub of the metropolitan traffic pattern, Detroit has a heavy truck and passenger traffic flow between outlying factory districts.

Seven Miles Elevated.

This Harper-Stanley-McGraw crosstown route is designed for seven miles to be elevated highway, three miles depressed, and nine miles to be at grade. Commissioner Kennedy said that Jesse Jones, RFC administrator, had suggested a formal request for a loan to purchase the right of way.

Commissioner Kennedy has made preliminary studies for a continuation of this cross town route to Chicago as a superhighway of design similar to the Pennsylvania turnpike, free of cross traffic, pedestrians, stop lights, left turns and parking, and with no direct access to abutting property. Another branch would be extended to Toledo. In the other direction, it would be extended to Port Huron.

The 300 million dollar program also includes an elevated highway paralleling diagonal Grand River avenue from the suburb of Farmington into and thru downtown Detroit. There also would be a downtown loop of broad pavements at grade to serve as feeders to the express motorways.

Would Be 94 Miles Long.

Another express radial from the downtown district would use Hastings, Oakland, and Woodward avenues. The plans call for an eventual continuation thru Pontiac to Saginaw, a total distance of 94 miles.

A parkway encircling the city, on the banks of the Detroit, Huron, and Clinton rivers, as approved in a November referendum election, is also on the program as are several major surface street widening projects with grade separations only at congested intersections.

Commissioner Kennedy said that he believed the $50,000,000 cross town superhighway can be financed as a national defense measure.

Report 9 Killed When Roof of French Market Caves In BERLIN, Feb. 6 (AP).—At least nine persons were killed and 40 injured when the roof of the public market at Nogent-sur-Marne, a Paris suburb, collapsed under the weight of snow, DNB, official German news agency, reported today.

HEARINGS OPEN ON REMUS CLAIM AGAINST O'HARE

Hearings on the $196,000 claim of George Remus, former bootlegger king, against the estate of Edward J. O'Hare began yesterday before Acting Probate Judge Harry W. McEwen. O'Hare, liquor dealer, race track owner, and front man for the Capone syndicate, was killed Nov. 8, 1939, by shotgun assassins.

Remus charges his claim represents a balance on a note signed by O'Hare for settlement of liquor O'Hare and 21 other persons allegedly stole from Remus' bonded warehouse in St. Louis, Mo. A photostatic copy of the note was introduced into evidence.

Mrs. Bertha Siemon of 1644 North Halsted street testified that Remus introduced her in 1935 to O'Hare as a "good friend who helps me out when I need assistance." She said that when Remus asked about his note O'Hare said it was with his lawyer and that the photostatic copy that Remus had was as good as the original note.

U. S. OUTLINES CASE AGAINST MEDICAL GROUP

Suit Considered Test of 'Socialization.'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Government attorneys charged today that the American Medical Association, two of its affiliated societies, and 20 individual physicians had "boycotted" other physicians, hospitals, and individual patients.

In a statement outlining to a jury the government's antitrust case against the A. M. A. and its co-defendants, John Henry Lewin, special assistant to the attorney general, declared that they "conspired" to prevent physicians of the Group Health association, an organization of government workers here, from obtaining adequate attention, consultations, or the use of hospital operating rooms or laboratory facilities.

Tells Woman's Case.

In one instance, Lewin declared, a woman patient of a Group Health association physician was expelled from a hospital after admittance and treatment preliminary to an operation. In some other instances on which evidence will be given, he said, victims of automobile accidents were refused admittance to hospitals. Such persons, Lewin asserted, were patients of doctors forbidden to practice in District of Columbia hospitals because of their work with the Group Health association.

The case was regarded by both government and defense attorneys as a test of validity of so-called "socialized" medicine. Both sides were prepared to carry the District court's decision to the Supreme court.

The Possible Penalties.

The charges constitute only a misdemeanor under the Sherman act, the maximum penalties being fines of $1,000 or a year in jail, or both.

The defendant physicians and organizations lost a plea to the Circuit Court of Appeals on March 4, 1940, in which they claimed that the practice of medicine is a "learned profession" and not a "trade" as defined in the Sherman act. The Circuit court remanded the case to the District court.

FRANCE'S ACE.

The confused reports of political shifts in Vichy and Paris can probably be explained in large part by the strategic situation in North Africa.

At the capitulation Hitler took every position in European France that he wanted to control and left the rest to be administered by the French. The Germans permitted France to retain possession of her colonies, at least for the time being, and among them was Tunisia, which is separated from Italian Sicily by only 150 miles of open water. Perhaps the axis might have been able to take over the colony at that moment of extreme disorganization, but the attempt was not made and France remains in possession.

Today Tunisia and its principal harbor, Bizerte, together with the French army in North Africa, are among the very few high cards which Marshal Petain holds. If Hitler and Mussolini had Bizerte they could use it for supplying and reinforcing the Italian army in Libya. With bases at both sides of the strait the axis could make it extremely difficult and costly to hold this stretch of the Mediterranean against them. Even now, with submarines and dive bombers based only on Sicily, the British control of the central Mediterranean is challenged.

If the British armies in the Mediterranean area are to be supplied by way of the Mediterranean, a considerable part of the British fleet must be risked constantly in Sicilian waters, far from the British bases at Gibraltar and Alexandria. To avoid the danger, supplies and reinforcements have been sent around Africa, but the voyage is a long one and the use of this route requires half a dozen times as much merchant tonnage as would be needed to move the same quantities of men and materials over the shorter line.

If the British had Bizerte their problem would be a much easier one. They would have a convenient base for the protection of their convoys and the naval patrol in the central Mediterranean could be both reduced in strength and increased in effectiveness. Units of the British fleet could be diverted to the protection of commerce in the North Atlantic. Many merchant ships now circumnavigating Africa could be transferred to other routes.

The advantage to Britain would be immense. The threat of the Germans to starve Britain into submission would be considerably weakened. The supplying of Britain's African armies would be simplified. If at the same time the French colonial army in Africa would attack the Italians from the rear, the British conquest of Libya would be hastened by many months.

As long as Marshal Petain can at his pleasure place Bizerte and the French army in Africa at the service of the British, the axis can't afford to get too tough with him. As long as he can allow the axis to establish bases in Tunisia, the British will be disposed to deal considerately with him. France has been conquered and in Europe is impotent in a military sense, but she still holds an ace in the international game.

It is a good guess that the Germans, regarding M. Laval as their man, want him in a position of power in Vichy to slip them the ace if he can get his hands on it and, at any rate, to assure them that Britain won't get it. It is also a good guess that Marshal Petain is not too old to know the value of his card. As a military man he can hardly fail to see that Tunisia is vastly more important to Italy now than it was before Gen. Wavell began to push the Italians back and to capture great quantities of men and supplies. Unless the Italians can reinforce themselves, their position will soon become desperate. Their best and quite probably their only hope of turning the tide lies in the right to use Bizerte.

It is always possible, of course, that Gen. Weygand, in direct command of the French in North Africa, may take the play away from Vichy. And that, in turn, raises the question whether he can command the loyalty of his army and his civil population to the point where he can deliver them to either the axis or the British.

SEATTLE PREPARES FOR THE WORST.

The city council of Seattle has passed an ordinance empowering the mayor to enforce blackout regulations and draft citizens for defense services. The city is to have a trial blackout of 30 minutes duration on March 7.

Along with the rest of the Pacific coast, Seattle has long been acutely aware of the Japanese menace, particularly in the truck gardening field. In such times of stress as these the mayor naturally is not telling all he knows, but perhaps his operatives have uncovered a plot by these busy little agriculturists to bomb the city hall with radishes. Seattle is something more than 4,000 miles in an air line from Tokio, which is probably farther than any plane the Japanese have can fly. If one did make the trip, it would be looking for gasoline to get home on, not bombing targets, by the time it reached Puget sound.

A rather hazy knowledge of oceanography recalls that the Pacific northwest owes its equable, if dripping, climate to a current which sweeps past the Japanese archipelago, loops across the Pacific, and flows south along the western coast of North America. This, in turn, suggests that the good people of Seattle may be lulled into false security by their blackout provisions. At the next meeting of the city council it should be in order to vote appropriations for a net of floating observation posts to guard against the wily Japanese putting itch powder in the Japanese current.

ONE HEADACHE WE DON'T DESERVE.

One trouble with local government in this town is that when by design or awkwardness it does get one of its problems straightened out there is no guaranty that it will stay straightened.

Take the matter of distributing tax collections. It is essential to the economical operation of government that as quickly as the county treasurer collects a tax bill he turn the money over to the governments that levied the taxes. If he doesn't, they have to run on borrowed money, which adds interest costs to the next year's tax bill.

In the old days—the very old days—a custodian of public funds had a good private reason for holding them as long as he could. He put them in the bank and kept the interest. Even after it became obligatory to turn the interest into the public treasury, a smart fellow could still get a nominal rate for the county and chisel a half or a quarter of 1 per cent for himself. It was nothing unusual in those times for the treasurer to sit on the tax collections for half a year.

But since about 1930 a public official who took a million dollars in public funds into a Chicago bank has been lucky to get out the door without having the banker ask him how much rent he expected to pay for storing his cash. In the last decade the treasurer has had no good reason, public or private, for not pushing out the money as fast as it comes in.

When Treasurer Sweitzer, of unhappy memory, took office he found he was sitting on $42,000,000 in undistributed tax collections while the governments to which the money belonged were paying thru the nose for loans on tax warrants. When Mr. Sweitzer left the office, hurriedly, to tell a Criminal court jury about his famous vest pocket, his successor, Joseph L. Gill, applied himself to this problem.

Mr. Gill purchased about $20,000 worth of bookkeeping machinery and in the course of a year worked out a distribution system which cut the undistributed taxes, aside from reserves set up to meet tax refunds, to $4,000,000 or less. That was five years ago.

The machinery is still in the treasurer's office, but either it or the men supposed to operate it are getting rusty. Treasurer Toman's last statement, for Dec. 31, showed that he was holding $26,917,811 in undistributed tax collections.

Of this sum $15,952,709, about four times the sum held by Treasurer Gill, is subject to no encumbrance and available for distribution under any one's interpretation of the law. The remainder, $10,965,102, is held in reserve for refunds to taxpayers. There is no excuse for maintaining these reserves. Under a statute passed in 1934 the treasurer has the power to distribute all taxes as he collects them, and if he has to make refunds later, to deduct them from future distributions to the same governments. The whole fund, nearly $27,000,000, should be considered available for distribution.

That these funds, seriously needed by the governments to which they belong, have been allowed to blockade themselves in the treasurer's office is a serious reflection on the treasurer and his bookkeeping staff. The reflection is all the more serious because procedure for distributing the money quickly was worked out only five years ago, found sound and workable, and now apparently is being neglected.

THE POWER TO MAKE WAR.

An argument that some of the advocates of war bill No. 1776 are using is that the powers which are granted to the President under the bill are powers which, for much the most part, he already possesses. It is a pretty poor argument even when it is put forward sincerely, because it is a confession that the bill is not needed. Besides, it doesn't square with the facts. The President today has no authority to give away the active components of the fleet or the air force, and no authority of his own motion to make appropriations of new military equipment to foreign nations. The use of these powers can and will place this country actively in the war.

When a grant of power is in question the simplest prudence requires the assumption that the powers will be exercised to the maximum. That is sound as a general principle and particularly sound in considering grants of power which may well lead the country into the slaughter and economic devastation of war. If the country is going to undertake these hazards it ought to do so deliberately, knowing what is being done. Our form of government will be vastly weakened if millions of citizens find that they have been betrayed into war by public officials who pretended to have no such purpose in mind.

Editorial of the Day

WE VIEW WITH SUSPICION.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

We view with suspicion the removal of the moral embargo against the soviet union and the decision of the United States to allow shipments of airplanes and other equipment to that country.

Our suspicion is based on the lack of good faith shown by the soviet union in the past in many of its foreign relations. Our suspicion is based on the irreconcilable gap between soviet protestations and soviet actions. Our suspicion is based on the chronic perfidy of communists and their sworn enmity for the United States and for every basic principle of democracy.

We grant that the state department of our country may have information that we do not possess and which forms the background of this sudden friendly gesture toward the soviet union. We hope that our government is wise in wooing Russia.

We would be pleased to be proved wrong in our suspicions. But following on the heels of the recently announced new trade agreement between Germany and Russia, this concession to Stalin has all the earmarks of an amateurish effort in Washington to take a hand in the international game of "power politics." And we don't like to see Uncle Samuel made a sap in the crafty Russian technique of playing one nation off against another.

It is announced that the great liner Manhattan got stuck on a sandbar "of recent formation" just off Palm Beach. Probably the real estate boys were out taking hopeful soundings as soon as they heard the news.—Washington Star.

If the tobacco sold Germany by Bulgaria is anything like the kind used to make those black, twisted Italian stogies, invasion of Bulgaria may be expected any moment now.—Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

ON THE MARGINS OF WAR NEWS.

"No singular English characteristic is more intensified by crisis than the habit of understatement," says an editorial in the Saturday Evening Post.

What on earth have they been understating to President Roosevelt to cause these 1776 varieties of war worry?

* * *

The cause led by Gen. de Gaulle, generally called Free France in the dispatches, appears to be named France Forever in the society columns. Moreover, its propagandists have formed a corporation in this country under the name, France Quand-Même. This harmless looking idiom, translatable literally as "altho" or "even if," represents the same mood of die-hardness that is expressed in the American saying, "in spite of hell and high water."

* * *

"Quand-même" was the slogan of Paul Déroulède, a French poet and politician who kept the pot of jingoism boiling in France after the Franco-Prussian war. With more luck, he might have become a forerunner of Hitler, on the other side of the fence. . . . The first piece of French verse that the Linemaster ever memorized, as a classroom task, was a brisk little battle scene by Déroulède called "Le Clairon" ["The Bugler"]. It contained the "quand-même" slogan.

* * *

The world war deprived the American soldier of his campaign hat, which was useful for keeping the sun out of the eyes and rain from trickling down the back of the neck. But it didn't deprive the Australians of their more ostentatious sombrero. The hard rocks from down under, wearing this jaunty article, are rolling along thru Libya, quite good-oh.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

Level your cloud-built castles,
Throttle your craven fears,
Yesterday's dreams are ashes,
Mirages, the promised years;
Strive for control of body,
Toil to subject the will;
You have a tryst for keeping—
Learning to kill . . . to kill.

Temper your eyes to weeping,
Ears, to the final tone;
Strengthen your soul and muscle,
Toughen your brain, and bone;
Turn from the goals you cherished,
Furrow, and mart, and mill;
Hew to the ancient pattern:
Learning to kill . . . to kill.

Exile the eager gladness,
Innocent smile and song;
This is an age of madness,
You must be stern, and strong;
Scorning the spirit's hunger,
Bidding the lips be still,
Asking nor giving quarter,
Learning to kill . . . to kill.

This from my personal experience as a country doctor in a small Wisconsin town:

Called from my bed at 1 a. m. of a stormy December night, I drove six miles into the country, left the main highway, and bucked snow runboard deep one mile down an unkept side road to a little rundown farmhouse. At daylight, having delivered their first born to the young farmer and his wife, I sat down to fill in the necessary data for the birth certificate.

"Your name?" I asked the father.

"Jack Winter," was the answer.

"And yours" [to the mother], "before you were married?"

"Mary Christmas," she answered promptly, with never a smile. J. H. F.

An Early Bird Pities the Nighthawk.

The late risers [Jan. 18] always waken in me a deep pity. Poor souls, they never know what they're missing! Never to step out into an untouched world of white, and feel as if one were exploring in a strange, new land where man had not set foot! Never to walk thru the hushed, waiting quietness of a silvery dawn, absorbing peace against the mad rush to come! Never to see the pale gold disk of the sun creep slowly out of Lake Michigan! Never to stand at a boiler room door and watch the sleepy janitor prod a black hole into leaping, fiery life, while the tinkle of bottles in the alley foretells the milkman's advent, and the thuds echoing along the back court are TRIBUNES landing on various doorsteps! Never to have lived! Eleanore-Melissa.

[And never to be bounced out of bed by an alarm clock, wanting six more hours of sleep!]

SPANISH DANCER.

[Argentinita, Feb. 2, 1941.]

The clicking of your castanets
Still is beating in my brain
In a rhythm as relentless
As the drum of tropic rain;
And your teasing smile is burning
Its bright message in my soul,
As elusive as the rainbow
That marks a dreamer's goal;
But your twinkling feet are cruel
In each measure gay that steals
All my peace of mind forever—
With my heart beneath your heels!

The Class in Marvels of Nature.

Tell Roberts Mann for me that 3,000 black ducks [Jan. 24], with normal body temperatures of 109 degrees Fahrenheit, could crowd together and generate enough animal heat to melt that hole in the ice. I've never seen them do it, but I have, as a youngster, warmed my feet on a frosty morning in Iowa, on the spot where our old cow [of course she didn't have feathers] had rested on the cold, cold ground. HELP PREVENT BLOOD POISONING.

It has been well said that the little things in life count the most. Perhaps some of us can recall the story in the old school reader of the little Dutch boy who stopped a leak in the dike by thrusting in his arm. He kept out the sea until help arrived.

How much attention do we pay to cuts, scratches, and wounds? Without being considered fussy or finicky, each one of us can prevent complications by the right sort of first aid. Almost every object capable of inflicting an injury is dirty, even tho it does not look to be so. In addition, a multitude of germs may lie on the surface of the skin, and some of them may be forced into the tissues because of a gash. In such a situation, they may grow rapidly. Later, the circulation and the lymph may carry them to other parts of the body, distributing them to vital structures.

Because of safety campaigns in industry, and more effective methods of treatment, we are preserving thousands of fingers, hands, legs, and arms—even lives—which would otherwise be lost. But what should we do when called upon to care for a wound?

First, cleanse the affected region by thoro scrubbing with soap and warm water. This should be persisted in, even tho some bleeding occurs. Dry with a bit of sterile gauze, and then cover with a pad of this same material. The dressing may be held in place with strips of adhesive. A disinfectant is not needed. If a chemical is strong enough to kill organisms, it may injure tissues and delay recovery.

It is rarely wise to attempt home management of deep or extensive lacerations, as the physician may be obliged to take several stitches in order to bring together the edges of the skin. Furthermore, thoro cleansing may require expert skill.

Now, the body possesses numerous fighting troops and these must combat the bacteria that remain. Thus it is that the blood pours out a generous number of soldiers [leucocytes] which destroy all the microbes within reach. They are powerless only when outnumbered, and that fact explains why we attempt to wash away as many germs as possible.

Handled in the above manner, most injuries will heal promptly. The gauze pad may be renewed every day because it will become soiled—at least on the outside. Even if pus appears, soap and hot water remain our best remedies, and the fresh bandage in turn should be dry.

Should inflammation develop, however, indicating that the invaders are waging a victorious battle against the cells of the blood—reënforcements may be demanded. Thus we call on heat. The area is covered with gauze compresses soaked in boric acid solution, which are kept warm to hot by means of a lamp. This plan will serve to dilate the capillaries and make room for tens of thousands of new infantrymen. Then, too, if we wish to bring up our artillery we can administer sulfanilamide or some allied preparation in order to insure victory.

Of course, if a high fever is present, or should the patient exhibit a chill, we may accept the warning that the enemy is driving back the forces of good health. The physician may deem it advisable to open the wound and establish free drainage. Sometimes this is necessary earlier, and the doctor will know when to invoke the aid of surgery.

It goes without saying that lockjaw serum should be administered if the initial lesion is deep or contaminated. A nail puncture of the foot may plant bacteria beyond the reach of oxygen from the air, allowing dangerous forms to flourish.

For those who are exposed to skin accidents—particularly of the hands—the parts must be kept clean by frequent scrubbing. Much protection will be afforded by gloves.

INDOOR DRYING.

Mrs. J. M. writes: I have a friend who lives in a steam-heated apartment and when she washes clothes she hangs them in the baby's room to dry. Is this harmful to the child?

REPLY.

Probably not, altho the air of the infant's chamber will contain far more moisture [humidity]—at least for a time.

X-RAY ON FACE.

M. M. writes: Would X-ray treatments on a man's face [for warts] destroy his beard?

REPLY.

Yes, if of sufficient duration and power. Look out, or the skin may go—along with the whiskers.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

1776 A. D. VS. H. R. 1776.

Dayton, O., Feb. 1.—In 1776 A. D. the divine right of kings was denied; in H. R. 1776 the divine right of the national executive is recognized, encouraged, and restored. In 1776 A. D. taxation without representation was denounced; in H. R. 1776 the renunciation of the people's financial power and of their financial responsibility is accepted. In 1776 A. D. the freedom of the people to make the major decisions affecting their welfare was demanded; in H. R. 1776 abject and servile civic slavery is planned and advised; in 1776 A. D. government was honored as a noble tool for the service of the people; in H. R. 1776 government is made a dictator unrestricted.

Totalitarianism and dictatorship are wrong, false and deceptive ways of doing because no one man knows enough to determine and to order what is wise and right; the combined judgment of the citizens is more capable of discovering what is right and wise. If there must be outright war it should be undertaken only when the majority of the people order it. At this moment 85 per cent of the American people are positively opposed to our entering this war and do not believe it necessary that we should enter it. Must we set up, even temporarily, a totalitarian state in order to eliminate totalitarianism from the world, or do we believe that democracy in its own right and by its own methods is stronger than any dictatorship?

In the name of 1776 A. D. we ought to, and we must demand that H. R. 1776 be not amended by sugar coated camouflage, but killed! FRANK D. SLUTZ.

OUR MAPS.

Delavan, Wis., Jan. 28.—I should like to express my appreciation of the many fine maps you have printed in your Sunday edition. My family and I have preserved quite a number of them carefully. For instance, only last night in discussing a topic at a meeting of my club, I used a map dated May 3, 1936, another Aug. 11, 1940; January, 1938, and pictures from the Jan. 26, 1941, issue.

Also the art reproductions have been of notable excellence. These have been preserved, too, many of them mounted for use in art programs or study at school or in club meetings. Would it be possible to have even more of them? They are really so much appreciated. I am hoping that your paper will carry some reproductions from the great Goya exhibition soon to open at the Art Institute.

Thirdly, I should like to say how vivid and inspiring yet is the memory of the Woman congress that I was privileged to attend That was the last year the congress was held. It was a rare experience and most deeply appreciated.

[MRS. I. B.] FLORENCE J. DAVIES.

WAR IN PICTURES.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Thanks for the world war pictures which appeared in the picture section of SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE. May I suggest that more pictures, and more gruesome pictures, be printed? People in general do not realize just what war is. Even the young men who are to do the fighting have but a vague idea. This would wake them and the public in general up to the fact that they are the ones who will get the short end of the deal if they allow the prowar propaganda to get the best of them. W. P.

"WHAT CHICAGO NEEDS."

Chicago, Feb. 3.—In your editorial on "What Chicago Needs," in which you discussed Morgan L. Fitch's demands for Chicago, you said that apart from a modernized transportation system, "everything else that Mr. Fitch called for can be placed in a single basket, the basket of more efficient and intelligent local government. That the city can have if it wants it enough to get up on its hind legs and yell for it."

Yelling for efficient government in the abstract isn't enough. Certain governmental structures are more likely to produce efficient government than others, and the public wants to yell for those specific objectives.

The first objective is a smaller city council of 11 to 15 members, elected at large by proportional representation. This will give the people a council composed of men of higher and more independent caliber than are produced by ward peanut politics, representative of all the groups which make up the city, and small enough to work effectively and to be watched by the public. Cincinnati with a council of nine elective at large by proportional representation, Detroit with a council of nine elected at large, and New York with a council of 26 elected essentially at large by proportional representation, have all demonstrated these results and the gains made when they discarded big councils elected on a ward basis and streamlined their government. But Chicago plods along behind its oxcart model council.

This first objective is 50 per cent of the city manager plan, and the foundation of its success. The other 50 per cent, and the second objective is the appointment of a competent administrator by such a council as the city manager.

Chicagoans should yell, and yell so loudly that their cries can be heard in Springfield, that the legislature will give them the right to go to the polls to vote on the adoption of these two objectives which are most likely to give Chicago efficient and intelligent government.

ROBERT TODD MCKINLAY.

REVEILLE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—In Saturday's TRIBUNE Mr. William C. Abbott contradicted an article in Wednesday's TRIBUNE which was absolutely correct. Reveille is the call to awake in the morning and also the time at which the sentries cease to challenge. Reveille is usually sounded at 5 a. m., at which time you have to arise, get washed and fully dressed, and put your quarters in order for the day. First call is sounded at 5:45 a. m.; assembly at 5:55 a. m.; roll call is at 6 a. m.; call to colors at 7:45 a. m., and flag raising at 8 a. m. in all military posts. So the gentleman should read up a little or join the army and find out for himself.

AN EX-MARINE.

ANOTHER RESIGNATION.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Today I have mailed in my resignation from the Hyde Park League of Women Voters. I am making this announcement because the public should know that when the National League of Women Voters indorses the "lease-lend" bill it is not speaking for all of its members. The membership at large has never voted on this question and certainly is not unanimously in favor of this bill.

[MRS. EARLE A.] MIRIAM B. SHILTON.

RUSSIA FIRST.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Before Hitler can attack the United States he must conquer Russia because while his army would be on the way here the Russian army would simply march into Germany without opposition. JIM NOVAK.

RENT ARREARS.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In the year 1929 owing to unemployment I moved from an apartment owing the owner around $200 in back rent. I was unable to pay.

1. I heard nothing of this until the summer of 1940, when I received from a lawyer claims for same.

2. Also in due time a judgment was taken out against me and to appear in court for examination. I appeared in a Chicago court on the day and date fixed by the court and was duly sworn in but instead [3] of my case being tried in open court [4] the lawyer who was suing me took me into a side place and examined me thereby word of mouth.

5. I agreed to pay $5.00 per month toward this amount. I have paid him around $30 and now find myself unable to continue these payments owing to similar circumstances which existed with me in 1929.

6. Please advise. J. K.

1. Unless special facts were present to extend the period such as a part payment or a new promise or your absence from the state, the debt is barred by the 10 year limitation period.

2. If an ordinary suit was brought against you and you failed to present the defense of the statute of limitations, then presumably the judgment is binding. If it is a confession judgment then you should promptly move to vacate the judgment as soon as you learn that it has been entered.

3. Presumably you are in court on proceedings to enforce the judgment. On such proceedings the validity of the judgment is not in issue.

4. This is the usual procedure on citation.

5. It seems probable that it is too late for you to present your defense.

6. You should have asked for advice, at a time when the advice could do you some good. Even tho your delay has prejudiced your case, we suggest that you have a personal interview with an attorney.

MAX ANNENBERG, EX-NEWSPAPER EXECUTIVE, DIES

Passing in West Follows Five Months' Illness.

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 7, Friday [Special].—Max Annenberg, former director of circulation of the New York Daily News and one of the country's outstanding newspaper executives, died at his home here at 2:10 a. m. Chicago time after a five-month illness. He was 66 years old.

Stricken last September, Annenberg underwent an operation at Beth Israel hospital, Newark, N. J. He recuperated at Doctors' hospital in New York and came to his winter home here three months ago.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Max Annenberg was born on a farm near Koenigsberg, Prussia, in 1875. He was one of a family of nine children, all of whom came with their parents to the United States in 1884. His father, Tobias, started a small grocery store at 1255 South State street, Chicago, and Max began helping family finances at 9 by selling papers in the streets.

Three Years a Newsboy.

He could not pronounce the names of some of the papers he carried, but he could sell them. For three years he peddled papers in Chicago before and after school.

Max was only 12 when his father died. With so many mouths in the family to feed, the death of Tobias meant the end of school for Max and he now went to work in earnest. In a few years, he was covering a sizable section of his neighborhood with newspaper sales, using a wagon he at first borrowed, then bought.

Shortly after the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893, he started to work for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. He gathered subscriptions when he could. He remained with THE TRIBUNE, progressing in importance, until 1900, when he joined the Hearst organization. In 1904 he became circulation manager of all the Hearst newspapers and the Cosmopolitan magazine.

Annenberg returned to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in 1910, and for more than 30 years, until his death, he was a stalwart of the organization.

Promoter of Tribune Growth.

Annenberg was greatly instrumental in aiding the growth of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. In 1919, when The News was started in New York, Annenberg began to divide his time between Chicago and New York. As circulation director for the Tribune publications, he was then also supervising the circulation growth of the New York News. In May, 1924, when Liberty magazine was founded under the sponsorship of the News and the Tribune, Annenberg took charge of its circulation also.

In 1926, he moved to New York with his family. That year, he was appointed general manager of Liberty. The magazine was sold to MacFadden publications in 1931. Annenberg then became general manager of the Detroit Mirror, acquired by the News and Tribune ownership as part of the sale of Liberty.

Returns to New York.

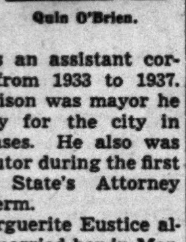
On November 1, 1932, he returned to New York and took up the post that was his until the time of his last illness, that of director of circulation for The News.

His home was at 480 Park avenue.

In addition to his widow, the former Etta Lando, he leaves three children and five grandchildren. The children are Mrs. Sulva Leichner, wife of Charles Leichner, New York broker; Mrs. Mindell Gross, wife of Benjamin Gross, a New York jewelry manufacturer, and Ivan Annenberg, now director of circulation of the News and at present a second lieutenant in the army.

QUIN O'BRIEN, 69, DIES; FORMERLY CITY LEGAL AID

Funeral services for Quin O'Brien, former assistant corporation counsel, will be held at 10 a. m. today in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, 629 Belmont avenue. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Mr. O'Brien died of heart disease Tuesday in the home of his son, Brendan, 917 North Kimball avenue. He was 69 years old.



Quin O'Brien.

Mr. O'Brien was an assistant corporation counsel from 1933 to 1937. While Carter Harrison was mayor he served as attorney for the city in personal injury cases. He also was an assistant prosecutor during the first eight months of State's Attorney Courtney's first term.

In 1937 Miss Marguerite Eustice alleged that he had married her in Morrison, Whiteside county, and sued for separate maintenance. The litigation ended recently when Judge Oscar Nelson ordered the record of the marriage license expunged. Miss Eustice calls herself Mrs. O'Brien and has a son 4 years old whom she calls Quin O'Brien Jr.

Mr. O'Brien leaves a daughter, Mrs. James W. Egan Jr., and another son, Justin.

JUDGE ORDERS RECORD VOICE TO IDENTIFY ITSELF

Wants to Know About a Few Kisses.

Judge Rudolph Desort yesterday ordered Miss Mildred Dunn to appear in Superior court at noon today to determine if hers is the "voice on the record" in the phonograph divorce case involving her sister, Mrs. Edith Feiler, and Mrs. Feiler's husband, Lawrence. Feiler, a radio engineer, has produced the record purporting to detail a telephone conversation between himself and Miss Dunn in which she allegedly implicated her sister with another man.

Miss Dunn, 22 years old, is reported to be living at 8855 Lowe avenue with Mrs. Feiler, who is 24. Norman Becker, attorney for Mrs. Feiler, promised that Miss Dunn would be in court today.

Wants to Know About Kisses.

The court also wishes to question Miss Dunn concerning Feiler's denial yesterday that he ever kissed her or put his arms around her. Attorney Becker asked these questions over the objection of Attorney Robert Cantwell Jr., representing Feiler.

Mrs. Feiler, who has custody of her daughter, Jean, 4 years old, is suing for divorce, charging cruelty. Feiler's cross bill accuses her of misconduct.

At a hearing earlier this week, Feiler played an indistinct record of the alleged telephone conversation with Miss Dunn. The woman's voice on the record related that she had once seen a man, identified as Roy, in bed at the Lowe avenue apartment and Mrs. Feiler was in the room, wearing only a bathrobe. Mrs. Feiler, who has denied her husband's adultery charge, said she could not recognize the voice as her sister's.

Smashes Other Record.

Feiler also said that on another occasion he stood outside the apartment, placed a small microphone at the bottom of the door, connected it with the phonograph recording device and himself donned headphones. He asserted that, thru the headphones, he heard details of an alleged rendezvous between his wife and Roy in the apartment. He said he destroyed the record, not wanting his daughter to ever know of it.

THE SMITHS (ALL OF 'EM!) INVITED TO W-G-N SHOW

The Play? Why, It's About a Man Named Smith!

Calling all Smiths?

An invitation to all of Chicago's Smiths to attend a broadcast in the W-G-N main audience studio Feb. 28 was issued yesterday by Frank P. Schreiber, W-G-N coördinator. The occasion will be the première of a new program, "Whispering Smith."

All Smiths are eligible. But the bars are down to the Smythes, the Oldsmiths, Blacksmiths, and MacSmiths. Only plain S-M-I-T-H-S may apply for tickets. [See box on Page 1.] There are 5,380 Smiths in the Chicago and suburban telephone directories.

Members of the national Fred Smith club will be given special invitations, as will Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and other well known personages bearing this ancient and honorable name. Wilfrid Smith, TRIBUNE sports expert, will report the show if he can get away from his Golden Gloves duties.

A Legendary Character.

"Whispering Smith" is based on a book of the same title by Frank Spearman, first published in 1906. Whispering Smith is a legendary character whose name is heard wherever stories of the winning of the west by the railroads are told.

The story deals with the struggle betwen George McCloud, young superintendent charged with building the railroad line into the frontier country, and Murray Sinclair, an able but unscrupulous wrecking crew foreman. As tension heightens the strange figure of Whispering Smith appears from the hills and takes a hand.

Smith's peculiarity is that when danger threatens he loses his voice and is able to speak only in a whisper—a whisper compared in the old west to the rattle of a rattlesnake. He is a supermarksman and a friend of presidents and section hands alike.

Pictures to Tell Story.

Blair Walliser will direct the "Whispering Smith" series, which will be heard each Friday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. John D. Hess adapted the book for radio. Picures linked with the episodes of the series will be published in the Graphic section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

The part of Whispering Smith will be played by Hugh Studebaker, one of radio's outstanding actors. In the all-star cast will be Carleton KaDell as McCloud, Willard Waterman as Sinclair, Les Spears as Alec [Sinclair's assistant], Phyllis Dobson as Dicksie Dunning [whose hand is sought by McCloud], and Luise Barclay as Marion, wife of Sinclaire. Harold Stokes and his orchestra will supply the musical background.

BAIL BOND CASE FIGURE IS FREED IN SECOND TRIAL

Sam Brin, west side tavernkeeper, yesterday was acquitted for the second time by a Criminal court jury in Judge John Sbarbaro's court on a charge of forging a Municipal court bail bond. He was acquitted at his first trial last March. Four indictments are still pending against him.

Sam Brin.

Brin was accused of forging the name of Harold Gendon, ostensible owner of a Bellwood lot with an assessed valuation of $97, as security for bonds many times its value. The bonds were approved by Eugene L. McGarry, former Municipal court judge.

At both trials Brin testified that Gendon gave him permission to sign Gendon's name. Gendon, a state witness, denied this. Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford, who prosecuted the case before Judge John Sbarbaro, said he would confer today with State's Attorney Courtney on the disposition of the remaining indictments.

McGarry wis indicted for conspiracy in connection with the bail bond case, but the indictment was dismissed. His disbarment was recently recommended to the Illinois Supreme court by the Chicago Bar association.

GRANDMA LOSES CHILD'S CUSTODY; WEEPS IN COURT

Judge Harry M. Fisher yesterday ordered Mrs. Anna Valunas, 54 years old, 1611 North Wood street, to give custody of her granddaughter, Geraldine, 5, to the child's father, Joseph Kmet, 24, of 2027 Crystal street. Kent charged that Mrs. Valunas had been holding the child illegally since the death of his wife two years ago. After the court hearing Mrs. Valunas became hysterical and was restrained by bailiffs when she sought to grab the child from Deputy Sheriff Mary Deverman. Both the child and the grandmother were in tears.

HOUSE BILL AIMS TO GIVE CCC BOYS ARMY TRAINING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 [Special].—Another effort to bring military training to 270,000 American youths, between the ages of 17 and 23, enrolled in camps of the Civilian Conservation corps thruout the nation will be made shortly, it was learned today. A bill introduced by Representative Jennings Randolph [D., W. Va.] has been referred to the house committee on labor and education, and is expected to come up for public hearings within a few weeks. Heretofore, the administration has defeated other efforts to provide military training to CCC youths, who receive special instruction in such arts as cooking and road building. But since the passage of the conscription bill, which applies to all men between the ages of 21 and 35, it is reported that many members of congress are determined to end the present exemption of the CCC enrollees from army life.

ICKES ASKS COURT RULING ON FIRST WIFE'S ESTATE

Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, and his foster son, Robert, filed a petition in Superior court yesterday asking the court to construe certain provisions of the will of Ickes' first wife, Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes. She was killed in 1935 in an automobile accident near Valarde, N. M. Ickes has since remarried.

Ickes, according to the petition, contends that Mrs. Ickes' estate was left with full control to him while Robert alleges that the estate was turned over to Ickes in trust with certain provisions for Robert and other members of the family. Both Ickes and his son have agreed to arbitration by the court.

Mrs. Ickes left an estate estimated at $800,000.

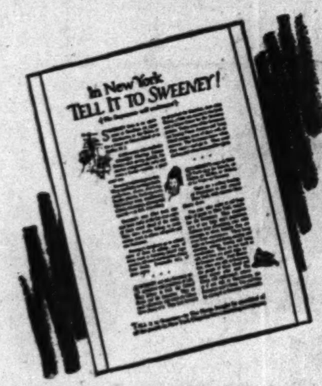
TELL IT TO SWEENEY!



IN 1922, The News launched a series of advertisements called "Tell it to Sweeney".

The first message described the family: "Sweeney and Mrs. Sweeney are ambitious and expectant of Life. They believe in God, the United States and life insurance. They respect education, and want the kids to have plenty of it. They look forward to grapefruit for breakfast, their own homes, a little car, money in the bank, and a better future for the Sweeney juniors. Today some of the Sweeneys are buying Pierce Arrows and Long Island estates; more of them will, tomorrow. The Sweeneys know what they want—and get it. They want the best, and whenever possible—get it."

Because the Sweeneys are the greatest and most productive market in New York, we advised advertisers to Tell it to Sweeney—in The News. And wise advertisers did!

When the first Sweeney message was written, The News was scarcely out of swaddling clothes. At that time the Daily News had 500,000 circulation, and the Sunday News less than 400,000. Today The News is infinitely larger. The Daily News now has more than 1,900,000 circulation, and the Sunday News more than 3,600,000.

Advertising volume has grown too. In 1922 The News published 3,300,000 lines. In 1940, The News ran more than 19,400,000 lines.

As the years streaked across the calendar, the Sweeneys grew in number and importance. They got married, had kids, drew promotions, bought cars, and purchased homes in the city or went suburban. Through a bull market, a bear market, and our own fast moving times, the Sweeneys have always been the greatest market.

Advertisers who early took the sound advice of "Tell it to Sweeney" profited by the growth of the Sweeneys and The News. Our early advertisers are our staunchest friends. As the Sweeneys and The News grew, their business grew too.

Today The News is read by eight families in ten in New York City. Most of them are Sweeneys, but an ever increasing number are Stuyvesants, of bluer blood and richer antecedents. Each year they spend billions—a lot of billions—for things which make Life fuller, homes happier, and living a more satisfying adventure. If you have merchandise to sell, your soundest maxim is still Tell it to Sweeney—in the News!

MIDWINTER NO LONGER IS DULL TIME FOR FOODS

Many Interesting Kinds Are Available.

BY MARY MEADE.

You're wrong—this is not the season of the year when the same old bargain foods appear over and over on your grocer's counters—a penny up on this vegetable, a couple of pennies down on that one. It may seem to be an unexciting time of year, gastronomically speaking, but just listen to this:

Avocados from California, delicately flavored and buttery textured, are at the season's low point in price and high point in quality. Less than 10 years ago this fruit was unknown on the average Chicago table, now it's hardly considered exotic.

Mushrooms are a delicacy which once was in season only after a heavy shower and then you had to go out in the woods after them. Now, pearly white mushrooms of standard quality are specially cultivated. This is the season for mushrooms, they're most plentiful and at their cheapest right now.

Artichokes Are Available.

Artichokes, aristocrats among vegetables, have been turning up at infrequent intervals in the Chicago market lately. Last week's supply was more substantial.

Strawberry business is beginning to pick up—by the end of the month shipments from Louisiana will be joining the present Florida supplies to swell the numbers of berries on the Chicago market. Prices are dropping gradually on berries—and you can hardly classify them as everyday stuff.

The tangerine season is just winding up, but this dainty-skinned member of the citrus family has been available since early in December. And speaking of citrus fruits, grapefruit has been unusually delicious as well as unusually low priced this winter. As you know, the winter months are the best ones for high quality, low priced oranges and grapefruit.

Rhubarb Is a Bargain.

Rhubarb, a spring harbinger if ever there was one, is another food that is hardly common place in February, even tho it happens to be one of this week's excellent bargains.

One can hardly consider such vegetables as lettuce and greens, cucumbers, tomatoes, zucchini squash, and green peppers in a listing of winter's uncommon foods—just that accustomed to them have we become. But all of them are summer vegetables and to have them at all puts the modern city menu-planner just one step ahead of her grandmother. Out of season vegetables fresh from the southland are no novelty to today's housewife, but they would have been to the home-maker of 25 years ago.

And whenever this list isn't long enough to give variety to daily menus, there are always the quick frozen foods. These are becoming more generally available each season and with them corn on the cob, fresh raspberries and fresh peaches are always in season and always at top notch quality.

Many Heartier Foods.

Also, there are those heartier foods, baked beans, pancakes and the like, which you hesitate to serve in summer but which are another winter time menu possibility.

As for meats, there is a fairly varied list on the bargain counter this week. Pork again leads with lowest prices. Rib ends of pork loin roasts are retailing at around 15 cents. The general trend of pork prices seems to be a little higher this week than last, but this meat is still inexpensive.

Few stores fail to feature leg of lamb at attractive prices, and several stores have bargains in other lamb cuts. Smoked pork cuts have been good all winter, and now ham is appearing on the grocer's special lists more frequently. Beef to be braised, Swiss steaks and pot roasts are pretty generally featured and beef rib roasts are specially priced here and there. Veal is high.

Low Priced Fish Items.

If you like a fish dinner, for variety, you may choose from these low priced items: Lake herring, sauger pike from Canada, yellow perch or pike, and Canadian white fish. Shrimp, which was an excellent bargain and very plentiful last week, is still inexpensive, but arriving in much smaller quantities this week.

This week's list of higher priced vegetables includes green beans [the very best quality only], better quality broccoli, better quality carrots, cucumbers, spinach, green peppers, and hubbard squash. New cabbage, cauliflower, and lettuce are a little cheaper this week. New potatoes, already a bargain last week, are still cheaper. Greens are reasonably priced and endive is somewhat cheaper than lettuce.

Bananas Ripen Better When Not Refrigerated

Bananas are one fruit that should not be stored in the refrigerator. The cold temperature impairs the flavor and prevents proper ripening. Fully ripe bananas have a yellow peel flecked with brown and the yellow "hard ripe" and green tipped "turning" bananas will reach this stage of full ripeness if left at room temperature. The fully ripe fruit gives best results in bakery products, mashes more smoothly, and discolors less quickly.

BAKED MACARONI DOLLED UP WITH OLIVES HAS ZIP

Baked macaroni and cheese is one of those basic dishes good "as is"—and even better dolled up. Here's a delicious dolled up version with plenty of flavor and zip.

BAKED MACARONI WITH RIPE OLIVES.
[Serves six]

- 6 servings cooked macaroni
- 1 cup grated American cheese
- 1 cup dried beef
- ¼ cup chopped canned green chili pepper
- ⅔ cup chopped or sliced ripe olives
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup milk
- 1 cup corn flakes

Combine macaroni, cheese, beef, chili pepper, ripe olives, and the eggs and milk which have been beaten together. Turn into buttered casserole or baking dish and cover with corn flakes. Bake in a moderate [375 degrees] oven 30 or 40 minutes.

Who Is This Girl?

By Helen Topping Miller

[Copyright 1941: By Helen Topping Miller.]

FLIGHT WEST.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

Mother Regina unfolded her quiet hands, folded them again.

"I'm sorry again—that is another of our peculiar and rigid rules. We never give out names, unless we are specially instructed to do so."

"But surely you can tell us where she is gone?" Beatrice insisted.

"I cannot—because I was not told. I was told that if ever we wished to communicate with Storm again we could do so thru Mr. Dunlap, of New York."

"But Dunlap doesn't know where she is. I talked to him only yesterday."

"I am only telling you what was told to me, Mr. McCullough. I am sorry I cannot help you further. But I was assured that Storm was in good hands, and would be well taken care of. And she went willingly—there was no coercion."

"Thank you, Mother," Beatrice held out her hand.

McCullough too, tried to be gracious, but his jaw was outthrust and his brows drawn in darkly when they went out.

"Some low heel!" he flared, as soon as the tall doors closed after them. "He let her mother die—let her starve, likely—and then somehow he got wind of Harp's will. So now he shows up."

"But if Steele knows where she is, he must have learned today. He was certainly not aware that she had left the convent yesterday."

"He'll hear promptly enough—when this father gets ready to collect. And—what can we do?"

"It appears," said Beatrice, "that there is noting we can do, except to wait."

"I can't endure any more waiting," McCullough declared, "I'll see Dunlap as soon as we're back in New York."

But when he rang the bell at Steele Dunlap's apartment the next day, the door was opened to him by Moran.

"Hello, Moran. What are you doing here?"

"I'm working here now, Mr. Mac. I came over yesterday—just before Mr. Dunlap went away."

"So—he went away, did he?"

"Yes sir, he left by plane last night. He went to San Mateo."

The ranch house at San Mateo was long and low and rambling, built half of plastered adobe and half of stone and rough hewn timbers. Harp Greenlee had modernized it somewhat within, but without it was still of the old west. An open breezeway ran between the main structure and an added wing, and in this open space Mom Terrell hung up her clothes to dry when Harp was not in residence.

When Harp had made his periodical visits to the place, wicker chairs and cushions occupied the breezeway, an awning went up and little tables were put around to hold trays of glasses and ash trays, but now all this furniture was stacked in an unused bedroom, and Mom went in occassionally and flicked a feather duster over it, frowning in disgust at the cigaret burns on the arms of the chairs.

Now and then she ventured into the closed room at the end of the wing, where rose silk curtains showed yellow streaks from the too ardent sun of summer, and the odor of Gertrude's perfumes, her cosmetics and her elaborate lingerie still remained.

Whenever she dusted this chamber Mom always snorted a little but on this November morning she entered it with a kind of triumphant fire in her usually placid eye.

"Well, anyway," she said aloud, grimly, as she glared at the draped dressing table and the chaise lounge, "you won't be coming here any more, madam! We're thru with you and your kind forever, thank the Lord!"

She picked up a gold stoppered bottle, sniffed at it, poured a few drops into her palm and dabbed it on her plump neck.

"Now I'll be smelling like a hussy," she grinned dryly at her broad reflection in the gold-framed mirror. "My gosh—I just can't realize he's gone. But I guess we will now—plenty."

She opened the windows of the fluffy room, letting the cool, fall breeze stray in, bringing with it the smell of sage brush and cedar and dust and drying grass. The fall months had been dry, all the streams were low and the sun was still warm and yellow on the seared hills. The sheep hung around the muddy tanks where the windmills trundled languidly, and where a little green still showed in the close-cropped grass. There had been no frost as yet and the mesquite thickets were thinly feathered with lank leaves, hanging dusty and sapless from the twisted branches.

Mom Terrell looked out upon the landscape, shaking her head till the graying biscuit of hair pinned at the back waggled. Things certainly lookd dismal in San Mateo. It was as tho death had crossed the continent, to lie like a blight over the place, now that Harp was dead.

Bart Williams was worried, and the boys rode about soberly, and the guitar and the accordion lay on the bunkhouse shelf, gathering dust. Lank Parrish had returned from New York wearing a somber face. Mom shook her duster out the window, closed the casements and fastened the bolts. She looked around the dainty, ornate room seeing absently that the bedspread was fading, enamel chipping from the arms of a stain-covered slipper chair, mildew beginning to darken one corner of the tall mirror between the windows. She wondered when this room would be occupied again, who would use that rose-colored tub and the shower with the transparent curtain that her simple soul considered indecent, whose face would look out from that looking glass.

"It won't be her!" she said aloud again, as she went out and banged the door.

The sun had thrust a long golden spear into the open space of the breezeway, and Bart's two hunting dogs had moved out of the sunshine and stretched on the hard boards under a bench. The bench had come from an abandoned Mexican church and the high ends had a rounded cruciform carving. Mom sat down because her body was heavy and her feet weary, pushing a dog amiably out of her way with her toe.

"You won't be around here long, making free of the place," she informed the dog, "and probably I won't be around either. I don't like moving and I've been here a long time, but there's some things I ain't going to stand. And one of 'em is that hombre."

She rested for a little, fanning her warm face with the dust cloth, then rose with a little grunt and went slowly down a path toward the row of frame buildings, the two small cottages and the longer bunkhouse. In one cottage Bart Williams lived alone, since his wife had died, the other was Mom's own domicile. Down a slope past a truckling windmill were the adobe jacals occupied by the Mexican hands. Plantamora's house was splashed over with pink whitewash, and upon the front wall was looped an enormous, flamboyant garland of strung scarlet peppers.

At the foot of the hill was the scraped, flattened space that Harp had scooped out for a landing field. For more than a year now no plane had set down there, grass had invaded the dry clay runway and a wind sock dangled, torn and rotted.

Around the space intended for a lawn, a hedge of spineless cactus made a barrier and in the corner a Mexican poinsettia opened its magenta bloom. Mom went to the windmill, held an old coffee pot under the faucet, carried water to the poinsettia. The dry earth crackled and fried a little as she poured it, and she gazed up anxiously at the thin, tiny looking sky, where only one frail and dry looking cloud hung, wearily, like a wisp of rag under a dome. No rain there. Mom sighed and returned the coffee pot to the hooked wire over the pump. Then she straightened and turned as a car came grinding up the stony lane from the dirt road below.

"Hello, Lily," she hurried heavily toward the gate as the car stopped, "get down and come on in."

The car was a small, shining roadster and the girl who jumped down from behind the wheel was smartly turned out and shining too. She was tall, with short, dark hair, curling at her neck, golden skin and dark eyes set under slightly slanting black brows. She wore a yellow silk sweater under a brown wool suit, and her skirt had a fashionable flare. Her brown felt hat had a tiny yellow feather thrust under the band, and in the breast pocket of her coat the corners of a yellow silk handkerchief showed.

"My, you look stylish," Mom beamed, "high heels and everything."

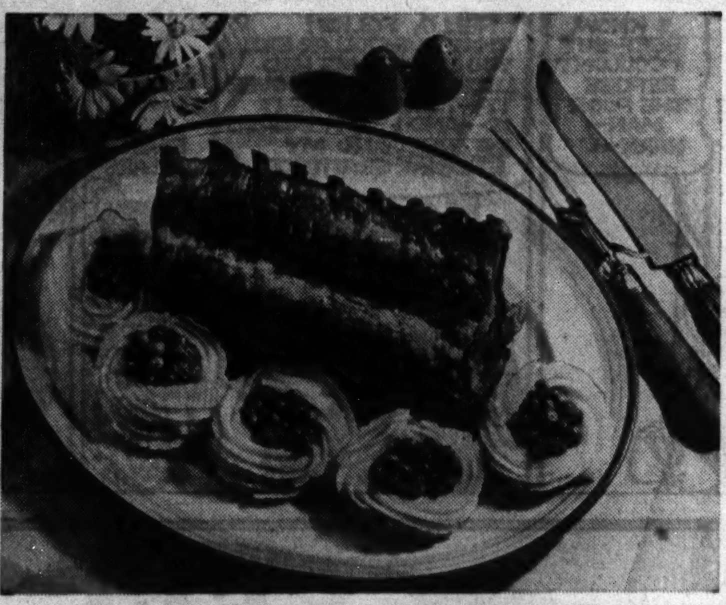
Pork Loin Roast a Treat



One of the week's better meat buys, pork loin roast comes to the table decilately browned, juicy, and tender. Yours will come out of the oven in the same mouth watering style if you follow these simple directions: Have the butcher loosen the backbone from the ribs to simplify carving. Wipe meat and season with salt and pepper. Place, fat side up, in an open roasting pan and bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven. Cook without covering or adding water. Allow about 30 minutes per pound. A roast meat thermometer will register 185 degrees when the meat is done.

Dash of Spice Adds Zest to Commonplace Flavors

A little spice sometimes will give new zip and life to commonplace flavors. Try adding a teaspoon of cinnamon to your next batch of maple ice cream or maple frosting. Just a fleck of the same spice is good in cocoa or hot chocolate. The spice should not dominate; use just enough to enhance the chocolate or maple flavor already there.

THIS PRUNE PUDDING APPEALS TO CHILDREN AND GROWNUPS ALIKE

Both children and grownups like this delicately spiced prune pudding. Serve it with top milk or whipped cream. For additional flavor try adding a little grated orange rind to water in which the prunes are cooked.

PRUNE PUDDING.

[Serves 4 to 6.]

¼ pound prunes
1½ cups cold water
½ cup sugar
One inch stick of cinnamon or ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
4 tablespoons flour.
4 tablespoons cold water

Wash prunes in several changes of water and soak overnight in 1½ cups cold water. Cook in same water until tender. Drain off and save water. Remove seeds and cut prunes in small pieces. Add sugar, cinnamon. Measure water drained from prunes and add more water to make 2 cups. Add this to prunes and bring to boiling point. Simmer 10 minutes. Add flour mixed to smooth paste with cold water. Cook 10 minutes longer, stirring constantly, over a very low heat or in top of double boiler. Remove stick cinnamon and turn into pudding mold or serving dishes. Chill before serving.

HERE'S WELCOME NEW RECIPE FOR THE COOKIE JAR

Here's a crisp, flavorful little cookie that's just waiting for a chance to appear on your tea table. Or it'll come to dinner along with the dessert course, if you prefer.

HONEY ORANGE CRISPS.

[9 dozen 2 inch cookies.]

¾ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup honey
1½ teaspoons ginger
2 tablespoons orange juice
½ teaspoon orange extract
3 cups sifted flour

Cream shortening and sugar together until light. Add beaten egg, honey and ginger, mixing until smooth. Mix in orange juice and orange extract. Add flour, a cup at a time, mixing until smooth. Chill. Roll out thinly on lightly floured board and cut with cookie cutter. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet in moderate oven [350 degrees] for 8 to 10 minues.

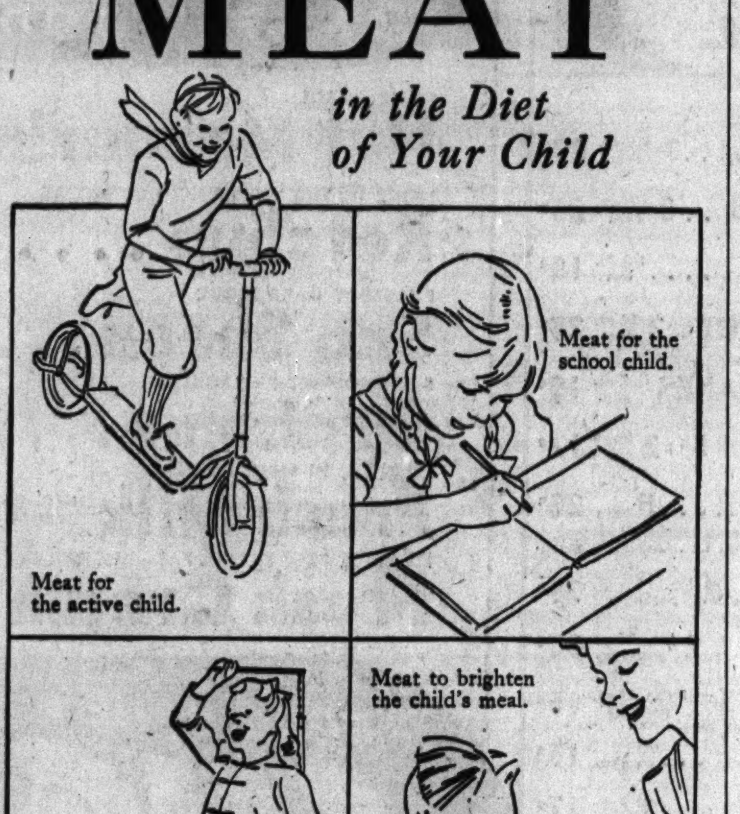
MEAT

in the Diet of Your Child



A famous nutritionist says: "The growth of children, their disposition, their posture, the condition of their teeth, are all directly affected by the kind of food they eat. . . . When children are properly fed, they are better able to resist or throw off sickness. Also, success in their schoolwork is conditioned by their daily food."

Physicians today are advocating a well-balanced diet, one in which meat has an important place. One reason for this is the complete, high quality protein of meat.

A growing child requires two to three and one-half times as much protein per unit of body weight as an adult. Physicians agree that a goodly part of this daily protein requirement is supplied in an excellent manner by meat.

You probably know the importance of the B vitamins which are needed for growth—but did you know that meat is one of the good, natural sources of at least three of these vitamins—thiamine (vitamin B_1), riboflavin (vitamin B_2) and the anti-pellagra vitamin?

The iron and copper of meat contribute to good, red blood, and the phosphorus of meat works with the calcium from other foods to produce sound teeth and healthy bones.

Meat done to a turn whets the appetite and is very digestible. Most children love it. Are you giving them as much meat as perhaps you should?

NOVEL DESSERTS ARE CONCOCTED FROM ICE CREAM

Some of These Dishes Will Win Acclaim.

Ice cream is a fine dessert all by itself, but it can be dressed up to everyone's advantage.

There are always the sundae sauces, and cake and pie a la mode.

Here are some more unusual ice cream glorifications. None of them are difficult to concoct and they'll earn you a reputation for cleverness.

PEANUT BRITTLE ICE CREAM DESSERT.
[Serves 6].

1 quart vanilla, chocolate or maple ice cream
1 cup whipped cream
½ cup crushed peanut brittle
¼ cup crushed peanut brittle for garnish

Line refrigerator freezing tray with waxed paper and turn ice cream into tray, smoothing it out evenly on top. Spread with whipped cream into which peanut brittle has been folded. Sprinkle top with additional peanut brittle. Cover with waxed paper and place in freezing compartment until ready to serve. If the waxed paper lining is enough to protrude from the tray, the ice cream can be removed easily. Slice to serve.

ICE CREAM CAKE LOAF.
[Serves 6].

Line freezing tray with waxed paper and cut thin layer of chocolate or sponge cake to fit tray. Place in tray and spread with a pint of ice cream of any desired flavor. Spread with thin layer of fruit preserves and cover with stiffly whipped sweetened cream. Sprinkle top with toasted, slivered almonds and place in freezing compartment until firm. Slice to serve.

INDIVIDUAL PINEAPPLE ALASKAS.
[Serves 4].

4 slices canned pineapple
1 pint vanilla ice cream
3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar
Shredded coconut

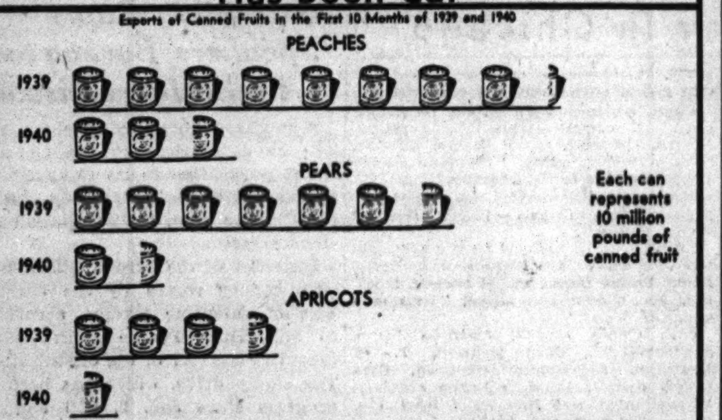
Place pineapple slices on ovenproof platter or in glass baking dish. Top each slice with dipper of ice cream and spread quickly with meringue made of beaten egg white and sugar. Sprinkle with shredded coconut. Put under preheated hot broiler for 3 or 4 minutes, until lightly browned and serve immediately.

Ice cream tarts are somewhat similar to the pineapple alaskas. In this recipe canned fruit in its own thickened juice is used for the base. If you prefer a thin layer of strawberry or raspberry jam may take the place of the fruit.

ICE CREAM NOSEGAYS.

For these you will need little fluted paper cups. Fill the cups with ice cream and top with whipped cream. Top with halved candied cherries and candied pineapple with candied mint leaves around the border. The nosegay illusion will be heightened if a paper dolley edging is given the little cup. To make the dolley edging buy doileys which have a solid center portion the size of the ice cream cups. With scissors slash the solid portion of the doiley in radiating lines beginning at the exact center of the doiley and cutting to the edge of the solid section. This will leave the lace intact. Then push the paper cup thru the center of the doiley. You will have a neat little lace collar around the rim of each paper cup.

Canned Fruit Supply Should Be Plentiful—the Foreign Demand Has Been Cut



Distribution of Last Gas Refund Checks Approved

APPETIZERS CAN BE PREPARED AT MINUTE'S NOTICE

Gay, colorful little appetizers that can be prepared at a moment's notice are an aid to any hostess. Take these jellied tidbits, for instance. They're made of tomato aspic, molded in shallow pans, ready to serve as you need them. With this basic recipe all kinds of variations are possible.

JELLIED APPETIZERS.

1 tablespoon plain unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups canned or fresh tomatoes
½ bay leaf, if desired
½ teaspoon salt
1 stalk celery
Few grains cayenne or pepper
1 tablespoon mild vinegar or lemon juice
1 tablespoon onion juice

Mix tomatoes, bay leaf, salt, celery, and pepper and boil gently 10 minutes. Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot tomato mixture. Add vinegar and onion juice. Strain and pour into shallow square pan which has been rinsed in cold water first. Chill. When firm turn out onto board and cut into any desired shapes with cookie cutters. Place on pieces of bread or toast. Garnish with mayonnaise and a slice of stuffed olive.

Variations.

1. Place small shrimps in groups in the gelatin mixture when it begins to thicken. Chill until firm.
2. Sprinkle tiny cubes of American cheese on top of the gelatin as it begins to thicken. Press down into the gelatin with the back of a spoon.
3. Other garnishes: Sieved hard cooked egg, sprigs of parsley, tiny white onions, anchovy paste [put thru a pastry tube], and caviar.

AVOCADO SEASON NOW AT PEAK; TIME TO USE THEM IN DESSERTS

The California avocado season is in full swing, with the fruit coming to market at low prices. So now is the time to use the fruit in salads and desserts. This avocado and marmalade mousse is an excellent dessert.

AVOCADO MARMALADE MOUSSE
[Serves 8]

1 cup avocado pulp
4 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup orange marmalade
¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries

To prepare avocado pulp, cut fruit in half, lengthwise; remove seed and pull off skin. Force thru sieve. Blend lemond juice into sieved pulp. Whip cream and fold into marmalade, cherries and avocado pulp. Turn into refrigerator freezing tray and freeze without stirring. The cherries are added for color mainly and may be omitted.

Youth Should Be Gay, Also Know of Life

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

"Above all else I want my daughter to have a good time.

"I want my daughter to be popular, to be invited out a lot, and to be liked and 'dated' by the boys." That is what they say, "All I want for my daughter is to have a good time."

Of course. What mother doesn't want her daughter to have all the carefree fun and gayety that go with being young, having pretty clothes, "going places," liking boys and other girls, and being liked by them? And it is important to the happiness of a young girl to do and have these things. If you've had them yourself when you were a girl, you're aware of it. Also, if you didn't have them you're aware of it.

In addition to many mothers saying, "Above all I want my daughter to have a good time," there is a great deal of superficial advice being printed these days for young people. "How to hold your man" and "how to be popular" may belong in the advice picture, but much of it goes on to caution young people to act in certain ways because "it pays." "Be polite to your family because it makes you more attractive," and "read the papers so you can seem intelligent" are expedient or, shall we say, superficial?

Every mother wants her daughter to have a good time and should do something to bring that about. But she should be thinking of other objectives for her daughter, too, since life, even at 16, is more than "a good time." A mother should want, during these years, to help a daughter to discover herself, to further her education and cultural life so that she has resources within herself, and also sees the world outside herself, too, for certainly a life based solely on the good time idea will be empty.

Revival of Middy Blouse

MISS' MIDDY BLOUSES.

The trend toward nautical motifs in fashion has brought a return engagement for the middy blouse. [Remember it in school days?] The 1941 version is intended to be a definite fashion factor. It's smart and it's whimsical. Today's pattern makes two versions and also a jerkin in the same spirit.

An extra pattern, No. 11207, creates patriotic emblems which add a fitting and decorative touch to the bodices, sleeves, or any other part of the blouses. This design costs 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2842 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 35 inch material for sleeveless middy blouse, with 7 yards of braid; 2¾ yards of fabric with 3 yards of braid for long sleeved version; 1½ yards of fabric for jerkin.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the winter Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Did your husband Roar as he left the Breakfast Table?

Better change to McLaughlin's

MANOR HOUSE COFFEE

If your husband is too considerate to roar like an angry lion—all the more reason why he deserves better coffee! So note these important "extras," and join the thousands of other clever wives who have changed to McLaughlin's Manor House Coffee:

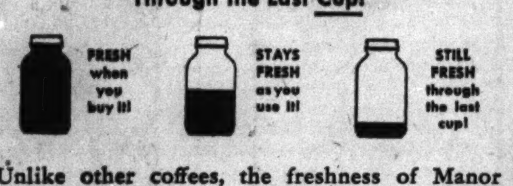
1. "Open-Flame Roasting" Keeps Extra Flavor in the Bean!

Manor House Coffee is roasted over an open flame, just as you broil a fine steak. Slower, more costly than these modern time-saving methods with their indirect heat. It's the only way to seal in the rich flavor oils that make Manor House so full-bodied and satisfying.

2. Choice of 3 Grinds Insures Extra Flavor in the Pot!

McLaughlin's Manor House is the only coffee that comes in 3 scientifically correct grinds—so you can enjoy its full-flavored perfection in pot, drip or glass coffee-maker!

3. Special Jar Preserves Extra Freshness Through the Last Cup!



Unlike other coffees, the freshness of Manor House is protected even after you open it. The rubber ring and seal-tight cap actually reseal the freshness every time you close the special "flavor preserver" jar!

Remember—you pay nothing extra for all this extra care and extra goodness. So why not change to McLaughlin's Manor House Coffee today!

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

There are times when we think the real friend of man is the chiropodist. Maybe the dentist who relieves an aching tooth runs him a close second, but the results of a visit to the dentist aren't usually felt instantly. But pop into the chiropodist's office with a bad corn or a flock of them and in half an hour or so you're a transformed person, mentally and physically!

It seems to us especially important for women to take good care of their feet. They abuse them, in the first place by poor shoes, poor posture, and poor walking habits. And when you neglect your feet you're abusing more than just the old tootsies. The discomfort will affect your looks and your disposition. But most important, unless every gear in your foot is meshing perfectly, you'll develop tricks of walking and standing that can develop into tragedies.

If one bone in your foot aches you'll get the habit of favoring it, so that your weight will be distributed unevenly. That's the starting point of a whole lot of troubles. Pretty soon the bones and muscles that you're calling on to do extra work, and work they were never intended to do, will start kicking Then's when you begin to hobble, to frown and to cultivate a sour disposition. One little corn can start this whole bad chain of events that lead up to tragedies, so what price not seeing your chiropodist?

GASOLINE ALLEY—JUST LEAD ME TO HIM!

Chicago Debs at Cornell for Junior Week

BY JUDITH CASS.

DEBUTANTES Angeline and Isabelle Johnson, who are not related, are to be among the young Chicagoans at Ithaca, N. Y., this week-end for the 59th Junior week activities at Cornell. Official festivities start this afternoon with an ice carnival. Tonight the Cornell Musical clubs will present an original musical comedy by Richard Lee, "Coediquette," after which the Junior promenade will be given in Barton hall. "She'll be smooth as satin at midnight in Manhattan" is the theme of the prom, and since every man thinks his "date" is a queen, no prom queen will be chosen tonight.

Fraternity men have spent the last few days moving their belongings out of their houses so that they might turn their rooms over to their feminine visitors for the three days of the gala week-end. Miss Isabelle Johnson, who is a student at Ogontz, is to be the guest of Carl R. Dick Jr. of Decatur at the Chi Phi house. The engagement of her sister, Ruth, to Gardiner B. Van Ness Jr. was announced in Chicago yesterday.

Many Other Chicago Girls Invited to Festivities.

Miss "Angie" Johnson also is at the Chi Phi house as the guest of Theodore W. Lanman of East Chicago. Miss Nancy Solliitt of Evanston is visiting William Wheeler, also of Evanston, at the Psi Upsilon house. Two other young Evanstonians who will be partners for the week-end are Miss Jane Love and John Sanders, who also is a member of Psi Upsilon. Lambert Neff of Evanston will have Miss Bennette Freeman of Winnetka as his guest at Sigma Chi house.

Miss Jean Husted of Evanston will have Jack Holley of Grosse Pointe, Mich., as her host at the Psi Upsilon house. Miss Margaret Adams of Oak Park will be in the Pi Kappa Alpha house as the guest of a New Yorker, Franklin Fitzgerald. Miss Mary Cleary, Miss Noreen Blum, Miss Nancy Lee Berthold, Miss Mary Ellen Sams, Miss Anne Albers, Miss Alice Northrup, Miss Virginia Bogert, Miss June Covington, Miss Betty Keller, Miss Becky Beck, Miss Marilyn Frye, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Patricia McClevey, and Miss Barbara Carr are others from the Chicago area who will be among the 1,000 "queens" at the prom.

Saugatuck Summer School Having Reunion Party.

Those who know the Summer School of Painting at Saugatuck, Mich., either thru having taught or studied there, or just having visited the interesting community, are looking forward to a 30th reunion party the small group that has fostered the school has planned. It is to be held on Saturday evening, Feb. 15, at the Cordon. The party, a buffet supper, probably will resemble one of the great concourses at the school, for guests are requested to wear whatever they would wear at the school.

One great difference, however, will be the serving of cocktails, for they are not included in school curriculum. The party is to be a birthday tribute to Fredrick F. Fursman, director of the school. Among those who will be at the reunion are Miss Abby Tallmadge, sister of the late Thomas E. Tallmadge, who bequeathed his Saugatuck estate, which adjoined the school property, to the school; Dr. and Mrs. Michael Mason, Mrs. John W. Norton, Norman Rice, Joseph T. Ryerson, Miss Mary Rend, Ralph Fletcher Seymour, the Walter Brewsters, the Emory Wilders, the Francis Chapins, Douglas Wilson, and Dr. and Mrs. John Scanlon.

U. of C. Choir and Symphony Share Honors

BY EDWARD BARRY.

For both the Chicago Symphony orchestra and the University of Chicago 1941 is a golden jubilee year. Their activities overlapped last night when the University of Chicago choir journeyed to Orchestra hall to take part in the orchestra's regular Thursday evening concert.

This concert was one of the most absorbing of the season. The quality of the choral singing was extraordinary, the works chosen for presentation were novel and extremely rewarding, and the general air was a festal one [as it always is when the stage is crammed with singers as well as orchestral players].

Under Frederick Stock's direction and with Robert Topping singing the solo tenor part, choir and orchestra gave a first Chicago performance of Kodaly's sublime Psalmus Hungaricus. The piece has a passion, a sincerity, an overwhelming beauty of idea and clarity of expression that recommend it even to those on whom its nationalistic overtones are largely or entirely lost.

Mr. Topping's atrociously difficult part, which consists mostly of recriminations, maledictions, and remarkably unhumble prayers, was done in an intelligent, richly inflected and convincing manner. The great 170 voice mixed choir sang with a stately sureness which would have done credit to a body of musicians of twice the average age of these youngsters, and which was calculated to fill a listener with curiosity as to what methods Mack Evans, their regular conductor, uses to get such remarkable results.

Mr. Evans himself conducted a choral work of quite another variety —Vaughan Williams' Magnificat for contralto, women's chorus, and orchestra. It had never before been performed at a Chicago Symphony orchestra concert.

This is the mystical Vaughan Williams at his most mystical. The dialog between Mary and the Angel of the Annunciation is set to music which is unconventional, nonliturgical and highly original, and which succeeds admirably in projecting the still, ecstatic character of the words. The soloist, Maurine Parzybok, captured the exultant quality of her part and she transformed the familiar words with a quite personal emotion. The choir sang with the purity of tone and tranquillity of phrase proper to supernatural beings.

Because of the presence of the choir, Dr. Stock and the orchestra were able to present Debussy's Three Nocturnes complete—not only the often heard "Clouds" and "Festivals" but the rarely performed "Sirens" [which requires women's voices] as well. And the legendary, moon drenched quality of "Sirens" makes it the most attractive and evocative piece in the set.

Still another event of this interest packed evening was a first performance anywhere of a Concerto for Grand orchestra by Kodály which is dedicated to the Chicago Symphony orchestra and which was written for its golden jubilee season. On first hearing the piece seems to display more of Kodály's brilliance and facility than of his gift for original and significant invention. However, this remark cannot in fairness be applied to the theme of the Largo.

Dr. Stock interspersed these major works with such attractive trifles as the overture to Cherubini's "Anacréon," "On the Shores of Soorento" from Strauss' "Aus Italien," and the Brahms Hungarian Dances, Nos. 17 to 21, in the Dvork arrangement.

New Colorful Prints Magnet for Shoppers

BY REA SEEGER.

Until you struggle thru crowds around newly unpacked prints you will not have realized how shoppers rush to get into bright cheerful dresses, the midseason pickups for any boresome wardrobe. Where and how the printmakers manage to dig up crisp, amusing, and flattering new patterns every year is something that surprises every one. This showing rivals anything in the past for unusual ideas in patterns, color, contrasts, and combines.

Brown with beige, navy blue with cadet blue, green with red, navy blue with burnt orange, a dirty green tone against vermilion, and dozens of others provide plenty of stuff to shop over. Bowknots, paisleys, blurred checks and stripes, small regular circles, snowflakes, stripes and dots combines, wavering border effects, countless small and large floral designs and the best assortment of meandering scroll patterns seen in years are now all over the town.

Red and white prints are tremendously popular, good wearable shades of red, too, and if this color lives up to its reputation for making the wearer a lion hearted individual, we the women are going to pin up a record for bravery.

Next to red are the dozens and dozens of shades of beige from the most natural sand tint thru the gamut of caramel, copper, cinnamon, luggage tan, buckskin, and so on. White prints against beige, black with beige, dark green with beige, many tones of red with beige offer the reasonable theme for accepting accessories. Green with red prints are staging a lot of excitement, as are the gay yellows with red and the orange tones with brilliant green.

Fashion photograph. . . . Spring suit designed by that famous suitmaster creed uses the horizontal stripes of a knitted fabriclike tweed for smooth swank. The slightly longer jacket has slit chest pockets and large flap pockets on the hips. The skirt is straight and slender.

Marriage Part-Time Job for Women Now, College Dean Advises

New York, Feb. 6 [Special].—The young woman who seeks the greatest happiness in life will look upon marriage as a part-time job, Dean Herman Feldman of the school of business and civic administration of the College of the City of New York said tonght at the 79th commencement exercises of Hunter college.

Dean Feldman scored the "confused attitude toward careers and marriage," which he said seriously affects the plans and progress of some women college graduates. He said their error lies in "the outmoded view" that marriage and a career are two wholly different vocations.

"Married college women themselves have demonstrated that if they have not abandoned their interests in other things, they can combine marriage with study, jobs, and effective community activities," he said.

"The young woman who seeks to get the most happiness out of her life will look forward joyfully to the prospect of marriage, but she will cease to look upon it as the exclusive, full-time, all-life career. Increasingly, it is becoming a part-time job."

Humane Society Holds 72d Annual Meeting and Elects Directors

Nine hundred and thirty-two complaints of mistreatment involving 2,900 children were investigated by the Illinois Humane society last year, according to a report at its 72d annual meeting in headquarters, 1145 South Wabash avenue, yesterday. Of this number 106 cases were prosecuted in court and 2,034 persons were admonished for neglect and cruelty to children.

During the year the society also investigated 15,720 complaints pertaining to the mistreatment of animals. Officials paid 1,431 visits to animal stores, markets, and shows. Two hundred eighty-five sick and injured animals were cared for, 88 were rescued from dangerous locations, and 877 were humanely destroyed. Homes were found for 24 children, 57 dogs, and 29 cats.

New directors elected for a three year term are Elmer F. Deneke, Robert R. Hanley, and Philip W. Moore Jr. Those reëlected are Miss Ruth Ewing, Newton C. Farr, Carl Meyer, Charles E. Murison, Mrs. F. W. Peck, Howard E. Perry, and Walter O. Wilson.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 6.—Gilbert Miller wants Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart to make a Broadway musical comedy out of Shakespeare's "The Play's the Thing," and they'll probably do it. Hart, who is here, tells me it might turn out to be a musical without comedy—an experiment in which all the rôles would be played and sung straight. Arthur Margetson, English star, would head the cast.

Nobody except those actually working on "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has seen Spencer Tracy in his Hyde makeup. The set is closed. Report is that his makeup will not be so horrific as John Barrymore's and the late Lon Chaney's. . . . Robert Taylor has had a letter from a fan in Scotland asking him to send another picture. "The first one you sent," wrote the admirer, "was bombed off the wall." . . . A panhandler is working a surefire system around the RKO premises. He asks if somebody will give an out-of-work stagehand a quarter for food. When he gets it, which he usually does because he's breezy, he then asks for a penny for the tax. . . . Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, slated to appear on a Greek relief radio show, won't do a sketch together. They've never appeared together and don't intend to. Each will have a separate spot. . . . In "A Woman's Face" Joan Crawford has to slap Ona Munson. Joan, afraid that her superlength finger nails might scratch her victim's face, has been doing her hitting with the heel of her hand—which is making Miss Munson slightly slap-happy and Miss Crawford's hand sore.

From all accounts Lana Turner gives the performance of her career in "Ziegfeld Girl." . . . Henry King, the flying director, had a narrow squeak planing back from Troy, O. Forced down by a zero ceiling at Miami, O., he took off the following day and splashed mud on the undercarriage. The temperature was 28 and King had a hunch the mud would freeze his wheels. He flew to Tulsa, where there is a better airport, and sat down. The wheels had locked, all right, and he slid 50 yards before they got rolling. . . . King's next job for Fox will be "A Yank in the R. A. F." . . . Monty Banks will have a comedy rôle in Tyrone Power's "Blood and Sand." Slapstick star of the silents, Banks hasn't made a picture here since 1928. Recently he and his wife, Gracie Fields, have been working on British war relief. . . . Ann Todd, age 8, will play Linda Darnell's daughter in "Blood and Sand." She's had quite a career playing stars' children, or stars at the time of their childhood. She was Shirley Temple's sister in "The Bluebird"; she has played the offspring of Charles Boyer, Leslie Howard, Herbert Marshall, Edna Best, and Claudette Colbert. . . . Because of good work in "The Cowboy and the Blonde" George Montgomery will be made a western star. Twentieth-Fox hasn't had a western star for a long time. It owns a bunch of Zane Grey stories and will star Montgomery in some of them. . . . Rex Downing plays Tyrone Power at the age of 15 in "B. and S." When the real Ty was 15 he was a soda dispenser in Cincinnati.

Exhibit Shows How to Avoid Fires in Home

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Men and women who visit the fire prevention exhibit on the ground floor of the Commonwealth Edison building, 72 West Adams street, will come away determined to eliminate, as far as possible, all fire hazards in their own homes and apartments.

This free exhibit, which is sponsored jointly by the Chicago fire department and the committee on fire prevention of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and which will run thru Feb. 15, stresses among other things the Jeckyll and Hyde life that fire leads.

Under control and in use it is enormously beneficial. Out of control its potentialities for evil are great.

Carelessness is said to be the greatest known cause of fires. Every time the long hand of a clock in this country creeps from one minute to another you can say to yourself: "Another fire has broken out somewhere. . . . Some one's home is being destroyed or some man or woman or child is being burned in some building, somewhere. . . . And most of these fires wouldn't be happening if every one would only be careful!

If every one would resolve—

To keep stoves, heating plants, flues and chimneys clean and free from soot. [Soot is dangerous and expensive].

To use hot water, not a flame, when it comes to thawing frozen pipes these wintry days.

To keep screens in front of open fireplaces and never throw large pieces of loose paper on an open fire.

To watch that no pipes get red hot, that all pipes are free from rust, and that all joints and connections are sound and tight.

To store oil mops and dust cloths in metal containers and never hang wet cloths on electric wiring or cords or near stoves, fireplaces, pipes, and radiators.

To keep draperies away from open flames and never polish stoves and floors or paint when there is an open fire burning in the room.

To keep matches in metal or earthenware containers and away from children.

To place heating equipment and pipes far enough from walls and woodwork to prevent overheating.

To stay by stove when broiling is going on and pour baking soda or salt on burning fat—never water.

To keep rubbish from piling up in cellars and attics. [If you don't burn your rubbish it may start burning all by itself some day—or some night.]

To resist temptation to start a fire or speed it up with oil.

To invest in safe "cleaning preparations" and never use gasoline for cleaning purposes.

To resolve not to smoke in bed and see that every smoker in your home has ash trays handy.

To refrain from tossing loose accumulations of dust into stove or heater or incineator. [Dust which burns can explode with tremendous force if it comes in contact with open flame while suspended in air].

Fire massacres thousands upon thousands of wage earners every year, as well as young and weak and old. It lurks unseen all around us. But its greatest ally is our own carelessness. And we can do something to prevent it—before it ever has the chance to start.

H. G. Fisher New Head of Goodwill Industries

H. G. Fischer, president of H. G. Fisher & Co., 2335 West Wabansia avenue, was elected president of the Goodwill Industries at the annual meeting last night at the Chicago Woman's club. He succeeds Lester E. Lee, who continues on the board.

Other officers elected are Nathaniel Leverone, vice president; Dr. John M. Schneider, western superintendent of the Methodist church, secretary, and Paul N. Mitchell of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, treasurer.

Feb. 7, 1941.

Universal day—Stay at home and attend to the needs of your family some part of the day at least.

February—Those who are in a six year ought to find this month bringing a sence of accomplishment if they have been working along with their numbers. If they haven't been paying much attention to their work or budget they may find financial affairs rather irksome. There may be some difficulties with loans, either paying them or trying to get some one else to pay them. Make any important contacts necessary to improve your business, but since the whole year calls for emphasis on the family, don't try to shift responsibilities.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: The Genuine Article

HAROLD TEEN—PA WAS JUST FOOLIN'

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Today Mr. Culbertson continues his series of articles on the new 1941 Culbertson system of bidding, which will be officially published March 1.

Among the changes in the Culbertson table of honor tricks for 1941 is this: For the first time since the Culbertson system first was published, more than 12 years ago, a king and queen in different suits no longer can be "married."

We always used to combine K-x and Q-x and count them together as one full honor trick. Usually it was correct to do so. The king and queen of different suits, in a fairly strong hand, are worth one full honor trick, exactly as are the king and queen of the same suit.

The difficulty was that, in relatively weak hands, on the borderline between a bid and a pass, K-x and Q-x were likely to be worth slightly less than one honor trick, because the hand as a whole lacked the controls and entries to develop the maximum number of tricks from its kings and queens. Counting K-x and Q-x as one honor trick led to opening bids on such hands as this:

♠843 ♥Q3 ♦AQ952 ♣K75

The above hand counted two and one-half honor tricks. Now it will count only two plus honor tricks.

With strong hands, you do not need to give maximum valuation to such combinations because you have enough to bid anyway. With borderline hands it is best to be conservative. Therefore, from now on the king and queen will be valued separately, the king counting one-half an honor trick, and Q-x being a plus value.

Naturally, K-Q in the same suit remain one full honor trick.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	3 hearts	3 spades
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, void of his partner's suit, opened a low club, and declarer had no trouble in fulfilling the contract; in fact, he made five odd, losing only two spade tricks.

While the 650 point score thus earned was gratifying, it showed a substantial loss on what might have been earned. South was guilty of a supremely foolish action when he rebid his hand over East's three spades. South probably reasoned that his hand was well above minimum strength, but this actually had little bearing under the circumstances. North already had given a double raise in hearts which was forcing to game, but, and here is a point far too often overlooked, the force to game involved in North's bid was equally forcing on North himself. In other words, since North had announced that game must be reached, it was inconceivable that he would violate that understanding. Thus, had South passed to three spades, the pass would have been 100 per cent forcing.

Obviously, when North heard the three spade bid he began mentally to lick his chops, in anticipation of a highly profitable double. He must have been disconcerted, to put it mildly, when his own partner rescued the enemy from what North could tell would be a horrible fate. It would have taken only reasonably good defense to hold East to five spade tricks at his contract for nine tricks, and the 1,100 point penalty would have been the greatest profit possible for North and South on this hand.

Had South seen distinct slam possibilities for himself, he would have been justified in overcalling East's bid. His hand did not contain slam material, however, and therefore the only correct action was a forcing pass.

Moderns Share New Exhibit at Art Institute

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Admirers of the work of Picasso and Braque, of Matisse, Leger and Utrillo may see a representative group of their paintings at the Art institute. Lent by Paul Rosenberg, they will be on view until March.

Because both early and late canvases by Braque are included it is possible to trace the development of this modern's art. So engrossed was he with analyzing forms, breaking them down and redistributing them as he chose, that he purposely used a subdued palette of browns and grays and blacks in "Still Life with Cards." This painting has almost a classic feeling and great solidity and symmetry.

An amazing contrast to this early work is seen in "Gray Vase and Palette," done in 1938 in which Braque made free use of a number of light, exquisite colors: An orchid-lavender, a cool gray, a bit of vivid, deep green, black, and beige. He mixed his paints with sand to create a pebbly textured effect. Highly decorative, this semiabstraction is only for the ultramodern room where it might be the nucleus for the entire décor.

The Spanish love of gray, black and brown is seen in Picasso's paintings. "The Dog and the Cock," done in 1921, is a composition made up of planes of flat color: Beige, brown, green, black, and white. In "The Little Kitchen," painted a year later, there is a definite Spanish atmosphere. The red planes resemble Spanish tiles and the grays and blacks are the same tones Goya loved to use.

The Leger painting, "Woman with Cat," was done in 1921 when the artist was preoccupied with trying to get a feeling of mass and rounded form in his pictures. And Matisse's "Two Women with Yellow Rose" shows this painter's love of Persian design.

"Color in Modern Art" is the name embracing the exhibition of paintings by Chagall, Kandinsky, Klee, Leger, Miro, and Franz Marc at the Katharine Kuh gallery, a show that appeals to the same group of admirers of contemporary art as that at the Art institute.

The most famous painting in this second collection is "Blue Horses," by Franz Marc. Here the rounded forms of huge horses are painted in semirealistic manner, creating a feeling of immense strength and power.

Baby's Crocheted Dress

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The cunning crocheted dress is for baby's first party. It is a dainty, lacey model which is not difficult to create, and is as durable as it is effective. The dress is crocheted in a size from 6 to 18 months. A delicate pink or soft blue may be chosen for party wear, while soft green or pale yellow is suggested for everyday occasions.

For instructions in crocheting the baby's first party dress, No. 896, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Family Rift Causes Beau to Stray Off

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

"I have been going with a young man for nearly three years. A most unfortunate business misunderstanding between our two families has taken place, and my young man and I are really not involved in the happening.

"At the time of the fracas, the young man told me that he loved me dearly and no quarrel between our people ever would affect his feeling for me, but I am afraid it has. Not on my part, however, nor does my family encourage me to withhold my affections for Vince. They believe the quarrel is theirs and that we young people should have nothing to do with it.

"But his family is different. They want him to stop seeing me, and to help him forget me, they introduced another girl to him and he has been taking her out instead of me. He says that he takes the girl out just to keep peace in his family, that he still cares for me just the same. Yet he does not ask me to go out as he did formerly. He will come to see me, but it seems to me that he does not want any one to know that he does.

"My question is whether I should continue letting him come to visit me or should I resign myself to the fact that he cares more for the other girl?"

If we had good reason to suspect that the young man were fearful he would be seen out with us, we'd serve notice that henceforth we would not be home to him. We think the occasion calls for stringent action, even if you have to tell the chap to choose between you and the family friend. Not that we are fearful you will lose him, but it isn't well for a girl to be volunteer party to an alliance that calls for furtive meetings. Respect for her is threatened. But wouldn't it be wise to try to get your parents, young woman, to make up with the young man's family, and do it soon, so that your old status may be resumed with the young man?

400 GRADUATE AHEAD OF TIME AT ANNAPOLIS

Speedup Is First Since World War.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 6 [Special].—With the farewell ball given tonight, which was attended by some 4,000 persons, exercises leading up to graduation of midshipmen of the class of 1941 reached a climax. Graduation was moved up from the traditional June date because of the need of officers in the national defense program.

Tomorrow commencement ceremonies will be held in the armory at 11 a. m. and 400 young men will receive their diplomas from the hands of Secretary of the Navy Knox, who will deliver the principal address.

This is the first time that a class has been put forward since the world war, and while the ceremonies of the morrow will be attended by the customary official eclat, they will lack much of the color and glamor that usually attends them in June, owing to the fact that wintry weather kept many visitors away.

California not only furnished the honor man in William MacNicholson of Pasadena, but also has the largest representation of the states, 34. New York, which generally leads, has 33, and Pennsylvania is third with 23.

Five states in the middle west have 40, or exactly 10 per cent, Illinois leading with 18.

Graduates from the Chicago area include: Wayne Hoof, 7940 Fletcher street; William Victory Downer Jr., 5224 Blackstone avenue; Seymour Einstein, 1827 South Sawyer avenue; John Edward Bennett, Evanston; Robert Weese Harker, Evanston; Robert Ellsworth Thomas Jr., Rockford.

Miss Woerner and her two attendants will reign over a fraternity pledge party Saturday night. The attendants are Jean Fisk of Carthage and Betty Roth of Kenosha, Wis.

Reinstate Two Policemen Cleared in Burglaries

Two policemen who were suspended last Nov. 27 when a private watchman accused them of helping him commit burglaries, were returned to duty yesterday by Commissioner Allman. The civil service commission recommended the return of the two—John J. Kennedy and Anthony Crane, both of North Damen avenue station—on the ground there was not sufficient evidence for dismissal. Both men have been cleared of the burglary accusations.

Policeman Uses His New Knowledge, Saves a Life

Policeman John Leddy had his first chance last night to apply life saving methods he has learned in the 10 weeks' Red Cross training course for all city policemen. He was summoned to a shoe repair shop at 104 North Dearborn street, where Alex Davidson, 67, of 4906 Sheridan road, had slit his throat with his cobbler's knife. Policeman Leddy stopped the flow of blood, and Davidson was taken to the county hospital.

Four Bandits Rob Liquor Merchant and Customer

Four bandits, two of whom entered first posing as customers, last night robbed Edmund Hodkowski, owner of a liquor store at 5049 South Ashland avenue, of $205 and a watch valued at $35, then took a watch worth $82 from a customer. The first two robbers were joined by two more men carrying guns.

NORTH SHORE'S ELECTROLINERS MAKE DEBUTS

A group of manufacturers, editors, and officials of cities along the route of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad rode in the initial trip of the railroad's two new Electroliners yesterday.

The new four car streamlined units will be placed in regular service on Sunday. Each will make five trips daily between Chicago and Milwaukee on the Skokie Valley route. The Electroliners have been termed the most luxurious electric interurban trains in the country. They were designed by James F. Eppenstein, Chicago architect and industrial designer.

In yesterday's trips, one of the trains left from Milwaukee, the other from Chicago. The two groups of passengers met at Waukegan where they were guests at a luncheon in the Glen Flora Country club. Mayor Mancel Talcott of Waukegan was the toastmaster.

BANDITS GET $242 IN TWO HOLDUPS; ROUTED IN THIRD

Five bandits who have committed several robberies on the west side in the last week took $242 more in two holdups yesterday and were frightened away during a third robbery attempt.

The gang got $203 at the offices of the Supreme Forest, Woodmen Circle Insurance company, at 772 Taylor street. Twenty men and women were making insurance payments at the time. At the dry goods store of Simon Resnick at 2033 Madison street the gang got $39.

When one of the victims shouted for police the gang fled from the dry goods store of Albert Blumenthal at 1757 West 18th street and the adjoining shoe store of Irving Kapper at 1759.

MOON MULLINS—NOW THERE'S AN IDEA

16 WIN MEDALS IN SOUTH SIDE GOLDEN GLOVES

Qualify for Chicago City Tournament.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

South side Golden Glove novice boxers banged out the final blows of their tournament before another capacity crowd last night in St. Sabina gymnasium. From three successive evenings of unremitting slugging there emerged 16 fighters—two in each weight division. These youngsters, who have demonstrated that they can take care of themselves in novice competition, are now eligible for the open division tournament which will be held in the Coliseum Feb. 17, 18, and 19.

The 16 boys who came thru undefeated follow:

112 POUNDS—Richard Kirk, 3241 West 64th street; Raymond Florez, 3017 Wentworth avenue.

118 POUNDS—Mike Zawisza, Posen, Ill.; Robert Simmons, C. Y. O.

126 POUNDS—Thomas Williams, Savoy, A. C.; Daniel Hickey, C. Y. O.

135 POUNDS—John Kurstnik, C. Y. O.; Tony Amato, C. Y. O.

147 POUNDS—John Butz, C. Y. O.; Tony De Franko, 5233 South Emerald avenue.

160 POUNDS—Walter Gustafson, Beverly A. C.; Kenneth F. Bye, C. Y. O.

175 POUNDS—Robert Smith, C. Y. O.; George McMahon, 8340 South Sangamon street.

HEAVYWEIGHT—Edward Adomaitis, C. Y. O.; Emerick Mitchell, C. Y. O.

The survivors received medals emblematic of victory.

While the battle goes on in the far flung area of 14 states the local phase of the campaign will gather new headway Monday when the north side novice tournament opens in Loyola gymnasium. For three consecutive nights the fighting will continue in that section until the field has been cut down to the same size as the south side was in the St. Sabina bouts.

The north side novice survivors also will be eligible to mix with the seasoned fighters in the Coliseum event, out of which will come the team of eight which will represent Chicago in the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 24, 25, and 26.

Light Heavies Bear Down.

Carmen Del Sordo and Mike Kamanjarin fought like a couple of lumberjacks on their night off. For three rounds they slugged one another around the ring. Then the decision in this light heavyweight engagement went to Del Sordo.

There were sudden and spectacular knockouts, too. George McMahon caught Ysaias Espinosa flush on the chin a few seconds after the beginning of their 175 pound encounter. Espinosa sat on the floor with a look of amazement on his face. When he regained his feet at the count of nine he was still so dazed that the referee stopped it.

Tom McEntee also finished off Robert Smith in short order. McEntee lashed a hard right to his opponent's head soon after the start of another light heavyweight engagement. Smith rolled over under the ropes, then twisted himself back into the ring but failed to regain his feet before the count of 10.

Hickey Has Some Trouble.

The 175 pounders continued to put on a good show as Dan Barry and Carl Sorensen engaged in an enthusiastic brawl. The referee stopped it midway in the second round when Sorensen grew so weary he was unable to defend himself.

Dan Hickey, who had swept thru his earlier bouts with quick knockouts, ran into a particularly tough opponent in the featherweight division last night. This was Elmer Thompson, a straight punching colored boy. Thompson nearly rushed his adversary off his feet at the start but a few of Hickey's hard punches checked him. The bout then settled into a counterpunching duel, each waiting for the other to leave himself open. In the third round, however, Hickey opened up again in his usual aggressive fashion and forced Thompson to hang on repeatedly. Hickey quickly piled up enough points to make sure of the decision.

Some Teams Are Ready.

Some of the other centers already have chosen their teams. Before the Tournament of Champions begins, there will be 43 out of town squads ready to converge on Chicago for a drive toward the most highly cherished prizes amateur boxing has to offer.

The vast area over which Golden Gloves eliminations are being conducted, assures Chicago's fans that

Football Staff at Ohio State Is Completed

Columbus, O., Feb. 6 (AP).—Ohio State university placed its football destinies today in a youthful coaching staff dominated by men fresh from high school ranks—and Head Coach Paul Brown declared "I rise or fall" on the selections.

Brown, whose precision-like Massillon [O.] scholastic teams won him national recognition and the Ohio State coaching position, said that he alone chose seven assistants hired by the university today and "not one of them was forced upon me."

Three Are Former Aids.

Three of the seven, C. C. Widdoes, Hugh McGranahan, and Fred Heisler, were Brown's chief aids at Massillon. The others are Trevor Rees, coach at East Cleveland [O.] Shaw High, Paul Bixler, assistant football and head basketball coach at Colgate, and Fritz Mackey and Eddie Blickle, holdovers from the former Ohio State coaching staff.

The 32 year old Brown jumped from scholastic ranks to the college big time after Coach Francis A. Schmidt and his staff resigned during an investigation of reported dissension among the staff members.

Heisler Is Youngest.

Youngest member of the new staff is 26 year old Heisler, who will assist 27 year old Rees in coaching the freshmen. McGranahan, 39, is the oldest coach. Mackey is 37, Widdoes and Blickle 36, and Bixler 34.

Ohio State, in addition to employing one of the youngest coaching staffs in the country, became the first major school to take the majority of members—five out of eight—from high schools.

Babe Ruth to Celebrate His 47th Birthday Today

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Babe Ruth will celebrate his 47th birthday tomorrow, but actually he had reached that milestone today. The Babe discovered some time ago, when looking up his birth certificate, that he was born Feb. 6, but he figured he was getting too old to change, so it's Feb. 7 that he celebrates.

Two of Basketball Team Are Killed in Car Crash

Ravenna, O., Feb. 6 (AP).—Two members of the Ohio College of Chiropody basketball team of Cleveland were killed today in a two car collision six miles south of here. The dead were Paul Wasser and William Caplan, both of Detroit. Five other persons were injured.

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—The New York Rangers routed the crippled Chicago Blackhawks tonight, 6 to 2, before 9,564 in a National Hockey league game in Madison Square Garden.

The victory was the Rangers' first of the season over the Blackhawks and enabled them to tie Chicago for fourth place in the standings. In five previous games with Chicago the Rangers had managed to gain only a tie while losing four other contests. The teams will renew their feud Sunday night in Chicago Stadium.

Clint Smith Leads Rangers.

Clint Smith, center on a new and fast line put together after an injury to Phil Watson, led the Rangers' attack tonight, punching home two goals himself and feeding passes to his line mates, Alex Shibicky and Bryan Hextall, for a goal each.

It was not the Blackhawks' night. They started with a burst which gave them an early lead when Johnny Chad raced ahead of the New York defense to jab in Bill Thoms' forward pass. Then, after Clint Smith's first goal the Hawks went ahead again half way thru the second period on Doug Bentley's quick conversion of a play by Thoms and Chad. From this point on it was all Rangers.

Chad Scores a Beauty.

Chad's opening goal for the Hawks was a beautiful piece of work. He went down right wing and at the defense snapped a pass across to Thoms, then raced for the goal. Thoms flicked the puck forward and Chad picked it up 10 feet from the net, sinking a short rising shot behind Kerr.

Clint Smith tied the score on a pass from Hextall at the goal mouth in 16:56. Smith feinted Sam Lo Presti out of position and shoveled the puck into the net. In the second period Doug Bentley gave the Hawks the lead once more when Dutch Hiller went off for holding Johnny Mariucci's stock, Bentley firing a 25 footer thru a maze of legs on a Chicago power play.

Stan Smith squared accounts as he scored his first major league goal. It came on a five man rush in which Hiller passed forward to Alf Pike, who shot hard. The rebound came out to young Smith who had only to poke it into the net in 12:20.

Rangers Score Quickly.

The Rangers snapped in their third goal quickly, this one by Clint Smith in 14:59.

New York turned the game into a rout in the third period, getting its fourth goal in 25 seconds on a long shot by Shibicky.

The Rangers continued to break fast for dangerous thrusts and drew another goal on one of them. Clint Smith and Hextall raced away together and Hextall, given the puck 20 feet out, blazed a shot into the net that bounced out again, but was clearly a goal.

Patrick ended the scoring as he took a rink wide pass from Coulter and went far past the Chicago defense which had crowded into the Ranger end. He raced in on Lo Presti who had no protection and no chance.

In the Wake of the News

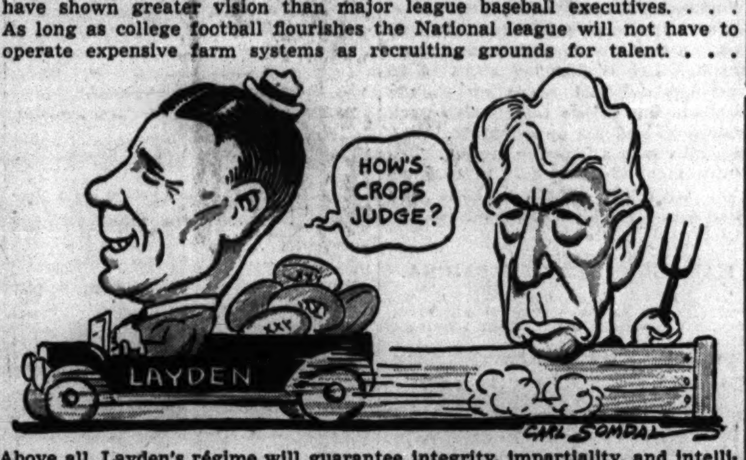
ELMER LAYDEN'S appointment as commissioner of professional football is additional evidence that the National Football league appreciates the importance of protecting the status of the intercollegiate game. . . . Nobody is better grounded in the principles of amateur sport and no one knows better than Layden the problems confronting the undergraduate brand. . . . In this respect the professional football leaders have shown greater vision than major league baseball executives. . . . As long as college football flourishes the National league will not have to operate expensive farm systems as recruiting grounds for talent. . . .



Above all, Layden's régime will guarantee integrity, impartiality, and intelligence in the direction of America's fastest growing sport. . . . There will be speculation no end about Layden's successor as sports chief at Notre Dame. . . . The wealth of material within the university's ranks complicates the selection. . . . The Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, who was varsity center in Knute Rockne's playing days, and the Rev. John Cavanaugh, chairman of the athletic board, are well equipped to handle the assignment. . . . Whoever their choice, you will know, first of all, that he is a thoro gridiron technician, but, more important, he will have the attributes required to represent a great university off the football field as well as on. . . .

For longevity in athletics we submit Ed Gordon, who won his last broad jump title at the University of Iowa 10 years ago. . . . Last week he annexed the metropolitan A. A. U. title in New York. . . . This is his 18th year of competition. . . . He was Olympic champion in 1932. . . . For the first time in 20 years the Washington Senators' roster does not include the name of Ossie Bluege. . . . Ossie still has a job, however, as an assistant to Manager Bucky Harris. . . . Texas Christian university won only one Southwestern conference basketball game from 1934 until the opening of the present season. . . . No apartment for Tom Stidham when he arrives in Milwaukee to become Marquette university's football coach. . . . Mrs. Stidham insists on a yard for her flowers and Tom won't mind, because his Dobermann-Pinschers must have some air. . . .

HACK VISITS CUB OFFICE; LEAVES WITHOUT RAISE

Near Batting Champion to Try Again Today.

Stanley Hack, the Cubs' regular third baseman since 1934, came all the way from California to Chicago yesterday in the interests of his 1941 salary.

The Cubs' new general manager, James Gallagher, hardly had time to take off his coat after his return from the National league meetings in New York when the veteran infielder made known his presence.

The result of their meeting was no runs, no hits, no errors, but Hack, from his Palmer House headquarters, said last night he hoped to adjust financial differences in a second conference today.

No Cut, but He Asks Raise.

Hack said he did not receive a cut from his 1940 salary, but that he thought his batting performance last season warranted a boost in pay. He finished second to Debs Garms of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who was acknowledged as the official National league champion, but went to bat less than 400 times.

In the past it was the procedure in the majors to consider no one as the batting leader unless he had appeared at the plate 400 times. On that basis, Hack would have won the National league title with his mark of .317 in 603 official trips to the plate. Next to him among the regulars was Johnny Mize, St. Louis first baseman, who hit .314 in 579 times at bat.

"I thought I deserved a little more money on my showing last season," said Hack last night.

General Manager Gallagher, other than admitting having chatted pleasantly with Hack, had nothing to say.

Just One of 17 Unsigned.

Hack is the second of the numerous Cub Californians to leave the delightful west coast climate for a wintry Chicago tussle with the Cubs' new management. The other one was Charley Root, veteran pitcher, who did not like the terms set down on his 1941 contract. Root returned to California without signing.

Hack is one of the 17 players who have failed to see eye to eye with the Cubs on the figures placed on their documents. All contracts have been returned with no revisions.

Jim Wilson, the new manager, will arrive in the loop Tuesday afternoon for a short stay before departing for the Cubs' training base on Catalina Island. The Wilsons now are vacationing at Atlantic City, having leased their Philadelphia homestead.

Big Inning

Yesterday's baseball players had their inning last night at the Old Timers' banquet in the Morrison hotel. Here are two of the best known—Jimmy Archer (left) and Mordecai Brown, one time Cub stars.

Bob Lewis, Cubs' traveling secretary (left), talks it over with Doug McWeeny, erstwhile White Sox and Dodger pitcher.

Billy Niesen (left), guest of honor, and Jack Hendricks, former Cincinnati manager, do a bit of reminiscing. The event was held in recognition of Niesen's 50 years in baseball. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Baseball's Old Boys Talk Over Good Old Days

Former stars of baseball gathered in the Morrison hotel last night to honor William C. Niesen, Illinois semipro commissioner, at the Old Timers' Baseball association dinner. Niesen, who watched many youngsters leap from Chicago's semipro lots to major league stardom, soon will celebrate his 50th year in baseball.

Among those at the banquet were Mordecai Brown and Jimmy Archer, an old time Chicago Cub battery; Jack Hendricks, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds; Doug McWeeny, once a pitcher for the White Sox and the Brooklyn Dodgers; Ray Schalk, Billy Webb, director of the Sox farm system, and Bob Lewis, traveling secretary of the Cubs.

GROOMS, STABLE BOYS WALK OUT AT RACE TIME

Truce to Let Track Resume Today.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6 (AP).—Seabiscuit, the retired turf champion, came back to Santa Anita Park today to receive homage from thousands of admirers in a special ceremony in which he saw his life size bronze statue unveiled. The celebration was held on schedule, but a strike involving 1,500 grooms and stable hands caused cancellation of all races on today's schedule.

Racing will be resumed tomorrow under a tentative settlement reached late tonight. A committee of six representing the grooms reached the agreement at conferences with the turf club stewards.

The grooms and stable hands complained of working conditions at the track and followed up with a formal ultimatum. When time arrived for the first race a settlement of the dispute had not been reached. Officials then announced cancellation of the first race "due to conditions over which we have no control."

Fans Get Money Back.

Thirty minutes later the entire afternoon's program was declared off.

Officials at once prepared to refund admission charges and parking fees to the patrons, who numbered around 20,000. It was the first time in California's seven years of racing that a strike had been called.

Altho not represented by any labor organization, the grooms banded together and refused to saddle mounts for their stables.

The truce was reached after Jerry Giesler, chairman of the California horse racing commission, ordered by telephone from New York the reinstatement of Jay Reynolds, a groom, suspended by the track after an altercation with other grooms last Sunday.

Giesler said he would fly here and act as arbiter on two disputed points not settled.

Grooms' Demands Told.

The grooms demanded Reynolds' reinstatement, contending he was barred from the track without a fair hearing; a $10 bonus in the event a horse for which they cared, won a race, and the privilege of sitting in the grandstand and watching and betting on races after they had led their horses to the saddling paddock.

Cancellation of the day's program cost the track about $60,000 in refunded admissions and parking fees and the state about $28,000, on the basis of an anticipated betting handle of $600,000.

It was to have been a big day, too, for Charles S. Howard, Seabiscuit's owner. The feature race had been named in Seabiscuit's honor, and Seabiscuit had been prepared to lead the parade to the post with Jockey Red Pollard in the saddle.

Pollard Was the Hero.

Pollard was in the stirrups last March when Seabiscuit ran his last and most important race—victor in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, which put him over the top as the greatest money winner in American turf history. His purse earnings amounted to $437,730. After that race, the 89th of Seabiscuit's strenuous career, Howard retired him to his northern California ranch.

Jockey Still Unconscious 90 Hours After Spill at Agua

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 6 (AP).—Jockey Al Dorey still was unconscious in a hospital today, 90 hours after he was injured in a steeplechase at Agua Caliente, Mexico, last Sunday. Dr. E. H. Crabtree said he believed the jockey would recover barring complications. Earl Dew, 1940 American jockey champion, was injured fatally in a three horse pileup on the same program.

Ronald Giese Jr., who made a score of 97 in The Tribune casting tournament on Navy pier Wednesday evening, last night was awarded the first place trophy as winner of the fishermen's event. This feature of the tournament was run in two sections due to the large entry and none of last night's casters was able to better Giese's score.

Bobby Cammack, another of Wednesday's contestants, had to return to the casting pool last night to settle a tie score for the second place trophy. His Wednesday mark of 96 was equaled last night by Claude Watson, but in the castoff Cammack scored 95 and his opponent 90. Watson also won a Tribune trophy. The tournament is being held in conjunction with the National Boat and Sports show which drew near-capacity crowds yesterday.

ARLINGTON PARK NAMES MILE RACE FOR EQUIPOISE

Honors Memory of Late Record Holder.

Arlington Park yesterday announced a new stake event which will honor the memory of Equipoise, which set a world record for the mile at that track in 1932. It will be a handicap for 3 year olds and up and will be called the Equipoise Mile. It will be started out of the mile chute, which hereafter will be designated the Equipoise Course.

It was over this course that Equipoise set the present world record of 1:34 2-5 for the mile on June 30, 1932, in an event called the Delavan handicap. He was carrying 128 pounds.

Triumphs at Arlington.

Equipoise scored some of his greatest triumphs at Arlington Park. In addition to his record breaking run, he raced there three other times in 1932, winning the Stars and Stripes handicap and the Arlington Gold cup. Under a weight of 134 pounds, he was beaten by a neck by Plucky Play in the Arlington handicap, but he returned in 1933 to win that event with a burden of 135 pounds.

Equipoise, which died in 1938 at the age of 10, earned a total of $338,610 despite the fact that he was handicapped by persistently recurring foot trouble thru most of his career. He was out of the money only 8 times in 51 races, winning 29, placing second 10 times and third four times.

Distinguished as Sire.

Equipoise gave promise of attaining further distinction as a sire. His last crop of foals included the champion 2 year old filly of 1940, Level Best, and the highly regarded juvenile colt, Attention. He also sired the stakes winner Bolingbroke.

NORWOOD PARK SKATERS HOLD ANNUAL CARNIVAL

Men and intermediate boys of the Illinois skating association will compete tonight in the 2d annual Norwood Park Chamber of Commerce Derby at Avondale and Natoma avenues and tomorrow all the divisions of the boys and men's classes will race in the sixth annual Catholic Order of Foresters meet in Garfield park.

These two events will provide the skaters with the proper tuneup for the city meet Sunday, in Humboldt park. Girls also will take part in the city title events, which will be held in conjunction with the Northwest skating club's 48th annual Derby. These three Derbies will climax the outdoor skating season in Illinois. An indoor event, Feb. 22 in the Chicago Arena, will complete the season's schedule.

CLIFTON NETS 20 POINTS; DU SABLE VICTOR, 43 TO 42

Fenger Juniors Conquer Hirsch, 34 to 31.

The defeat of Hirsch High school's junior basketball team and the fifth victory of DuSable's senior quintet featured yesterday's Public School league schedule. Hirsch suffered its first setback in the south division, losing to Fenger's juniors, 34 to 31, in Fenger gymnasium. DuSable continued at the top of the central section by triumphing over Manley, 43 to 42, on the latter's court.

Nat Clifton, lanky center, again was the hero in DuSable's victory. The 6 foot 6 inch sharpshooter contributed 20 points on nine field goals and two free throws.

Hirsch's defeat gave Parker, which was idle yesterday, undisputed possession of first place in the south zone. Parker is unbeaten in six games. Manley's defeat at the hands of DuSable sent it into a second place tie with Phillips, which yesterday won from Tilden Tech, 32 to 22, in Tilden's gymnasium.

Austin's seniors suffered their first defeat in the west section, losing to Marshall, 40 to 27, on Austin's floor. Marshall now is tied for first place in the sectional standings with Austin and Foreman, which won from Wells, 34 to 33. Lineups:

MEET TONIGHT TO DISCUSS COACH AT NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 6 [Special].—Names of possible successors to Elmer F. Layden as Notre Dame athletic director and head football coach will be discussed tomorrow night at a special meeting of the faculty board in control of athletics.

The Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university, with whom the new athletic chief eventually will sign his contract was confined to bed with a heavy cold today and he could not be reached.

A petition was circulated on the campus today urging the appointment of Jack Chevigny, former Notre Dame star and assistant coach under Heartly [Hunk] Anderson.

JENNINGS QUITS BAYLOR POST AFTER 14 YEARS

Waco, Tex., Feb. 6 (AP).—The resignation of Morley Jennings as head football coach of Baylor university was accepted today by the athletic council of the board of trustees. The council acted on the recommendation of President Pat Neff after Jennings stated he had been in the active coaching business for 29 years and wished to be relieved of those duties. Jennings' contract had three years to run.

Born in Holland, Mich., in 1890, Jennings became an all around star athlete at Albion, Mich., High school and Junior college. He was graduated from Mississippi State, where he was considered one of the greatest kickers in southern gridiron history.

An overflow crowd of 1,500 squeezed into Bensinger's Billiard arena, 131 South Wabash avenue, last night to see if Willie Hoppe, defending champion in the world three-cushion tournament, could continue to maintain his nightly schedule of victories. They were rewarded by a nip-and-tuck match in which the graying champion came from behind in the last few innings to defeat Joe Chamaco of Mexico City, 50 to 47, in a 54-inning duel.

It was Bill's tenth triumph in ten days of action and left him at the top of the standings with seven matches to go against the upper bracket contestants.

He's a Champion and Proves It.

Hoppe was trailing by 44 to 40 at the end of the 38th inning and his fans were prepared to accept defeat. They reckoned without his championship spirit, however, for he fought back, in the face of repeated safety plays by the Mexican, to score the necessary points in 18 innings.

Chamaco had a high run of eight in the third inning and Hoppe matched it in the 34th.

Rubin Runs 11 Billiards.

Arthur Rubin, who defeated Tiff Denton, 50 to 44, in 57 innings, in the second afternoon game, established a personal high run score of 11 billiards and tied the tournament mark set by Jake Schaefer, earlier in the meet.

Arthur Thurnblad of Kenosha, Wis., who won the 1931 three cushion crown, scored his 8th victory out of 11 contests by defeating Allen Hall of Chicago, pre-tournament favorite, 50 to 38 in 38 innings. Hall dropped into a two-way tie for fourth place in the standings with Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, bith with 8 triumphs out of 10 games. Scores by innings:

CONNIE MACK AND SEVEN A'S LEAVE FOR COAST CAMP

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 6 (AP).—Connie Mack and the vanguard of his American League baseball team left for California tonight, the president-manager tersely summing up 1941 prospects with "it all depends on the pitchers."

There were five of them in the party which left for Carlsbad, Cal., for workouts preliminary to going to the Athletics' camp at Anaheim 40 miles away. In the party with Mack and other club officials were Pitchers Buck Ross, Chubby Dean, Porter Vaughn, Lester McCrabb, and Thom Ferrick and Catchers Frank Hayes and Harold Wagner. They will pick up other members of the team in St. Louis and Kansas City.

Bauman Fails Exams; N. U. Drops Tackle

Two Northwestern athletes, Alf Bauman, football tackle, and Lynn Surles, veteran swimmer, became ineligible for further competition with the announcement yesterday that they had failed to pass all their first semester courses. Bauman failed education and Spanish courses, while Surles flunked in English.

Bauman's scholastic deficiencies caused him to be dropped from school and the courses must be made up before he can enroll again. Athletic officials were pessimistic over his chances of making up the work in time to be eligible for the 1941 season.

The former Austin High school star was a standout member of last fall's Wildcat eleven and at the close of the season he was a popular choice for tackle on most of the All-conference and All-American teams.

Bauman was one of five members of Austin's 1937 city champion eleven to enroll at Northwestern. The others were Bill DeCorrevont, half back; Don Johnson, center; Sonny Skor, quarter back, and Chuck Feingarten, guard. All are members of the Wildcat varsity.

HEINIE MANUSH'S 147 WINS MEDAL; L. BROWN IS 2D

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP).—Heinie Manush, former big league slugger and now manager of the Greensboro, N. C. club, carded 72-75—147 today to win the medal in the sixth annual baseball players golf tournament on the Jungle club course.

Manush finished with a five-stroke margin over Lloyd Brown, Philly pitcher, who was second. Lloyd had 76-74—150. Heine's showing was made remarkable by the fact that, late in the morning round, he swung so hard he displaced his sacro-iliac. After treatment, he returned to action, and shot the last nine in 34.

Wes Ferrell, now a free agent, broke four clubs in posting 75-76—151 for third honors. He is the defending champion. Other scores:

Gerald Walker and Mervyn Shea, 152; Joe Medwick and Jack Russell, 153; Jimmy Foxx, 154; Johnny Murphy and Paul Derringer, 156; Paul Waner, 157; Rick Ferrell and Roger Peckinpaugh, 158; Myril Hoag, 159, and Al Simmons, 160.

3 DETROIT GOALS IN 2 MINUTES TIE CANADIENS, 4-4

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings made a three goal rally in the last four minutes of the third period and gained a 4 to 4 overtime tie with the Montreal Canadiens tonight to protect their hold on third place in the National Hockey league.

A crowd of 6,553 saw the Red Wings punch home three tallies in 2 minutes and 8 seconds. Alex Motter and Eddie Wares scored the first two, and Veteran Sid Howe tied the score.

The last seven minutes of that third period saw five goals scored. The Canadiens had taken a 2 to 1 lead in the first period. Johnny Quilty scored his second goal at 13:11 of the third period and Toe Blake made it 4 to 1 61 seconds later. Lineups:

PREPARE STRIKE BALLOTS IN RAIL UNIONS' DISPUTE

Seek Paid Vacations for 750,000.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Another railway labor crisis is threatened, it was learned today with disclosure that strike ballots will be distributed on Feb. 15 to members of 14 railway brotherhoods on the issue of vacations with pay.

The brotherhoods represent about 750,000 of America's one million railroad employés.

Shortly after George M. Harrison, spokesman for the brotherhoods, conferred with President Roosevelt, he reported the results of his conference at a meeting of union representatives. A decision then was reached to issue ballots for a referendum on whether or not to strike.

The brotherhoods demand two week vacations with pay for regular railroad employés and one day's vacation with pay for every month worked by part time employés. Harrison said the demands were first voiced last May.

Plans Meeting With Pelley.

Labor leaders asserted the railroads have refused to deal with them on a national basis. It was understood that Harrison requested the President to bring railroad executives and labor leaders together for a national conference. It was learned that the President planned to call John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, to the White House to discuss the strike threat.

Pelley's office reported that he was out of the city. Other association officials expressed the opinion that a strike will not be allowed to occur, because of its effect on the defense program. Opinion was expressed that the dispute can be settled amicably.

The national mediation board, created by the railway labor act of 1934, to settle such disputes, said that so far it had not been called upon to intervene.

Should a strike be authorized, a committee headed by Harrison would fix a date for it, but the machinery of the national mediation act provides a "cooling" period of about 60 days.

Name Fact-Finding Board.

Appointment of a fact-finding board by the President, the next step, automatically stops a strike until 30 days after the board had made its recommendations. Since the board has 30 days in which to report, an actual strike could not take place for about 60 days after the original date set for it.

Harrison said the following unions would be polled on the question of a strike:

Order of Railroad Telegraphers; International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of America; International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers; Sheet Metal Workers' International association; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America; International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers; Brotherhood of Railway & Steamship Clerks, Freight handlers, Express and Station Employés; Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employés; International Association of Machinists; Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen of America; National Organization Masters, Mates, and Pilots of America; National Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, and International Longshoremen's association.

Engineers Not Involved.

There are 21 standard railroad brotherhoods. Those not involved in the strike vote are the five trainmen and engineers' organizations, the dispatchers, and Pullman conductors.

Twice within the last three years, threatened railroad strikes have been forestalled by mediation.

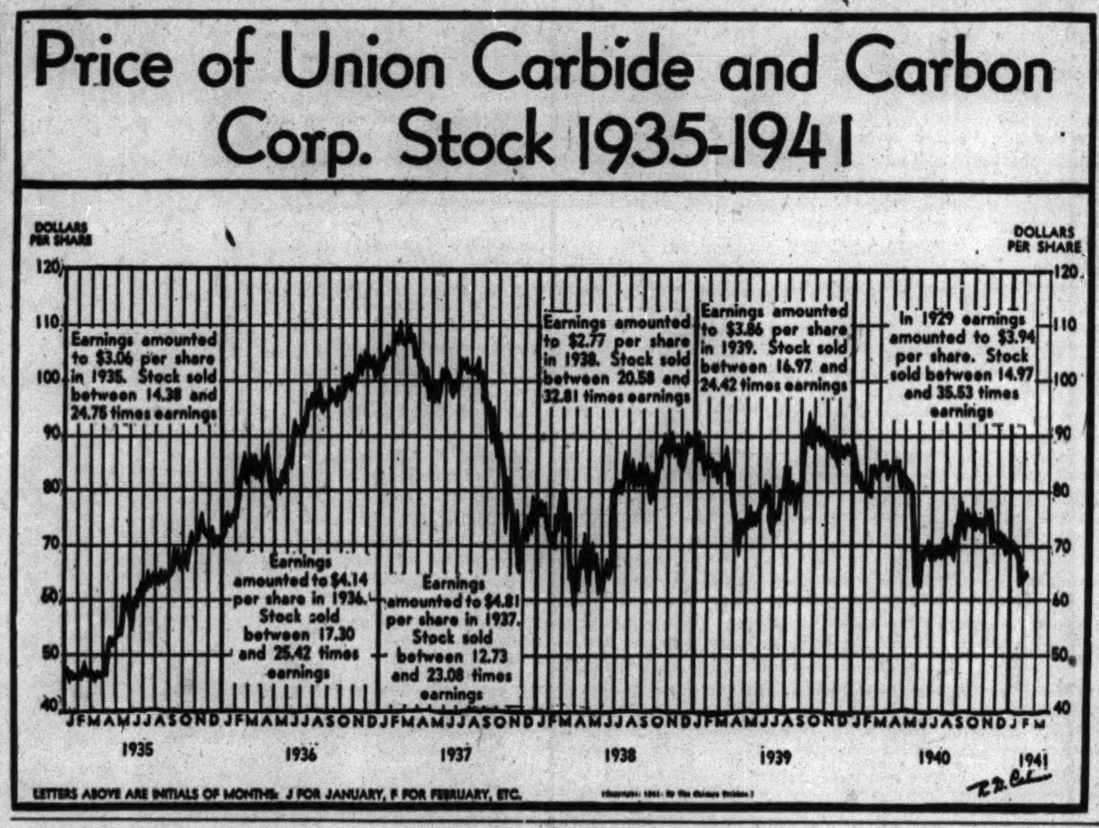
Meanwhile, Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mont.], chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, furnished the senate today with a list of strikes in 1940 and 1941 which affected national defense orders, as compiled by the navy. The department listed 127 strikes, of which 27 are still in progress.

UTILITY SYSTEM ASKS MORE TIME FOR SEC HEARING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission took under advisement today a request of the United States Gas Improvement company for a two week delay in beginning a hearing on a plan for integration of the system suggested by the commission.

William Clarke Mason, representing the company, asked for more time to prepare presentation of the case and also to work out some possible short cuts in the proceeding, which has been pending nearly a year.

The SEC plan would limit U. G. I. to a group of electric properties in an area roughly 30 by 80 miles centered in Philadelphia.



Large Increase in Magnesium Metal Planned

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Aluminum company of America today announced it had acquired complete ownership of American Magnesium corporation by purchasing the half interest owned by General Aniline & Film corporation and would start immediately to increase production of magnesium for the defense program.

"This purchase," a statement by the company said, "together with the establishment of new plant facilities at Buffalo, agumenting existing facilities at Cleveland, Los Angeles, and New Kensington, Pa., will require the expenditure by Aluminum company of several millions of dollars."

Aluminum company said it had been requested by the office of production management, national defense agency, to increase the output of magnesium, and as the first step it acquired full ownership of American Magnesium, thus making it a wholly owned subsidiary.

Start Further Expansion.

"Aluminum company will start immediately the further expansion of operations of American Magnesium corporation," the statement said, "so that manufacture of magnesium products by the latter corporation will be greatly increased."

The statement said output of magnesium products already had been stepped up to 20 times the normal demands of recent years. Magnesium is an important element in airplane construction.

A week ago a federal grand jury at New York returned indictments against six companies and nine of their officers charging conspiracy to stifle and restrict domestic production of magnesium. The three companies involved in today's sale were included, the others being Dow Chemical company, Magnesium Development company, and I. G. Farbenindustrie, commonly known as the German dye trust.

Defendants Plead Innocent.

The American defendants pleaded innocent today before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. Bail of $1,000 was fixed for each of seven individuals, and April 7 was set for possible motions to change pleas or attack the indictments.

The pleading of I. G. Farbenindustrie was deferred until tomorrow. Samuel S. Isseks, special assistant to the attorney general, told the court the German corporation had been served thru its agents here and that he did not know why it was not represented in court.

Shortly after these indictments were returned, General Aniline and Film disclosed that it had been negotiating for some time with Aluminum company to sell its half ownership in American Magnesium.

C. I. O. STRIKE NOTICE FILED AN HOUR AFTER PLANE PLANT OPENS

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6 (AP).—Hudson Motor Car company announced today that its new aircraft division designed to build parts for one of the airplane manufacturing companies has begun operations. Initial production is on ailerons, but the plant is equipped to produce wings and other parts needed to step up aircraft procurement for the national defense.

Within an hour after the company's announcement, Chairman Arthur E. Raab of the Michigan labor mediation board disclosed that a notice of intent to strike had been filed by the Hudson local of the United Automobile Workers [C. I. O.] The notice, Raab said, charged discrimination in dismissals and warned of intent to strike in five days.

The mediation chairman said his board would make an immediate investigation to determine the effect of a strike on defense projects and would order a 30 day "cooling off" period if it should decide a stoppage of vital production was threatened.

ARMY CORRECTS 'CLERICAL ERROR' OF 6.6 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C. Feb. 6 (AP).—War department officials said today that an airplane engine plant to be operated by the Buick Motor division of General Motors corporation at Melrose Center, near La Grange, Ill., would cost $6,600,000 less than previously announced.

Thru a clerical error they said the total cost of the project had been announced erroneously at $37,675,150, including $31,075,150 for construction of the plant and $6,600,000 for machinery and equipment.

A recheck showed that the total cost would be $31,075,150, including $24,475,150 for construction of the plant and $6,600,000 for machinery and equipment. The plant is to manufacture Pratt and Whitney airplane engines.

ASSERTS C. & O. SAVED MILLIONS THRU OPEN BIDS

Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company saved more than 5 million dollars thru competition for its current refunding issue after rejecting the original privately negotiated offer, Otis & Co., Cleveland security house, declared yesterday in a telegram sent to Chairman Joseph B. Eastman of the Interstate Commerce commission.

The wire termed the refunding "final proof that competitive bidding for railroad securities is imperative for the protection of investors and the public." Otis & Co. is one of the foremost advocates of competitive bidding in sales of securities issues.

A syndicate headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. offered $18,310,000 of the $24,800,000 refunding and improvement mortgage bonds involved in the $29,100,000 program. The remainder was sold to banks.

CITY PAYS $6,000 FOR PRIVILEGE OF RAZING BUILDINGS

The Chicago Housing authority yesterday accepted an offer by the city's department of public works to pay $6,000 for the privilege of wrecking the buildings on the site of the contemplated north side CHA housing project. This is in the area bounded by Oak street, the alley east of Larrabee street, the alley north of Chicago avenue, and Hudson avenue.

Razing of buildings will be started soon, with completion set for 90 days, it was said. This will be done under the city's WPA demolition project. The city needs used brick and lumber for some of its WPA activities, CHA officials said. Contracts for the proposed 600 row houses to be built by CHA on the north side will be let later.

Reflecting the large number of retail establishments the company has located in important industrial centers where defense spending has raised consumer purchasing power, Sears' trade in the fiscal year just ended mounted to $749,307,718. In the year ended Jan. 31, 1940, sales totaled $657,787,575. This represents an increase in the last year in the company's trade of 13.9 per cent.

Ward Sales Up 11.7 Per Cent.

SEC HITS AUDITOR AND HOLLANDER FIRM STATEMENT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission today ordered withdrawal of the registration of the $5 par capital stock of A. Hollander & Son, Inc., unless the company within 90 days amends its registration statement and annual reports on file with the SEC.

It said that the company had filed materially deficient statements in failing to disclose the rôle of members of the Hollander family as "parents" of the company, their position in A. Hollander & Son, Ltd., a Canadian company, and their dealings with both companies thru unreported contracts.

The SEC also said it had "no hesitation in finding that neither the firm of Puder & Puder nor A. H. Puder individually are independent public accountants within the meaning of our statute and regulations" with respect to the Hollander financial statement.

LATIN AMERICAN TRADE TERMED AID TO DEFENSE

U. S. Official Urges Closer Ties.

Wayne Chatfield Taylor.

Wayne Chatfield Taylor, undersecretary of commerce, last night called upon trade leaders for their aid in building up an economic defense in the western hemisphere thru the establishment of closer commercial ties with Latin American countries.

This economic defense, he asserted, ranked in importance with the present military defense program.

Taylor spoke before midwestern foreign trade authorities at the annual Chicago world trade conference in the Stevens hotel. The conference was sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Export Managers Club of Chicago.

Warns of Economic "Invasion."

"Under modern conditions, economic invasion by anti-American interests, with its accompanying infiltration of political spokesmen, propagandists, and spies, has too often served as the forerunner of more serious events," he said.

"If we do not prepare to meet economic invasion of this hemisphere just as realistically as we are preparing to resist military invasion, we are due for a very rude awakening."

He said that the European war automatically made for closer trade relationships between North and South America, but he added that the United States should take the lead in making these ties permanent. Much of this trade development, Taylor said, depends upon the efforts of individual importers and exporters in this country.

African Trade Larger.

Taylor's talk was broadcast by short wave to radio stations thruout Latin America. This broadcast was the first of a series planned by Chicago exporters as a means for effecting closer trade relations with Latin American countries.

South Africa is becoming an increasingly better market for American made products, Clayton Lane, recent United States commercial attaché at Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, said. That part of Africa, he said, especially desires machinery and products of the other heavy industry lines.

At the same time South Africa hopes that the United States will begin taking more of its exports of wines and brandy, Lane added.

Gold Imports a Factor.

One reason he gave for the better market in South Africa was the imports of gold the United States has been taking from there. Also effecting better exchange conditions, Lane said, are increasing amounts of wool and base metals being shipped to this country. Lane soon will take up his new duties as consul at Calcutta, India.

E. A. Stephens, president of the board of commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, stressed the importance of middle western business cultivating Latin-American markets.

Eugene F. Sitterley, president of J. E. Sitterley & Sons, Inc., publisher of Importers' Guide, emphasized the use of short wave radio broadcasting as a means for establishing better trade relations.

Dr. Melchior Palyi, economist and financial adviser, discussed the probable economic results of the European war. He said that even after a British victory, "the outlook for world trade would be far from promising."

KENTUCKY COURT ENDS BAN ON I. C. 'MIXED' SERVICE

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Kentucky Court of Appeals held today the state railroad commission could not prevent a railroad from modifying an existing passenger service, as distinguished from an abandonment of such services.

Once, however, such a change has been made, the court held, the commission might object and take the matter to a court of equity.

The court dissolved a temporary injunction preventing the Illinois Central railroad from substituting "mixed" passenger and freight train service for passenger service between Henderson and Hopkinsville, Ky.

Steel Orders of Million Let by Studebaker

Contracts totaling $1,038,500 for structural steel for three aircraft engine plants to be built in Chicago and South Bend and Fort Wayne, Ind., were awarded yesterday by Studebaker corporation. The big automobile company is building the plants under contract with the government for production of engines for the national defense.

Meanwhile, the government approved the location of an $11,198,472 aircraft engine parts plant near Euclid, O., and the war department was reported to have awarded a $9,000,000 contract for construction of an ordnance depot near Gallup, N. M.

Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., Chicago, entered the low bid, $394,500, for the steel for the Chicago plant. The largest of the three contracts, $515,000 for steel to be used in the South Bend factory, was awarded to R. C. Mahon company, Detroit, Mich. Mississippi Valley Structural Steel company received the contract to supply steel for the Fort Wayne plant for $129,000.

Chicago Unit to Employ 4,000.

The combined cost of the three plants will be $49,700,000. The Chicago factory will be built on a 50 acre tract facing Archer avenue north of Chicago airport, will contain 500,000 square feet of floor space, and will be completely air conditioned. More than 4,000 workers will be employed in the Chicago plant, and a total of 9,400 in all three.

Grading work is under way on the South Bend project, and contracts for grading the Chicago and Fort Wayne sites are scheduled to be awarded in a few days, Studebaker officials said. Grading will begin immediately after the contracts are awarded.

Let More Chicago Orders.

The war department announced award of the following contracts to Chicago companies: Kendall company, Bauer & Black division, tape, $15,809; George T. Schmidt, Inc., marking machines, $2,890, and Marshall and Huschart Machinery company, milling machines, $1,031.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced it will build a $3,000,000 plant at Fairmont, W. Va., for manufacture of lighting equipment for new industrial plants engaged in defense work. Between 800 and 1,000 men will be needed to operate the factory, which will make fluorescent lamps, David S. Youngholm, vice president of the company, said.

The capacity of Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation to melt special steels will be increased 4,000 tons a month by installation of two more electric melting furnaces at the company's Brackenridge, Pa., mill, W. F. Detwiler, chairman, announced. He said contracts for the furnaces and for additional rolling mill equipment have been let.

Contract Not Yet Signed.

The war department said President Roosevelt and the national defense advisory commission had approved the site for the Euclid engine parts plant. Thompson Aircraft Products company will be the builder, the department said. The contract has not been signed, however.

The ordnance depot will be built on the 16,000 acre Fort Wingate army reservation east of Gallup. Several New Mexico and Texas companies shared in the contract.

PLAN DOUBLING CHICAGO OFFICE OF UNITED LINES

United Air Lines will begin work early in March on a $350,000 addition to its general headquarters building at Chicago airport, W. A. Patterson, president of the air line, announced yesterday. The addition will more than double the present space, raising the total floor area to 81,546 square feet.

Contractors' bids on the project will be opened Feb. 24. Like the present building, the addition will be two stories high. It is scheduled for completion before air travel reaches its summer peak season. United has more than 600 employés in Chicago, out of a nation-wide total of 3,100.

"This move by the company is evidence of our belief that Chicago will continue to rank as the greatest air traffic hub in the nation and of our plan to carry on expansion as Chicago's own air line," Patterson said.

STORES' SALES TOP PRECEDING WEEK, YEAR AGO

Department store sales in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district increased 6.6 per cent during the week ended Feb. 1 over the corresponding 1940 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Sales gained 6 per cent over the preceding week.

Sales in the district for the four weeks ended Feb. 1 were 10.9 per cent ahead of last year. The average gain for all 12 reserve districts was 9 per cent for the week and 11 per cent for the four weeks period.

Chicago sales, rising 2.6 per cent for the week and 7.2 per cent for the four weeks, showed the smallest increase of all major cities in the seventh district for both periods. Milwaukee had the largest gain for the week and Indianapolis for the four weeks.

The federal reserve board's seasonally adjusted index of department store sales remained unchanged for January at 101 per cent of the 1923-'25 average.

PHONE MAKER'S BRITISH LISTING TERMED ERROR

Automatic Electric company, Chicago manufacturer of the P-A-X automatic telephone systems, is owned entirely by an American holding company, P. W. Conrad, president, said yesterday. Listing of the company in a recent compilation by the Standard Statistics company of British direct investments in the United States was inaccurate, he said.

Automatic Electric is a subsidiary of the Associated Telephone and Telegraph company, which is controled by Theodore Gary & Co., also an American firm, Conrad said. Associated Telephone once was affiliated with an English firm, the International Automatic Telephone company, thru ownership of 51 per cent of the latter's stock, he added, but this was disposed of in 1935.

GAIN IN GENERAL MOTORS PROFIT PARED BY TAXES

Absorb Most of 92½ Million Boost.

General Motors corporation yesterday issued a preliminary report showing 1940 profit of approximately $195,500,000, equal to $4.32 a common share, compared with actual earning of $183,290,222, or $4.04 a share, in 1939.

F. B. Davis Jr. reports profits for rubber company.

Before deducting income and excess profits taxes, earnings were $92,500,000 above the comparable figure for 1939. Increased provision for normal income taxes and for excess profits taxes absorbed $80,247,810 of the increased earnings. The total allowance for these taxes was approximately $125,100,000 last year, against $44,852,190 in 1939.

Altho the company did not make public separate figures for the final quarter of 1940, the tentative profit for the year, compared with income the first nine months of $129,172,490, indicated fourth quarter earnings of $66,327,510.

Income Largest Since 1937.

The indicated 1940 earnings were the largest since 1937, when net income was $196,701,724, or $4.38 a share. Had it not been for the increased tax levies, last year's earnings would have come close to the record level of $276,468,108, reached in 1928.

The preliminary figures are subject to adjustments in the final audit. The complete report for 1940 will be issued later.

Net income for 1940 of United States Rubber company, New York, amounted to $11,425,241 after charges, equal after preferred dividend requirements, to $3.58 a common share, compared with $10,218,849, or $3.18 a share, in 1939. Net sales totaled $228,988,780, the highest in 20 years, and 17 per cent above the 1939 level.

War and Peace Swell Total.

Both peace time and defense goods business helped swell sales totals, F. B. Davis Jr., chairman of the board, said. Products for the defense program included tires, rubber footwear, and clothing, rubber covered wire, self-sealing gasoline tanks for airplanes, and heated flying suits.

The Otis Steel company, Cleveland, O., reported net profit of $717,006 for 1940, compared with $214,965 for 1939.

Preliminary report of the Interlake Iron corporation and subsidiaries showed 1940 net profit of $829,450, or 41 cents a share, compared with a net loss of $553,978 in 1939. Headquarters of the company are in Chicago.

PIVOTAL STOCKS UP, BUT FAIL TO HOLD ALL GAINS

Day's Average Advances a Small Fraction.

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Stock market favorites still were in a mild, rallying mood today, but many leaders failed to maintain the forward stride of Wednesday. The majority of pivotal stocks finished well under the high levels of the day and minus signs were plentiful.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was ahead .2 of a point at 42.4. Of 684 individual issues traded, 340 were up, 154 down, and 190 unchanged. Dealings were 422,830 shares, compared with 492,860 yesterday.

Rail stocks were not particularly responsive to a slightly more than seasonal increase in last week's freight loadings. Coppers were buoyed moderately by reports of larger demand for the metal. Expanding bank clearings, retail sales, and steel production were viewed as cheerful.

General Motors Up a Fraction.

General Motors, which after the close made public its preliminary earnings statement for 1940, closed ¼ point higher. Chrysler was unchanged.

Allied Chemical and J. I. Case were up 2 each. Lesser improvement was recorded for United States Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Sears-Roebuck, American Telephone, Anaconda, Kennecott, Paramount, Loft, New York Shipbuilding, General Electric, and Consolidated Cigar.

A stock exchange membership sold for $28,000, the same as yesterday's price, which represented a gain of $1,000 over the previous transaction, the lowest in 43 years.

GAINS LEAD IN CHICAGO.

Gains outnumbered losses in light trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Of the 77 issues traded, 41 advanced, 12 declined, and 24 were unchanged. Only 17,000 shares changed hands. Commonwealth Edison, the volume leader, sold up ¼ at 28⅞ on the transfer of 1,450 shares.

Only three dually listed issues traded from 2 to 3 o'clock changed from the New York close. Armour gained ⅛, and General Motors and Commonwealth Edison each lost ⅛ point.

New York Bonds.

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Further buying of railway loans paced a gentle rise in the bond market today. The medium priced loans again were the best railway performers. New Haven 4s of '47 closed 2¼ higher at 21¼.

Advancing fractions were Santa Fe 4s of '95 at 109⅞, Baltimore and Ohio convertible 6s, "stamped," at 17⅞; Chesapeake and Ohio 3½s of '96 "D," at 104⅞, and Delaware and Hudson refunding 4s at 53. New York Central 4s of '98 added 2 at 66.

United States government loans were 13-32ds lower to 8-32ds higher.

Bank Stocks.

Stocks of the larger Chicago banks were unchanged yesterday in over the counter trading.

WOOL TOPS, ZINC AND COCOA RISE IN FUTURE MARTS

Most Other Commodities End Day Lower.

Wool tops, zinc, and cocoa moved forward briskly yesterday, but the rest of the commodity futures list pointed downward. Copper, lead, tin, Santos coffee, and cottonseed oil showed moderate losses. Rubber, hides and silk were irregular and domestic sugar was unchanged.

Wool tops neared last week's record prices with gains of 0.7 to 1.2 cent a pound in continuation of Wednesday's rally. An advance of 2 cents in the cash bid to $1.26½ and anticipated government defense orders for wool fabrics supported the market. May deliveries closed at $1.20 bid.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The sharp downward swing of lamb prices was reversed abruptly yesterday when farmers reduced their shipments to market as a result of the recent price slashing. The market jumped 25 to 50 cents as buyers scrambled for the small supply.

Best lambs soared to $10.60 a hundredweight. Several consignments that arrived Wednesday were carried over into yesterday's session on $10 bids, and were sold at $10.40 and $10.45.

The market for hogs continued to drag, with prices off mostly 10 cents for the day. Final sales indicated 15 cent losses in some classes. Both the top and the average declined 10 cents, to $8.10 and $7.75 a hundred pounds respectively.

Only a small Thursday supply of cattle was available, but demand was narrow and prices for most steers and yearlings were barely steady.

Hog receipts, 21,000; shipments, 1,200.

Cattle receipts, 4,000; shipments, 1,500.

Sheep receipts, 5,500; shipments, 1,000.

Receipts include 50 cattle, 5,700 hogs, and 1,500 sheep direct to packers.

WHEAT MARKET UPTURN FADES; CORN DECLINES

Short covering based on firmness in securities lifted wheat prices ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel in the early trading on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. The buying movement, however, quickly ran its course and a reaction followed. Final trades were ¼ cent lower on May and unchanged on the new crop deliveries.

Reports that shippers had sold 366,000 bushels of cash corn, the largest single day's business in about two months, failed to have any effect on the price of that grain, and futures closed ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower. Price changes in oats and rye were confined to small fractions of a cent a bushel.

Soy bean futures closed 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents lower on selling induced by a decline of about 2½ cents a bushel in the cash market basis relative to May and a break of 50 cents to $1 a ton in bean meal.

DIESEL FREIGHT WINS HANDICAP RACE WITH FLYER

Holds Lead 112 Miles After 28 Minutes Start.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Amarillo, Tex., Feb. 6 [Special].—Forced to loaf now and then to keep from getting ahead of its schedule, Santa Fe locomotive No. 100—first Diesel-electric engine in main line freight service—alternately tarried or sped today across the plains of Oklahoma and Texas.

On its historic run, which is seen as a challenge to steam power, No. 100 is pulling 58 cars loaded with 2,340 tons of freight and a number of special cars, bringing the total to about 70.

Despite this heavy load, No. 100 last night proved itself in an unheralded competition with proud Super Chief—the Santa Fe's crack 39¾ hour Chicago to Los Angeles train.

Wins Race to Emporia.

Delayed in the Kansas City yards, No. 100 pulled out just 28 minutes ahead of the Super Chief. It had for its next objective Emporia, Kans., 112 miles away, a nonstop station for the fast passenger train.

The engineer brought the three quarter mile long freight train to speeds of 50 to 60 miles an hour, but the 28 minute advantage began to melt. At Ottawa junction, 55 miles out, the lead was reduced to 13 minutes by the streaking Super Chief. The crews hope was that No. 100 would maintain sufficient speed to keep the lights green ahead, for a yellow light would have meant going into a siding to let the Super Chief go by.

With crew and railroad officials aboard crossing their fingers No. 100 thundered by Wiggam with the signal light still showing green and then roared into Emporia—4 minutes ahead of the Super Chief—and onto a siding.

Freight from Many States.

The freight being hauled by No. 100 comes from Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee, Missouri, Minnesota, Iowa and New York, all destined for Los Angeles. The merchandise carried and the number of cars for each category are as follows: Earthenware, one; tires, one; automobile parts, one; automobile bodies, three; automobiles, ten; tin plate, one; machinery, two; household goods and miscellaneous merchandise, twenty-five; aluminum, one; meal, one; sugar, one; furniture, one; flour, one; engines, three; corrosive liquid, one; radios, one; malt, one.

Delivery from Chicago is now the sixth morning in Los Angeles compared with nine in 1924, eight in 1929, and seven in 1935. Railroad men aboard talk of a time not so long ago when they set a record with 23 days. But as for the future, they do not like to hazard a guess because of time agreements among the various roads and labor contracts.

The fastest passenger time between Chicago and the Pacific coast is 39 hours and 45 minutes and the time should not be far distant when fifth morning—and possibly fourth—should be in order for freight trains.

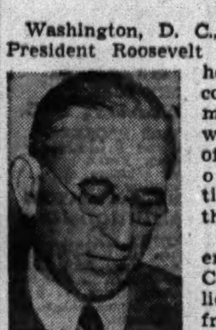
PRESIDENT SEEKS NEW FACILITIES IN OIL TRANSPORT

Chicago Firm's Pipe Line Project Involved.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt has asked the house interstate commerce committee to study ways and means of augmenting oil transportation facilities in the southwest.



Rep. Clarence F. Lea.

Chairman Clarence F. Lea [D., Cal.], made public today a letter from Mr. Roosevelt saying that present facilities for transportation of crude petroleum and its products in the Atlantic coast area might prove "inadequate in an emergency" and that national defense interests required expansion of such facilities.

Lea said that a subcommittee of which Representative William P. Cole Jr. [D., Md.], is chairman would study the question.

CONTROVERSY DELAYS LINE.

In his letter, the President referred to a gasoline pipe line, completion of which has been delayed by a controversy between Georgia railroads and oil companies over right of way.

In December, 1939, Pure Oil company, Chicago, and Gulf Refining company, Pittsburgh, Pa., announced they would build a 456 mile gasoline pipe line from Port St. Joe, Fla., to the northern border of Georgia near Chattanooga, Tenn. Completion of the line, announced as a $5,000,000 project, has been prevented by refusal of seven railroads in Georgia to let the pipe line cross their right of way.

Yesterday, at the office of Henry M. Dawes, president of Pure Oil, it was said that because of the controversy, only 98 miles of the line, from Port St. Joe to Bainbridge, Ga., is in operation. The segment began carrying gasoline last Dec. 26. Most of the rest of the line is completed except the sections that would pass beneath railroad property.

Court Refuses Builder's Plea.

In June, 1940, the Georgia Supreme court denied the actual builder and operator of the line—Southeastern Pipe Line company—the right of eminent domain, on the ground that legislation on which the right was based did not contain an enabling clause. Bills to amend the law are now in the committee stage in the Georgia legislature. Company officials said the line could be completed in about a month after grant of right to cross the railroad properties.

Southeastern Pipe Line company is controled by Pure Oil and Gulf Refining. Its line is the only major one in the southeast carrying gasoline. The line's northern terminus is Lookout Mountain station, in Georgia near the Tennessee line.

Ocean going tankers transport gasoline to the southern terminus of the pipe line from refineries in Port Neches and Port Arthur, Tex., for shipment northward.

LOANS' LEGALITY ENDANGERED BY COURT DECISION

New York, Feb. 6 [Special].—A federal court decision today endangered the legality of thousands of finance company loans in a ruling that contracts for renewal loans, from which a company subtracts old debts, are illegal and void.

The decision, which may affect millions of dollars in loans up to $300 in New York state, was handed down by Federal Judge Edward A. Conger in a suit by Madison Personal Loan, Inc., to take a borrower's automobile in payment of a debt.

"Such a procedure amounts to compounding of interest and I hold the loan is void and cannot be collected," the judge said.

The judge said that the debtor, Irving Radner, in June, 1939, owed the Madison company $287 on a loan. A mortgage on his automobile had been put up as collateral. When Radner wanted to renew the loan, the suit disclosed, he still owed the company $150. A check for that amount was drawn to him, indorsed, and turned over to the loan company, which then wiped out the indebtedness on its books and took it out of the renewed loan.

Int. Agricultural-Union Potash Merger Planned

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—A special meeting of stockholders of Union Potash and Chemical company has been called for March 11 in Denver, Col., to act on a proposed merger with International Agricultural corporation.

International owns 94.89 per cent of the outstanding preferred stock and 55.86 per cent of the common stock of Union Potash. The new name of the companies would be International Minerals and Chemical corporation.

COTTON

Cotton prices advanced moderately yesterday due more to lack of pressure than active buying. March led the upturn. Closing sales were at gains of .02 to .06 cent a pound on the active futures. Cash firms offered March at four points over May late in the trading.

Trading in cotton futures on the three American exchanges in January aggregated 2,248,000 bales, the Commodity Exchange administration reported. This compares with 2,041,000 bales in December and 4,004,000 bales in January, 1940.

Cash cotton closed .05 to .06 cent higher, with New York, 10.91 cents; New Orleans, 10.17 cents; Houston, 10.03 cents, and Galveston, 10.01 cents a pound. Futures prices follow:

2 PLEAD GUILTY TO ADVANCE FEE RACKET CHARGES

8 Others to Be Tried in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 6 [Special].—Paul E. Reinhardt, head of Reinhardt & Co., Chicago, and Roland S. Mott of New York, entered guilty pleas here today in federal court to mail fraud charges as the government opened its hearing against eight other co-defendants.

The men, who maintained offices in New York, Chicago, and here, were charged with engaging in a nationwide racket in which they obtained an estimated $1,000,000 in "advance fees" from small business men seeking to raise new capital.

Sentencing Is Deferred.

Their victims—numbering over 250—were small corporations whose officials were told they needed expert guidance to raise new funds after the Securities and Exchange commission was established in 1934, according to United States District Attorney Emerich B. Freed.

Sentence for the two defendants entering guilty pleas was deferred by Judge Leslie R. Darr until after disposition of the cases against the eight others who appeared for trial.

These men included Bernard B. Gross, Chicago; Arthur L. Rose, Victor Devilliers, W. M. Harvey, Edward Schofs, and William H. Gould, New York City; Edward M. Hill, Youngstown, and Carl J. Barth, Cleveland. Illness kept Samuel J. Lewis, another defendant, in New York. C. Wayne Gould, said to have operated in Chicago and Los Angeles, is still missing.

Collected for "Trips."

The defendants were alleged to have offered their services in floating new stock issues, and collected the advance fees for "surveys, trips to Washington and preparation of SEC registrations."

Full investigation of the cases showed, according to Freed, that the defendants did not obtain new financing for any of their clients and failed to sell a single share of stock.

REGISTRATIONS REVOKED.

Gross was president of the Warren-Franklin corporation, Chicago, which was dissolved in 1939, after the SEC revoked the registrations of Gross and the company as securities dealers and brokers. The SEC charged at the time that Gross and his company were defrauding business men seeking new capital by operating an "advance fee racket."

TREASURY LOANS CUT BANKS' IDLE LENDABLE FUNDS

Borrowing by the treasury reduced federal reserve system member banks' idle lendable funds $490,000,000 to a total of $6,310,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, the federal reserve board reported yesterday.

GILLETTE.

I notice that Gillette common stock on the New York Stock exchange is selling rather low. What seems to be the difficulty?—H. J.

Answer: The decline in earnings of the Gillette Safety Razor company, Boston, is considered the major influence on the present level of its common stock prices, which are around the lowest since the shares were first listed in 1924.

The company's lower earnings have been ascribed to tighter competitive conditions and to the foreign situation. Intense competition in the safety razor market has increased expenses and cut the company's profit margin.

Exchange restrictions and taxes, aggravated by the war, have curtailed the return of earnings from foreign operations, which have contributed from one-half to four-fifths of Gillette's consolidated income. Foreign sales, mainly in the British empire, have represented as much as two-thirds of total volume in recent years.

Consolidated net income of the company and its subsidiaries in the first nine months of 1940 dropped to $1,938,775, equal to 41 cents a common share, after preferred dividends. This compared with net income of $2,418,360, or 65 cents a common share, in the corresponding period of 1939.

The earnings record in recent years follows:

	Net income.	Earned per com. share.	Dividends per com. share.
1935	$4,568,805	$1.51	$1.00
1936	4,975,889	1.72	1.25
1937	4,500,160	1.50	1.00
1938	2,941,850	0.72	0.70
1939	3,284,797	0.89	0.60

Dividends on the common stock have been paid consistently since the company was formed in 1917. Payments on the stock totaled 40 cents a share last year. Regular dividends are being distributed on the preferred stock. The company has outstanding 300,000 shares of $5 cumulative preference stock of no par value and 1,998,769 shares of no par common stock.

Gillette is the largest domestic manufacturer of safety razors and blades, sold under the trade names Gillette, Teck, Probak, and Valet.

MARKET VALUES.

What was the market value of all the stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange at the end of 1940? —W. J.

Answer: The market value of 1,230 issues of stock, represented by a total of 1,454,761,737 shares, listed on the "big board," was $41,890,646,959 at the end of 1940. This compared with $46,467,616,372 for 1,233 stock issues embracing 1,435,404,562 shares at the end of 1939.

RAILROADS CITED BY SUPPORTER OF UTILITY BID RULE

Senator Asserts 'Abuses' Were Wiped Out.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—A senator's assertion that competitive bidding had "wiped out with one stroke" many abuses found in negotiated underwriting arrangements brought to a close today the Securities and Exchange commission's public conference on a recommendation that it compel bidding in the sale of public utility issues of more than $1,000,000.

Senator Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], member of a special senatorial committee which studied railroad financing, said that the investment report was "replete with instances of financial abuses from continuing banker relationships."

No "Abuses" Since 1926.

He said he could not recall any similar abuses since the Interstate Commerce commission first required competitive bids for equipment trust certificates in 1926.

One of the major arguments by witnesses opposed to the competitive bidding recommendation was that it would disrupt established relationships between issuers and their bankers.

One of the contentions for such relations was that corporations could expect help from their bankers in difficult periods.

Bank Counsel Opposes Rule.

Truman, however, cited instances from the committee report and asserted that "financial aid in time of crisis" was not one of the advantages to be expected from a continuing banker relationship.

The only other witness at the final session was Fred N. Oliver of New York, counsel for the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, who said that a compulsory competitive bidding rule threatened to work hardships on small investor institutions.

WEEK'S BUILDING WORK DIPS, BUT STAYS ABOVE '40

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Engineering construction awards this week totaled $93,741,000, a decrease of 5 per cent from the preceding week, but 63 per cent more than a year ago. It marked the 23d consecutive week in which awards have exceeded the corresponding week a year earlier.

Private contracts were up 26 per cent from the week before, and 120 per cent from a year ago.

Comparisons follow:

People and Events

F. G. Fitz-Patrick, chief traffic officer of the North Western Railway company, yesterday announced several appointments in the traffic department. The new posts are: Allen R. Gould, traffic manager in charge of the sale of freight and passenger transportation; R. O. Small, traffic manager in charge of rates and divisions; R. C. Stubbs, assistant traffic manager, and A. O. Olson, general freight agent.

John Y. McLean, formerly general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, has been named director of labor relations for the Rock Island Lines. He will make his headquarters in Chicago.

L. L. Wrentmore has been appointed assistant central station manager of the northwestern district of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. His headquarters will be in Chicago.

DU PONT 1940 TAX BURDEN EXCEEDS MILLION WEEKLY

U.S. Share Up from 16 to 50 Millions.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 6 (AP).—E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. will say in its forthcoming annual report that its total 1940 bill for direct taxes was approximately $56,700,000, at the rate of more than a million dollars a week.

"The only operating cost items of greater magnitude were wages and salaries, about $94,800,000, and raw materials, about $88,000,000," the report will say.

"Of the total direct taxes, about $50,200,000 were payable to the federal government, compared with $16,000,000 for 1939, an increase of more than 200 per cent. The federal tax on 1940 earnings was more than double the amount it would have been if the 1939 tax law had remained in effect."

An accompanying chart showed that taxes paid by the company in proportion to earnings available for dividends, increased from 4.8 per cent in 1927 to 65.2 per cent in 1940.

Even those figures, the report will say, "substantially understate the company's total tax burden, because they include no allowance for taxes indirectly paid by it as part of the cost of doing business, because they exclude taxes paid by subsidiaries not wholly owned, and taxes paid by General Motors corporation attributable to du Pont's ownership of 23 per cent of the common stock of that company."

Chevrolet Sales in Chicago Area 45% Over Year Ago

Retail sales of 1941 Chevrolet passenger and commercial cars in the Chicago zone totaled 16,306 units from late September thru January, B. J. Brady, Chevrolet's Chicago zone manager, reported yesterday. These sales, he said, represented an increase of 45.4 per cent over sales of 1940 models for the same period.
